I feel sorry for you. In December your CB band will start filling up with shitty operators and retards like what happened here in the United States.

When the band is open to Europe, your retards can talk to our retards.

If you're thinking of using the 706 mobile rig you may be a bit disappointed in the AM selectivity. I think they use the narrow FM filter in double duty in the AM section. The AM filter really needs to be around 6 KHz for a 10 KHz channel spacing base on the monitoring I've done when I had the 706MKIIG in my old van. The new DSP based mobile rig should be much better in that area since you can select what filter width to use at the touch of a dial.

As far as the serial interface goes Icom doesn't use standard voltage levels, I think they use a TTL based serial protocol, so you have to use some kind of level translator. Icom sells the necessary adapter.

LOL, our CB band started filling up with shitty operators back in 1981 when it became legal, most people using CB radio in the UK have never had a licence anyway. CB in this country is as good as finished really, there is still the odd good operator on the CB bands if you look hard, but in general it's just full of Dead Keys, Music, swearing e.c.t

Shame really, with proper regulation from the start CB in the UK could have been an amazing service, but as it is now most people steer well clear of it.

Gee! When I look at the photo I read 80 to 15 meter amplifier in the title block on the amplifier for auction # 220051930613.

That advertises it as an amateur band amplifier.

No problem I already have the ICOM set up for computer control. I can even run the audio through the sound board so I can control it too.Funny thing, the audio routines were written back when the fastest processor you could get was about 400Mhz and it didnt work so good. Now it works great at 3.2Ghz

Hello Everyone,

Myself and several of my friends at school have all installed CB radios in our cars for the sole purpose of putting a PA Horn on the outside of our car to yell and talk to each other. Recently though we all that it would be a cool idea to get some CB antenna's so we could talk to each other when on the road whenever we want, kind of like a club. I have a 1996 Ford Explorer XLT and I want to mount a magnetic mount antenna on the top of my roof, the problem is I dont know how to get it from the outside of my car to the inside of my car without drilling holes or making it look messy. Any help on my accomplishing this goal would be awesome and much appreciated.

Thanks,
Taylor Leach

The reason it won't install is because you need to bend over and use more vasoline!

Wilson 1000 magmount, or K40 magmount. If you are running an amp, use the Wilson.

Why a 5000. Why not a 1000? Same antenna, different power rating. If he is barefoot, the 1000 is fine.

Appreciate the replies. Eventually found the AC power cord at:

http://www.kenselectronics.com/index.html

Part # LC-6 for $2.68.

Best selection of cords, plugs, adapters I've ever seen. Not meant to be spam.

Hi all,

It's not often that I get pissed-off enough at Cbers in general to go on a mini-rant, but here I go.

I direct your attention to the June 2003 issue of CQ magazine, pg. 62, to be exact. It's an article re. the amateur radio vanity callsign system. "Vanity callsigns," what in hell's bells does that have to do with CB? Well, it's like this. Before there ever was a vanity callsign system, an amateur Extra petitioned the FCC to create a means for amateurs to change their callsigns for a fee. He did this because he wanted his old callsign back. His petition was denied.

He then wrote his Congressmen re. his request. He was answered by one of his Congressmen, who informed them that they were making inquiries. Well, to make a long story short, a letter jointly signed by two Congressmen was sent to the FCC chairman. It stated that they were writing "on behalf of several amateur radio operators" and pointed out that such a system would pay for itself. The kicker is that one of the Congressmen controlled the FCC budget. The result; a short time later, both the House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate approved legislation authorizing the FCC to issue unique amateur radio callsigns. When President Clinton signed the well-publicized Deficit Reduction Plan, not even the FCC noticed the short four-word line insert that read "Amateur vanity callsigns $7."

This is a clear example illustrating that one person can actually make a difference. Although the petitioner was an ARO, the league (ARRL) did not represent him. His petition was summarily denied, yet he still found a way to have the change implemented. Arguably, Cbers outnumber hams by a factor of 5:1, and that's being conservative. I just wanted to illustrate how much political and/or economic muscle the 11-meter crowd truly has...yet is unwilling (or unable) to accomplish anything with all this potential clout.

There will be many that will claim that the unlawful activities of some (many) operators will prevent this from ever happening. Although I neither condone nor encourage "freebanding" and/or illegal amplifiers, I think that's a big crock of hooey! It would take just a few moments of one's time and a postage stamp to fire off a quick letter to one's congressmen. I take it a tad farther by returning a form letter re. RM-9807 to all those who send me campaign flyers/letters at election time, but that's just me. Can anybody imagine an inquiry "on behalf of several citizen band radio operators?" I sure can. Think about it.

Bert, the FCC will not do NOTHING that will expand the scope of the existing mess that is found on 11m.

Quote from FCC's reply:

"4. The Commission sought comment on Dixon's Petition on January 14, 2000. Comments and reply comments were received from CB Radio Service operators and organizations representing them, amateur radio operators and the American Radio Relay League, Inc. (ARRL), and the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB).

We note that the Commission stated it had no intention of creating a service paralleling the amateur service when it authorized the Citizens Radio Service, and it did not intend that CB Radio Service stations be used for technical radio experiments or for general contacts of a random nature. In this regard, Dixon and others state that the CB Radio Service already is used for long-distance personal convenience communications and that such use should be permitted. We also note that some individuals used the Citizens Radio Service in this manner before the Commission specifically prohibited CB Radio Service stations from communicating with distant stations. Thus, the concern expressed by the ARRL that this proposal would lessen or eliminate the core distinction between the CB Radio Service and the Amateur Radio Service is a valid concern. The Petition presents no compelling reason to propose a rule change that would undermine the purpose underlying the CB Radio Service rules. Rather, we agree with Dvork that someone wishing to engage in amateur service type communications should seek an amateur radio license and use bands that are expressly allocated for these types of communication. "

The key phase Bert is:

"that someone wishing to engage in amateur service
type communications should seek an amateur radio license and use bands that are expressly allocated
for these types of communication."

With the current 5 wpm CW test requirement, which might disappear after the current WRC meeting concludes, even that requirement may be removed, the Ham license is easy to get. There is NO excuse for somebody NOT to get legitimate and get licensed.

a very interesting point was mentioned and quickly glossed over. 'the commission specifically prohibited cb radio service stations from communicating with distant stations.'
this is where the government is full of shit. if propogation enables me to talk to an operator in minnesota and some federal flunky says hey dont do that then guess what...take a flying leap at a rolling doughnut

Will you take the other written tests right away if they remove the CW requirement?

For anyone in the area looking for a free test with the current question pool, FARC, the Frederick Amateur Radio Club, is having a test session at the Father's Day Hamfest at the Frederick County Fairgrounds. That is THIS Sunday. Weather is supposed to be nice for a change. The Fest is 8 AM to 3 PM. More info:

http://www.qsl.net/k3erm/hamfest.htm

Maybe I'll go take the General written portion. If there's time, I might try the Extra test. Won't be able to use 'em, but I'll have them and they're good for 365 days.

Jim you are such a rough tough cream puff I'd like to see you go to the FCC office and tell the guy there you are not going to obey rules and to take a flying leap, no I think you'd be very quiet and shy LOL.

That's the spirit! I think every major Amateur group, except the one from the Russian Federation, is in favor of dumping the CW requirement. Most people expect that there is a very good chance that the CW requirement will be gone when the current WRC concludes its business, but there is no guarantee.

You sidestepped the question:

Will you take the other written tests right away if they remove the CW requirement?

Will you take them at all?

Sure. Particularly since it would tick off some

What? I can't use a scope probe as a screwdriver??

I've got a guy up here who bought his first CB, a Uniden PC-33 in 1996. Now he's a "big wig". Made it all the way to VE. He had to learn the answers to the technical stuff. I already know that stuff. Have the certificate from a vocational school for electronics. My brother is into electronics, so I was "born with a resistor in my hand".

DAMN!!! It's a brunch, not a cookout. Supposed to be at 11 AM. Frederick is at least an hour and a half drive. It's not a hick town anymore. They got traffic problems...sit and wait. I've been on Patrick Street when there's no activities. Ugggg.

Whatever WE want, George. I used RM-9807 because it's a perfect example. It wasn't asking for the legalization of "freebanding" and/or amps, it merely asked for the decriminalization of a naturally occuring phenomenon. That's really kinda beside the point. The CQ article just really struck home re. how much potential political and economic clout CBers could wield, yet nobody seems willing to pull on the same side of the rope.

Who is "they," George? I'm part of "they" and I want rules? Better yet, I want rules enforced. (Don't let me get on my taxpayer rant.)

I don't believe that. If the appropriate pressure was brought to bear correctly, anything is possible. BTW, I don't really care for the broad generalization. The "existing mess" certainly does not apply to all of 11-meters.

Pretty petty, in my opinion. If allowing folks to legally communicate via a naturally occuring phenomenon within a 440 kHz slice (Channelized, at that.)

with a whopping 12 watts P.E.P. is "engaging in amateur service type communications," it really doesn't say a hell of a lot for how the FCC views
the ARS.

I concur with your point re. how easy it is, however, as I explained above...I don't really equate the two based on DX comms. Not to appear abrasive, Leland...but if it's that easy...?

What spirit is that, Leland? Wait long enough and the big bad 5-wpm code test will go away. I'd hardly call that spirit. Someone who decides to "get
it done" rather than whine and wait is exhibiting "spirit."

He's a HAM.. In NY the law exempts HAMs from being ticketed & charged for having such equipment. Same laws in Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, and Florida, all exempt HAMs from being charged for having such equipment in their vehicles.

Therefore, his scanner wasn't illegal.

But thanks for the comments.

I still stand by my opinion that ignorance of the law is no excuse, unless you're a cop....

P.S. I have used a screwdriver as a scope probe, in a pinch, before.

are you saying an action because it is involving a naturally occuring phenomenon should be legalized? I supose you could argue that locomotion is a naturally occuring phenomenon in people and why should we have to wait at crosswalks to cross? Or why should we be restricted by no trespassing signs LOL?

states "80-15 Meters"

The seller has misrepresented the product :-)

To the contrary, quite acceptable when dealing with a lame low quality troll like yourself. What indicates a severe and total besting is when you are forced to "snip" my posted replies to evade that besting. This you have done... thus you are bested my bitch.

LOL... you couldn't make chief seat sniffer in a solely owned one man Spot-A-Pot with your droolish parroting of my posts as I disembowel you.

Besides your lack of originality for the purpose of entertainment value you continue to grasp at straws attempting to irk me while I calmly and methodically have you jumping through hoops most recognizable even to the lamest of trolls.

You would give this ng a black eye if anyone took you seriously and believed you to be a fan wanting to talk football or just sensibly about off the wall shit instead of arguing about anything... repetitively. I have demonstrated the former in every ng I have posted to for years. In a single year's time you have proven quite the opposite.

As you search for air and your testicles at this point realize that I won't allow my selfish assaults on your empty coconut to go on much further at the expense of this ng. Obviously one of the biggest differences between us.

So take your best and final parting shot at my superiority regarless of how lame your attempt will be. I promise I will not respond back to disrupt your delusional euphoric dementia.

I won't need to because as the MC Hammer song goes you..."can't touch this!"

My parting song for you obviously has to be ..."dude looks like a lady!"

My last experience with dual quads was horrendous. I had an Olds 442
and put on an Offenhauser tunnel ram and dual Holley's. I linked them together with an Enderle linkage system. It was impossible to keep those two carbs in synch with each other. I think on this one I will go with a tunnel ram
again, but with one big honkin Holley on it.

Check out this article (starts getting good at page 3):

My 2003 Z06 will turn low 11's and high 10's - fogging 150 HP (have not fogged 250 yet on the track) - I am never scared driving it. Though when you get up over 180 MPH on public roads your heart starts to race quite Impressive. Wouldn't a Hemi go nice right now. With a little more time they could have dialed it in and gotten their 600 hp. That's not too shabby, a dependable crate motor, runs on pump, throw a cam and kit at it, add a decent manifold and you have a very streetable 600+ hp motor. Bolt on a set of tricked out heads and watch out. Plus they sound and look so sweet:-).

The '29 coupe is probably a tad more squirrely than your 'Vette.

I went with a new Demon 850 double on the Belvedere this

When I saw Summit come up I chuckled. Good place to buy stuff. I'm going to assume that you got it running well on your car. I ran into a guy with a '34
Ford Vicky with a small block at a show a few years ago and got talking to him about his new Demon. He said that he was having a problem getting it dialed in.
I didn't know the guy so for all I know he could have been a total klutz. Well I ran into him at another about a year later and he was running an Edelbrock and said that the Demon never worked out for him. He didn't badmouth it, just said that he could never get it set to his liking. I was looking for a carb at the time to replace my aging Q-Jet. I opted for a Edelbrock Performer with electric choke (the Q-Jet didn't have a choke hooked up). I drive this thing year around and having a choke in freezing weather is nice. Anyway, the Edelbrock seems to be doing a good job for me, was easy to dial in (which can be a challenge at this elevation of a tad below 6000 feet). I had considered a Holley but I thought back about all the Holleys that I have worked on over the years
and decided that I didn't need the torment:-).

Sap,

Pretty sure that both hood styles were available in both '71 and '72. The air induction like you see on his was first used on the '70 RR and operated by vacuum.

Here you can see a '71 with the hood style yours has.
http://autohobbypage.com/cgi-bin/_mopar.pl?/show/00/mpr/mpr130.jpg

Here's a '70 showing the underside of the air induction.
http://autohobbypage.com/cgi-bin/03/_mopar.pl?/show/03/all/all509.jpg and here's one with the hood down and the "scoop" open http://autohobbypage.com/cgi-bin/03/_mopar.pl?/show/03/sbd/sbd037.jpg

Kind of like in '71-'74, there were at least two different hood styles for the Charger. One had the power bulge in it(not sure if it was available in the '74 or not) and the other was just a plain hood.

Not positive, but you might have been able to get the "plain" Satellite hood
on the RR in '71-'72 also.

Nice ride you have there. :)

The Air Grabber scoop was manually operated via a switch located on the dash. If you shut off the engine with it open, vacuum would automatically close it to keep out rain, debris and such.

Pretty much the same as the headlights on the 66-67(and maybe later?) Chargers then, right? At least as long as you didn't have a vacuum leak. ;)

Hi Taylor

Is that a hatchback? I can't remember. You could go with a hatchback mount or the hood mount for that matter, they 'clamp' on with set screws. That way the coax run is almost internal from the get go. The mag mounts are easy but they kinda scratch the paint, and where to run the coax is a question sometimes.

You can unscrew the antenna from the mount when it's not in use and for garage clearance and such.

I just got home from work and turned it on and it's trying to run to Canada a bit but not strong.

Man has it been nice weather for about a week now over here, it's almost felt like May. It was about 65 out today, but I hear old man winter is on his way by the weekend with possible snow. (just talked to a portable in Nebraska btw)

the correct setup would be Black to Green, Yellow to Red. However if all you are doing is plugging in a phone and not running a DSL or anything like that it doesn't matter..

I don't know it was a lot of fun back then, think it depended where you lived. I very rairly heard any swearing etc. It was very much like a small community all ages I heard, There were frequent nets up on the Devils Dyke and Ditchling Beacon here in Brighton. Never forget Graham G4FNL or Commander as he called himself booming out with his Echo mike and crazy amount of power he used...well allegedly !

It's clear this dude is about 15 years old. Why would someone go thru so much trouple posting as someone else, threatening people, etc, all because someone offered $20 for a "not much in demand radio".

Doon't even bother wasting your time.

No, actually I havent heard anything. If they do drop it perhaps I will have to pay for service like some of the anonymous users. But actually 39.95 a month is enough for me.

Not at all twitsedhed, the person being called has a right to know who is calling them, otherwise they wouldn't have caller ID

Pink muffin you? Now I know where your mind is. If she called, she would have gotten me. Cause that is my number. Not my Home, but my number.
SO...
The PU$$Y didn't even try. What a wimp. I aint afraid to talk to know one.

Nope no caller ID. SO, You all get off the hook.

If you would only research. I guess you all aren't as smart as I thought you were. Wait a minute, Did I say that? What was I thinking? I know you all are not that smart. This NG proves it.

The Amstrad 901 I think you refer to is too far away for me to hear it on the jolly old 1-9.

MY FUCKING NAME IS NOT TOM. And stay the fuck out of threads you have no business in. Just because I say something that you agree with does not equate you and I being anywhere near friends, nor does it require your comment. Moron.

I have not claimed either thing

However My coment is mine to give as I choose, I have no need to wait for my comment to required

you basic problem is that YOU are too stupid to realise and face reality

it makes in your own almost as bad as SC/Robeson is that you hold to sociopathic notion you have rights the rest of us lack these right include free speech, the right to decide how we live, and who we sleep with without threat or harrassment

Ya fucking fruitcake, no one cares who you sleep with. At least I don't, so don't bring it up. OTOH, I don't need your comment on anything I write. Just stay out of MY business. It's mine, not yours. Is that too complex for you to understand?

hi,
any one can tell me how to calculate the noise figure for a cascade series of stages given the noise figure and power gain for the individual stages.
and what is da order of the amplifiers which have different gains and noise figure which have lowest overall noise figure.
bye

one dude on ebay selling the rm italy amps, private auctions so nobody sees who buy them.

low drive, you know that type of amp, anyway, fcc emails me back they only care about the large wholesalers.

I give up.

The overall noise figure is a complex function of each stage and their respective gains. But for practical purposes it is equivalent to the noise of the first stage -provided- the amplification of each stage is sufficient to exceed the noise figure of each successive stage. I.e, assuming these are current amplifiers, if the noise current of the first stage is 1pA and the noise current of the second stage is 10pA, then the amplification of the first stage needs to be 10 or greater for the overall noise current to be 1pA, regardless of the second stage noise.

Of course the noise figure of any amplifier depends upon the circuit configuration, component selection and quality, etc.

>and what is da order of the amplifiers which have different gains and
>noise figure which have lowest overall noise figure.

The stage with the lowest noise goes in front, which will usually be the stage with the lowest gain (generally, gain = noise).

CB'ers don't normally go quality. Got any nickel plated crimp-ons from Radio Shack for them?

Even with those the CBers won't use a crimping tool. Too expensive. They just squeeze the crap out of the ends with greasy pliers.

Give Morkie a few minutes. He lives for Usenet and will, within mere seconds, drop a Mark Morgan Loaf of fertilizer on all messages.

kookathon on clockwork

Ironic, is it not? A man who spends most of his waking hours and spewing hundreds of posts weekly on Usenet declares others to be "kooks"?

There is something very wrong with him.

mot of his waking hour

nah yu just don't understand I sit down spend a fe w minute and get up do soemthing else till I need to take a break

but I declare Sllow Code kook becuase he is clearly insane he claims the wants to preserve ham Radio and yet he propses thing EVEN HE ADMITS would kill the ARS if enacted that is clearly the work of a nut job still wating on your call sign Mr Bell I note by you current nickaddress that you are focusing your online existance in harrasing a man you claim is insane and of no import a picualr endevour (before you acuse me of the same try and use your pea brain) I am here to take part in the finsihing of the Code Nocode part somewhere round the R&O I am outa here (ihaven't decided when exactly I will leave this cesspool like about a week to 2 weeks after I obtain my own extra class license (depends on the effective date of R&O and to some extent on the date it is issues and the exact contents

then you can go back to whatever stalking you were doing before or Allow me to try to properly spell your own words, Mork. Like a moth to a flame. You simply cannot resist, can you? You are predisposed to, as Slow Code says, "dump" on each and every post made herein. You just cannot help yourself. You obviously have far too much time on our idle hands.

Apparently my previous post hit Baby Mark on the soft spot on his jumbled head. Your rejoinder was almost decipherable...almost.

And again, as in posts previous, you challenge me to give my callsign as "proof" of my existance. For what? Your third grade bent on Machismo? That is lame, Mark, even for you.

I'll give you my callsign, Mark. Meet me on 17M sometime...legally. I'll give my call every ten minutes as required. In fact, Mark, I am not all that far from you, so chatting on 17M even when the band is down should be easy to do. We can chat there...

Oh, and if r.r.a.p. has turned into a cesspool, look no further than your own mirror. You are part and parcel of the ruination of this group. In fact, Mark, you are the MAJOR reason this group has so sadly deteriorated.

Alexander Graham Bell.
CW tested and FCC approved.
callsign to be divulged on 17 meters....

The 239 sucks donkey dick. Real equipment tends to have BNC or N connectors and has for thirty or forty years.

I had no idea it was so quiet up north. I lost the DX in N. Fl and managed to pick up a little more in South Carolina and that was all I heard until back in the sandpile. Had a blast, though.

Hmmmmmm, well since he's only offering one gender, any buyer would probably have a specific need that transcends your evaluation.

I too about 20 years ago was friends with a wrestler whose stage\wrestling persona was quite bizarre, with him being some sort of half-human-half-beast character with his wife as his "trainer" complete with safari outfit & whip. One of his trademarks was smashing folding chairs over his own head. However, outside the ring he was quite articulate, intelligent, outgoing & friendly. It was quite amusing to see him perform on TV and know his true persona was quite different.

Terry Bollea, aka Hulk Hogan, was on my little league team. I also knew Mike Graham, Dick Slater (his actual name) and Steve Kerns. All

I trained in freestyle wrestling for a number of years, and one club had some local professionals start training. Gilles "The Fish" Poisson showed up at one of our local tournaments and seemed to be well respected by our coach. Another one Yvon Robert Junior was openly laughed at because of how bad he was when he trained at the club. Basically, a much smaller and long-retired assistant coach used to throw him around at will. But he still managed to have an eight year career as the son of a local legend Yvon Robert Senior.

Gilles Poisson had a neat gimmick for the time. He really was a big trong guy and would be thumping his opponent. But the crowd would start chatting "Poiiiiiiissssoooonnnnn" and he would stop wrestling and beg the crowd to stop taunting him. He was in the WWWF at one time and was managed by Freddie Blassie.

Hi guys/gals,

Looking for the smallest CB radio (mobile not handheld) that I can find that can be modified easily enough (tuneup). Looking to put this in a jeep wrangler where space is at a premium.

I haven't owned a CB in 15 years, so to say the least I don't know anything about them other than reading some old usenet archives.

I was looking at the Galaxy 929 mobile. Is there anything smaller than this? I am looking to spend under 200 plus the modding. I appreciate any help and pointers in the correct direction. Thank you!

I have a thread basically on the same issue over on rec.autos.makers.jeep+willys

You might want to join in on the thread. From what I hear the other radios have issues with reliability and that Galaxy is your best bet as far as reliability.

Uniden made the old cobras. The new one like the NW series, is not made by Uniden. I gad a Galaxy. The fucker drifted like an unanchored boat. They were great on AM, shitty on SSB. Uniden have superior receive.

I have a Grant LT, which is their SSB version. This is the same radio as the Grant XL, with a couple extra features. There are AM versions of it. Many of less then $100. The receive on my Uniden is unbelieveable.

Hey Mork-the-dork, why don't you learn to compose a sentence that can be understood? By the way Cmdr Buzz Corey was never a cartoon, but even a cartoon character would be smarter than you.

I have a Radio Shack TRC-503 in my Cherokee. Its VERY tiny, but works well. I added a power mic, and a nice tall antenna and it gets out just fine. You can get them new for less then $50.00

I got someone talking about "being politically correct...."
I'll keep hollering for ya' a few more times. I have some unreal static coming in no matter which way I point. Weird.

yes you did as you clipped out it and and your response you proofed nicely you understand anytime you want to you are just too lazy and wnat everytime handed to you from me I make you WORK for the meaning meaning you have to think I knwo that hurts you atrophied brain but you have choice you could simply not read it and not learn what I have to say

It is your free choice

That time of year again.
As usual, with family and other commitments, I may disappear for a while over Christmas. As I have had another PC sat waiting for a while, but hate the trouble of re-installing software, I may take this opportunity to upgrade.

So I will wish you all a merry Christmas, seasons greetings, or whatever the "politically correct" nuts allow us to say to people now.

Have a nice one,

Peter.

As a very very gay man myself I do not find that funny at all. It is not compassionate and I am the kind of person who is very compassionate to my fellow man (especially if he has a big dick) LOL

Bob

I've just heard on the local news that a nursery has banned Christmas because it may offend other religions.
This is not because any religions have demanded it, but because there are people being paid just to think up crap like this. What they don't realise is that, rather than creating religious harmony, they are creating bad feeling between religions.

It's bad enough having radical groups tell Muslims that their religion is under attack, without people making Christians believe their religion is under attack from groups like Muslims.

At least Elton John believes in equality... ALL religions would be banned if he had his way. The trouble is that, once he got that, he would probably move on to banning heterosexuality - in the belief that it promotes hatred for poufs.

There would be a national "straightness" test. Anyone showing "straight" tendencies would be taken for "reprogramming". Maybe electric shock therapy - show us pictures of the opposite sex, naked, while we suffer the shocks.

Merry Christmas.

Peter.

I get stepped on locally. I got some guy running power, and there is no way I can get over the top of them. I only get heard when I chime in during the breaks.

Most of the bullshit in rrcb is posted by licensed ham radio operators.

Vote yes or no

Yes- 1

No-

(exemptions to the cool ham radio operators of course)

Cats can survive. I assume a barn cat is even better at it. I am going hunting tomorrow. Next year, I am coming to hunt on your property.

Yep, I have three female barn kittys and they are really good at mooching from the neighbors down the road. The male kittys are too full of piss and vinegar to count on to put up homestead back there. It costs a few ruples to get the females fixed, but it's money well spent.

Yeah... we can hunt most anything behind my barn, rabbit, squirrel, or deer.

Clay pigeon is always in season, sorta like NY cement shoes.

Nah, not unless you like lake erie perch or walleye. You of all people should stop by Jim, you could map quest it and then talk on your old portable when you got here.

You could pretend to be a Buckeye fan (the champs) while you're here too.

I had a walleye at the Flats at some joint named Shooters (or something like that). That was a great eatin fish.

Actually, Morkie is lying again.

I AM responding to his cross-posts here to answer this one, however Morkie KNOWS that I do not routinely post to any other NG than rec.radio.amateur.policy.

No, Morkie...What IS clear is that you are incompetent in English comprehension.

There you go with more of your paranoia, Morkie.

Follow the headers, you moron.

Nothing in ANY religious document says it's OK to trash multiple newsgroups with your filth.

As you can plainly see here, you're making a fool out of yourself with these rediculous crosspoists and profanity.

Perhaps someones else can find the right combination of words that will get through your mentally compromised cloud, but I doubt it.

The disgrace is yours, KB9RQZ. You're the one who insists that others suggest you eat their excrement both in the body of messages and in hundreds of subject line hijackings.

You're sick, Morkie. Seek help.

Deer Santa,
I wud like a kool toy space ranjur fer Xmas. I'v ben a gud boy all yeer.
Yer Friend, Billy
Dear Billy,
Nice spelling. You're on your way to a career in lawncare. How about I send you a book so you can learn to read and spell? I'm giving your older brother the space ranger. At least HE can spell.
Santa

Dear Santa,
I have been a good girl all year, and the only thing I ask for is peace and joy in the world for everybody!
Love, Sarah

Dear Sarah,
Your parents smoked pot when they had you, didn't they?

Dear Santa,
I don't know if you can do this, but for Christmas, I'd like for my mommy and daddy to get back together. Please see what you can do.
Love, Teddy

Dear Teddy,
Look Ted, your dad's banging the babysitter like a screen door in a wind storm.

Do you really think he's gonna give that up to come back to someone who rides his ass constantly, and is as frigid as a iceberg ? Get real for god sake. It's time to give up on that dream. Let me send you some Legos instead.

Dear Santa,
I want a new bike, a Playstation 2, a train, some G.I. Joes, a dog, a drum kit, a pony and a tuba.
Love, Francis

Dear Francis,
Who names their kid "Francis" nowadays. I'll set you up with a Barbie this year.

Dear Santa,
I left milk and cookies for you under the tree, and I left carrots for your reindeer outside the back door.
Love, Susan

Dear Susan,
Milk gives me the shits and carrots make the deer fart in my face when riding in the sleigh. You want to do me a favor? Leave me a bottle of Scotch.

Dear Santa,
What do you do the other 364 days of the year? Are you busy making toys?
Your friend, Thomas

Dear Thomas,
All the toys are made in China. I have a condo in Vegas where I spend most of my time making low-budget porno films. I unwind by drinking myself silly and squeezing the asses of cocktail waitresses while losing money at the craps table. Hey, you wanted to know.

Dear Santa,
Do you see us when we're sleeping, do you really know when we're awake, like in the song?
Love, Jessica

Dear Jessica,
Are you really that gullible? Good luck in whatever you do. I'm skipping your house.

Dear Santa,
I really want a puppy this year. Please, please, please, PLEASE,
PLEASE could I have one?
Love, Timmy

Dear Timmy,
That whiney begging shit may work with your folks, but that crap doesn't work with me. You're getting a sweater again.

Dearest Santa,
We don't have a chimney in our house. How do you get into our home?
Love, Marky

Dear Mark,
First of all, stop calling yourself "Marky", that's why you're getting your ass whipped at school. Second, you don't live in a house, you live in a low-rent apartment complex. Third, I get inside your pad just like the boogeyman does, through your bedroom window.

Sweet dreams,

Two cents coming. I like the team. I was hoping they were going to cripple Michigan and I think it's funny how the Michigan fans are crying like babies..they just don't get it. The team failed to capture the title in their division AND they lost to Ohio State AND they had a weaker schedule than Florida, which brings us to the crux of the matter. Down here, you're either a Gator, Hurricane or 'Nole, but ya' can't be more than one...although I was never a gator fan, it would be less than ethical of me to root against a Fl team, but then again, it's tough to root against a team like Ohio St this year..all cornbread farm boys from the sticks (for the most part). Good luck!

They didn't have too bad of a year. I liked them under Holtz and haven't been able to recapture that enthusiasm, but they're growing on me ever-so-slowly.

However, back to the point, I too question the results of a hearing where the licensee was in jail. In California it is a felony to eat horsemeat. Perhaps there needs to be some relationship between the nature of the felony and the use of amateur radio. A pedophile might use ham radio to spread kiddie porn, but a horsemeat eater might be a good "ham."

In responce to the question is the guy for real?? YES he is and his radio work is GREAT. I bought a Connexx 4600 turbo with the wack-pack and supper recieve and the radio KICKS-ASS!!! There is a c.b. repair shop close to where i work and he heard me talk on the radio and he told me that the radio is clear and LOUD. I have it mounted on the dash-board of my dump-truck, it gets rattled around pretty good and have NOT had one problem!! Also when you buy the radio you get a LIFE-TIME WARRENTY. NO one else will do that. So you tell me is it worth it??

I got a Cobra 75 to save space and the recieve was so bad I had to take it out. I went out and bought my 3rd Uniden (2nd pc68 elite) because I like the other 2 so much. I have noticed I have to add extra ground wires to the dash, roof top, and trunk lid, where in older cars I never had to.

No one directs questions to you anymore, Jerry (well, save for Doug and Lelnad). Your ignorance renders you incapable of providing intelligent or substantial response. But since you asked, each year there are newspaper articles illustrating truckers exhibiting the criteria you believe constitutes "hero" status. If one were to list even a fraction of those from a few years, it would dwarf your list.
How come you don't answer the phone these days, Jerry? That's twice now I came right through your alley and you weren't home. Last time I was in Hollingsworth's home town I called you multiple times. Each time I call I get an answering machine with a voice that sounds like a British fag. Alright if I come to the door next time? Still trying to obtain that cup of coffee for the road. I'm beginning to believe your invitation extended a ways back is less than genuine.

"When I told Abbie Hoffman that he was the first one who made me laugh since Lenny Bruce died, Hoffman said, "Really? He was my god." The combination of satirical irreverence and sense of justice that Bruce and Hoffman shared was the real spirit behind the Yippies--a term I coined to describe a phenomenon that already existed: an organic coalition of stoned hippies and political activists who engaged in such actions as throwing money on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, then explaining to reporters the meaning of that symbolism. Folksinger Phil Ochs summed it up: "A demonstration should turn you on, not turn you off." So when journalists link the Yippies with misleading bedfellows, at best it's careless shorthand; at worst it's deliberate demonization. Osama bin Laden wanted an aircraft to crash into the Pentagon. Abbie Hoffman merely wanted to levitate it." -- Paul Krassner, http://tinyurl.com/ehu3v

DUH! The-man-asked-for-military-related-heros-of-which-there-are-plenty! I merely answered his question.

And what the touchy-feely-drippy-assed wimps don't realize is, if it weren't for those military heros, YOU wouldn't have a country in which to express your oh-so-sickly smarmy liberalism. Freedon ain't free, bub.

Did you pop a boner? Maybe you could ask Vinnie, Steveo, I AmnotGeorgeBush, or Jay in the Mojave to get on and massage it for you.

Hams work stations around the country and all over the world all the time but we don't pop boners when we do. We like working on radio skills so we don't sound like the retards on CB.

Funny! Actually, I can agree with you here, I always suspected you of being a chicken bander.

Undoubtedly, the largest group of "heroes" are the truckers and their cb's. Twenty-four hours a day they drive the roads using a cb and cell phone to call in accidents, motorists in trouble, give road conditions, call on suspicious and dangerous circumstances, etc., etc., etc.

Nice going!

he spends most of his time chasing young boys around the internet as well as trying to have gay sex with extra class hams.

They can do all that? Wow. You better get to eleven meters then and work on your radio skills, then come back here and teach the rest of us.

You know, you really ought to get away from the west coast more often :
) That's the one thing I missed when I lived in Ca...prime fishing. You ought think about an east coast expedition. You can do the Gulf and Atlantic if you base out of the Keys, but I'm a Gulf water fan. I prefer calm and cystal clear and warm waters opposed to the cold, harsh churn of the Atlantic.

Hey Twisty, lived in the high desert of So Cal and there wasn't much fishing there. Where you are in the gulf you are spoiled with the warm water and all. Try getting a line wet with 6' breakers at 38f and a stiff breeze blowing the bait fish in. Gotta be dedicated...

You got that right. He's possibly forgotten the frigid California temps (LOL!!).
Seriously, he does have it good. There is nothing like a good large mouth or for that fact small mouth bass, but I've been partial to Trout and the sport fishing for Yellow
fin or Dorado or an occasional Wahoo when down south of the border.

I'm having visions of the Gorton's Fish commercial where they're wearing rain coats and its Winter. I can fish for days straight, literally, in rain, wind, etc., but when then the temp drops, forget it. We had 48 degrees a few nights ago (for an hour or two) and we turned the heat on for the first time in a long time.

No smallmouth bass in Florida except in a few spots up near the top of the state, but the record largemouths make up for it. In fact, the pros are predicting the next world-record to come from Fl, Tx or Ca., but the Ca. largemouth bass are all southern bass. Largemouth bass aren't native to Ca. at all.

When you're talking gamefish, I like to go after the sails, but Barracuda, Tarpon and Shark are always fun, too.

far be it from me to comment.

11 meters, if properly managed could be such a medium. However, given all the bucket mouths, bad attitudes and folks that just don't care, getting help on there is risky business these days (I know, I used to run a CERT station here in phoenix during the monsoon season, it always turned into a clusterfuck with all the yahoo's wanting to cause problems when I was trying to help out folks needing real help). with all that going on, it was a real clusterfuck. thats why I pretty much gave up on the band and moved to amateur radio. at least there, we have readiness drills, man public service events and have a proven track record (and that record is well documented).
I see no indication of such a record even existing for 11 meters and I seriously doubt anyone ever will. now, unless we get a whole new crowd down there that can behave and act in a reasonably competant and professional manner, I don't see it being anything other than the "Childrens Band".

>becuase fraud is a bad thing not if it's used for the greater good.

let's say you were to commit a fraud, but by commiting that fraud you would be saving the lives of innocent human beings.

would you call saving the lives of innocent human beings a bad thing? of course you wouldn't.

but you might, if you were SOOO idealistic that you would stop all fraud everywhere just because of some simplistic and antiquated "principle! (whatever that is?)"

think about it, idealism: it can KILL other innocent human beings.

THINK ABOUT IT!

Most Sincerely,

GodBuilt

No smallmouth bass in Florida except in a few spots up near the top of the state, but the record largemouths make up for it. In fact, the pros are predicting the next world-record to come from Fl, Tx or Ca., but the Ca. largemouth bass are all southern bass. Largemouth bass aren't native to Ca. at all.

When you're talking gamefish, I like to go after the sails, but Barracuda, Tarpon and Shark are always fun, too.

What about Wahoo, Cobia, King Mackerel, and Marlin?

OH, so it's ok with you if innocent people are brutally killed as long there's never a fraud committed ever again, right?

thousands of innocent people could die as long as YOUR irvory tower idea of "principles" is rigidly adhered to all ALL times, not matter what the circumstances.

how does it feel to have the blood of thousands...no, MILLIONS of innocent people on your hands, just because you think fraud is a bad thing?

just where the FUCK is your sense of priorities, huh, pal? isn't human life more important than some idiotic and vague idea of what's right and what's wrong?

people like you sicken me.

hey, why don't we just let little babies all over the world be hacked to death by roving bands of Republicans, Dark Canadians, and people who root for the evil St. Louis Rams, and thats OK, because no one's committing fraud tonight, no-sir-ee. oh YEAH, the world's a better place now, isn't it? death rides like a cheap whore on a black horse on the winds of all the world, but that's ok, because we've eliminated fraud for ever.

for shame, sir. i hope you're able to sleep tonight.

Most Sincerely Do I Condemn Your Evil and Wicked Ways,

GodBuilt, God's Angel of Sweet Revenge!

What about Wahoo, Cobia, King Mackerel, and Marlin?

Yea, the Cobia are good fishing, not such a great tasting fish (my personal opinion), Mackerel are good for catch and release (a little oily for my taste) and the Marlin are just starting to make somewhat of a comeback in the Gulf waters, but if they have an oil spill from the drilling planned for the future, we can kiss it all goodbye.

then you agree with me that fraud is ok if the alternative to fraud is the death of innocent people.

i'm glad you've decided to join the humaan race.

and haven't we ALL committed fraud before? you've never "enhanced" your resume, even just a little bit? of course you have! or in a job interview "enhanced" what you did at previous job so that you could improve your chances just a little bit in the interview? of course you have...we ALL have.

or, what if you had to out-and-out LIE so that it would help you to get a job, because by getting that job you could feed your family... would you lie?

you'd be a loser if you didn't lie in that situation.

so ok, fraud is bad, at times, but isn't the death of innocent people and the inability to take care of those who depend on you WORST than committing a fraud?

i rest my case.

most sincerely,

GodBuilt

Yeah, I don't care for Kingfish or Ling for the taste either, but they do fight for a fish of their size!

We have marlin here every summer along with the sails, usually 50 or more miles off the coast, but occasionally they come in closer when the blasted southeasterly wind subsides for a few days and the water clears a bit. Of course, it also takes the cooperation of the Mississippi river too...damned Yankee runoff polluting the Gulf!

The oil companies...we've not ever had a spill here from the rigs, but ships are another thing altogether. But then again, you use oil products, don't you? Share the risk with rest of us.

i must assume you mean "nor" here.

obviously you are one of those cowardly types who is unable to take a stand on anything. it is sad that our society is made up of such individuals. most sad.

>I do agree that you are ahrassing SoB

i must assume you mean "harassing" here.

and do tell me, how is it possible to "harass" someone in a medium where the reader is the absolute master of what he or she reads?

i tell you, it is NOT be possible to harass someone, or be harassed by anotther, in a usenet newsgroup. you and everyone else who comes here has the absolute power to control everything you read. everything. you and everyone else has the choice not to read what i post...

ergo, there is no such thing as harassment in usenet. none what so ever.

now you are free to argue with me on this point, but you will lose, because you simply have no argument. at all.

therefore, there is not harassment going on here.

i am pleased to be able to teach you this important truth.

most sincerely,

GodBuilt

no you don't have to assume that you choose to assume for some reason as you chose to take denoucing something as fraud as reason to be a kook

all of which are your choices and your problem

I really do not like your style of argument. If -- you say -- "if" there were a scenario where fraud saved lives wouldn't it be a good thing?
But that is like saying "if" fraud were a good thing wouldn't you have to admit it is a good thing? "If"? "If" you weren't so stupid you would illustrate by a realistic scenario, if indeed such were possible, that fraud could save lives. What realistic scenario would that be?

Okay, not my everyday identity, but it is very much my identity. "Fraud" would be pretending to be Renay ... that would be psychopathic ... and I think we are all happier I wouldn't do that.

i wasn't under the impression i needed to check with you on these things.

sometimes it is:

Girlfriend/Wife/Sig-Other: "honey, does this dress make me look fat?"

Guy: "NO way, baby!"

it's a good thing.

my logic is like the earth, sicky, there's no way around it.

you're just being childishly upset because i have defeated your argument and shown you to be rather lazy and stupid.

again, this is not my fault.

how am i being a "kook" if i have taken an interest in teaching you some manners? silly child.

and, using logic (something foreign to you, like spelling), if i am being a "kook," as you seem to claim, are you not equally (that means just as much as myself) being a "kook?"

the answer would be yes, kook.

logic. weren't the greeks cooler than all hell?

Yea, the Cobia are good fishing, not such a great tasting fish (my personal opinion), Mackerel are good for catch and release (a little oily for my taste) and the Marlin are just starting to make somewhat of a comeback in the Gulf waters, but if they have an oil spill from the drilling planned for the future, we can kiss it all goodbye.

first of all, as i have explained before, i am unable to "hassle" you or anyone else in usenet. it's simply impossible to do so. you have complete power over what you wish to read and respond to when you are in usenet, therefore it's impossible for me to harass you in any way.

how many times do i have to explain this to you?

>by pontifacting like an asshole etc

again, i remind you, if i am being a so-called "kook" (or as it's spelled amongst the Mongolids, "kok"), you are just as equally a "kook."

silly child, it's important to make logic your friend.

That isn't death, that is a fate worse than death. Now you might have started there in the first place, "What if it was a choice between fraud and a fate worse than death?" Then maybe more people would see your point.

Joking aside, I see no realistic scenario where it could only be a choice between fraud and death. As usual this means I win.

how? how is possible to "hassle" someone in usenet? i have proven beyond a shadow a doubt that it's not possible, but you are free to prove me... allow me a moment to laugh, wrong (another impossibility).

>you are just a kook and stpuid says the one who misspells the word "stupid."

if only you knew what the word "irony" meant.

if only.

i see. and how is "it" done, the "hassling?" i don't force you to look at my posts, i have no control over what you read, you have complete control over your actions, with absolutely no inteference from me what so ever.

so in what way am i forcing you to read my post? or any posts that you don't wish to read?

>so you cvna stop anytime you like how can i stop doing something that i'm not doing, your logic is nonexistant.

>or you can choose to go on hassling me for some imagianied sin but i'm not hassling you if you let me do "it." if i were to come over to your house and ask you if it were ok if i took your television set, and you said, "sure, go right ahead," and then gave me your television set, how would that be stealing? it wouldn't be.

you see? you have no logic here and you don't have a clue as to what you're saying.

but i am here to help you.

most sincerely,

GodBuilt

all i'm doing is responding to your posts. how is that "hassling" you? i put no gun to your head, or force you to respond, so there's no possible way i can hassle you if you choose to read and reply. i am completely innocent of doing anything. the problem lies with you, silly child.

most sincerely,

not at all. you insult yourself, i am merely facilitating your desire to do so.

and for my kindness you get all pissy.

>and barting me

how am i "barting" you? what exactly is "barting?"

>thinking person would reocnize that as >hassling,

so that i don't make any assumptions on my part, could you tell me what
"reocnize" means? thanks.

>posibliy even as ahrassing me but personaly I would go that >far but other might then don't, you shouldn't care what others think. besides, as i have taught you, there is no such thing as harassment in usenet. a person, such as yourself, can merely ignore everything i post and then they are never going to be harassed.

it's JUST that simple!

it always is.

it's the Zen of Usenet, silly child.

Most sincerely,

GodBuilt

Truly it is not his fault, Muster Mark.
As the late, Great j r sherman said (1:13-14), the stupid are too stupid to realise that they are stupid, therefore it is the duty of the smart to remaind the stupid that they are stupid.
So even you should be able to manage to see that it's not his fault that you are shown with every reply to be rather lazy and stupid.

Oh, no, no, no. Your sin is far from imaginary.
Stupidity is a summary capital offense.
And nobody has to lift a finger to impose sentence.
Indeed, we must routinely lift (and depress) all nine fingers in careful sequences to /warn/ you of the punishments for being stupid (which are numerous and severe).
It is not God Built's fault that you are too stupid to understand the nature of cause and effect.

I suspect that the person(s) behind this are snickering right now...

then there is the matter of the little post (supposedly by me) seeking online or in person activities of a sexual nature (It would be nice if someone could prove exactly who posted that). in any case, they are trying to use that as an "inconvenient tangental point" to drag the discussion off topic, only, it won't work. it has already been proven to be a forgery (in fact, a forgery of a forgery.....).

any way, to whom it may concern, bring it on. I am waiting.

it would appear, silly child, that it is you who is unclear on the concept. but i shall not give up, for i possess a gentle soul and the heart of a Saint.

or the soul of a Saint and the heart of a Rotarian.

or the soul of a Rotarian and the heart of a Jew For Jesus.

something like that...it's not as important, as long as i don't give up.

and i shall not.

most sincerely,

I installed a lot of F32T8 fixtures in my basement (24 in total) and have also had a lot of failures. The cheap ballasts used in these (Home Depot) fixtures have been the culprit.

Are you quite certain the tubes themselves are going bad?

Both of you are a disgrace to the amateur radio community. In my 40 plus years of ham radio involvement, I have never, ever, once seen such a disgusting display of bad judgment. I will make every effort to notify the FCC of this public posting as a means to challenge your privilege of holding a government broadcasting license. This license is a privilege and not a right, and your activities debase this privilege and the entire amateur radio community.

Cut it out !!!!!

this stops anytime Steve robeson k4yz wants it to stop and not before it is the RIGHT of memeber of the public to defend themselves against libel indeed the courts over the years have tended to rule that because I can defend myself in this admittedly ineffective mannerI have no recourse against the people like k4yz an extra class ham and VE

I have not misquoted Robeson nor have I commited the other crimes he charges complain to the FCC all you like but the comission in unable to displine Robeson for his behavior on the USENET and therefore I conclude would be unable to displine ME for defending myself

To be a little clearer, Steve Robeson and Roger "Woger Wabbit" Wiseman (or his follower/frogger/disciple) have been frogging (never forging, quite, though if you're not familiar with Mark's posts, you may get the impression that it's always Mark, since he sometimes munges his email addy) Mark Morgan, for at least the past six months or so, due to his having come out as a bisexual (clearly a rather brave thing to do, given the rampant hysterical homo/biphobia in rec.radio.*, which is rife with real-life stalkers) and because he made a joke about beer enemas. In the reply to Dennis, that was Wabbit all the way (Mark doesn't call himself

"Morkie", or talk about licking excrement), whereas the one to which I'm now replying is the original.

The combination of satirical irreverence and sense of justice that Bruce and Hoffman shared was the real spirit behind the Yippies--a term I coined to describe a phenomenon that already existed: an organic coalition of stoned hippies and political activists who engaged in such actions as throwing money on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, then explaining to reporters the meaning of that symbolism. Folksinger Phil Ochs summed it up: "A demonstration should turn you on, not turn you off." So when journalists link the Yippies with misleading bedfellows, at best it's careless shorthand; at worst it's deliberate demonization. Osama bin Laden wanted an aircraft to crash into the Pentagon. MARK, YA FLAMING FAGGOT, GET THE FUCK OVER YOURSELF, KNOW THAT YOU DON'T MATTER, GIVE UP THE CRUSADE THAT YOU DO AND REALIZE THAT THERE ARE THINGS BEYOND YOUR COMPUTER. THAT HAM RADIO DOES NOT WANT YOU. AND, FIND SOMETHING TO DO WITH YOURSELF THAT DOES NOT INVOLVE MASTURBATING ON USENET.

What kind of stupid dickhead (excuse the language, people like this make me angry) is wondering whether gays would want children. I myself am bisexual, and I want children. In fact, I have a lovely child who has my face and my wife's body. It's apart of evolution. Are you stupid?

the dickhead in question is most likely

AB8MQ
http://www.qrz.com/detail/AB8MQ

or even more likely K4YZ

http://www.qrz.com/detail/K4YZ

the latter has been enagage for the past 8 years in stalking and threatening ME Mark Morgan Robeson, K4YZ has also otried to oblackmail over my sexual orientation, and then grew enraged when in resp[nse I outed myself as bisexaul in one of the radio NG you have been crossposted to is the poster (who trying to forge an ID of mine) stupid? I don't know I do know he is apthological hatred of Bisexuals insisting mywife s male and that I am must a child molestors in not getting support in the NG I have been posting he trolls in various gruops to hook a someone like you in

What's even more amaZing is how so many of them can find the "Transmit" button despite having the IQ of a CB channel.

N.B.: Pleace to understand I'm not talking about the OTR force, here, who have an average IQ of 104.
Mommy's-basement DXers and CB-chasers have IQ's lower than lawyers, who average 97.

Aurora kinda' makes stations sound like they're talking underwater.
Generally, if a beam is pointed North it clears up the received audio a bit.

Hi Jay

It made stations sound warbled sorta like when someone has a low power

Hello A.E 352 and Steveo:

Ok that sounds like multi pathing to me! That is two or more signals of the same station arriving at the different times to the receiver.

In FM its really bad.

I once bought a FM Broadcast Band Directional Beam Antenna. I wanted to hear a FM Station over the hills in Santa Monica. It was KNAC heavy Rock n Roll Station, that no one could hear.

I installed a mast next to the side of the front of the house. And pointed the beam towards Santa Monica to hear KNAC. I could hear several stations on the same frequency and a lot of distortion. After turning the beam away from the Santa Monica, and towards the mountains behind my house KNAC came in loud and clear, and full quieting, even had the "Stereo" Light come on. But station was a disappointment.

http://www.qsl.net/n9zia/wireless/multipath.html

But I did learn about multi path.

I wonder if the radio signals are bouncing off the Aurora and having multipath?

I know I have heard local power stations have their signal bounce off a local atmosphere, causing back scatter, and those signals wernt strong enough to miltipath. I think.

It could have very well been the multi path you are describing Jay, it does make for some strange sounding audio for sure. Warble is the best way I can describe it.

I just got done putting up my beam about a half hour ago and sat down for some lunch, and of course the band is quiet over here for the time being.
Maybe we can stir 'em up later.

They really shouldn't do away with the CW requirement, imo. It keeps the mental midgets like Mark and Dogie Adair riding the short bus, right?

I don't mean to throw all ham operators under the bus, by no means. Some of them are the nicest people you will ever meet in person or on 11 meters.

Remember that exemption thing with the hams? I have two buddies that are extras' - local here and they'd like to hear me on 20 40 or 80 (160?) NOT TWO METERS THO!

The thing about it is they still use 11 meters as much as they use any of those bands. You do too, right?

I think this is a great thing for ham radio. You can now get some new blood into this hobby.

You're probably right, it should make it easier for the no codes to gain more HF privilege but that doesn't blow my hair back either. I may end up there after I pass 50, or not. I'm happy with my little shot down CB so far.

btw..i remember who you bought your radio from man. :)

Ding ding ding ding! You are correct, sir! In this farce, Velma is played by Max Varazslo who has brought us such merry characters as Thurgood Tucker, Lurlean Tucker, Bernadette Templeton and Norman Boyd.

I'm not worried about passing the no code test, and we have each others land line in case it's really pressing, right?

Get ready to hear me on 11M in your hometown as the band opens up. If you don't hear me directly, you'll hear people calling out my name. <g>

I'm getting ready for it again, because the last time was so much fun.

Hi again, Jay

It's been scary quiet over here so far but it's the same in my portable. I did make a couple three local contacts tho, and tried both the horizontal and vertical elements with good reports. The swr barely moves on either too..so far so good.. I need a band opening to really try it out.

I'll leave you know via the airwaves if it's really working, Jay.

Hello Mopar

I remember well when I had the monster antenna when I was a kid. I could reach Washington, D.C. from Rochester, NY running 65 watts in the middle of the day and all points in between. On 160 meters.

At night, that extended over most of the lower 48 states - running 25 watts on 160.

Between 80 and 20 and all bands in between, you're good for much of the world by picking your frequencies and time of day - unless the bands are really messed up by a big solar storm.

Heck, I ran a phone patch running 12 watts rms into the beam from Guam Island back to Rochester, NY. Until the guy said I was weak, at which point I threw on the afterburner. Nearly knocked his speaker off the shelf. Guam to Rochester has to be pushing the heck out of 10,000 miles .... and 12 watts would have been sufficient for a qso on ssb, just needed a titch more for the phone patch :D

For the most part, you really don't need a lot of power. Just pick the frequency, mode, and time appropriately.

I'll chat with you off-group via e-mail.

Jim

Hello Jay

Dunno if that's you in HRHG, but 6 meters was really wild, I guess, from what I'm hearing.

You need SSB (or possibly CW) to work it. Too much flutter otherwise. Too much multipath (and changing constantly at that) otherwise (for FM).

Why is it that there is more intelligent conversation and discussion of more interesting modes in the cb group than the ham group?

Curious minds and that :D

Yeah I must agree those are some most impressive kredentials, Jim, and you know you and I would get along just as well on 11 as we do via email. I'm not an amp junkie at all man, most times I only run about 80 watts on the peaks.

I'm more into a good antenna.

A few years back I was pointed straight north and talked to a fellow that sounded like he was underwater. I found out that he was 100 miles due east. I then pointed directly at him and could barely hear him. I returned the beam due north and talked to him via the aurora without a problem other than the underwater sound.

Hello Jim:

HRHG? Don't know what this is??!?.

I have built Interceptor 10K Antenna (left over tubing scraps) to the 6 meter band. I am not on a lot but once in a while make a contact.

Usually above 50.125 USB, something like 50.150 to 50.200 USB.

Yeah I guess a lot of the guys here have stopped replying to the goof balls here, as in other news groups. I read a few other news groups as well as this one.

If we stop replying to the trolls they will go away, just like in school when the trouble makers didn't get any attention, or got socked in the eye they went away.

Speaking of odd conditions and such. I was once went fishing in Las Vegas, Lake Mead area. One night after a great fish dinner, I hear one of the local guys from the Local Mojave Desert talking skip. His signal was strong enough to bounce off the atmosphere and back down into the Las Vegas area. Kind of wild I thought, thinking this was a back scatter signal. But me with a stock radio, and no microphone I could not reply.

I have also heard signals from places just a few hundred miles away, they came in slowly strong, then slowly went away. What was that?

End of an Era: FCC to Drop Morse Testing for All Amateur License Classes

NEWINGTON, CT, Dec 15, 2006 -- In an historic move, the FCC has acted to drop the Morse code requirement for all Amateur Radio license classes. The Commission today adopted, but hasn't yet released, the long-awaited Report and Order (R&O) in WT Docket 05-235, the "Morse code" proceeding. Also today, the FCC adopted an Order on Reconsideration in WT Docket 04-140 -- the "omnibus" proceeding -- modifying the Amateur Radio rules in response to an ARRL request to accommodate automatically controlled narrowband digital stations on 80 meters in the wake of rule changes that became effective today at 12:01 AM Eastern Time. The Commission said it will designate the 3585 to 3600 kHz frequency segment for such operations, although the segment will remain available for CW, RTTY and data as it has been. In a break from what's been the usual practice in Amateur Radio proceedings, the FCC only issued a public notice at or about the close of business today and not the actual Report & Order, so some details -- including the effective dates of the two orders -- remain uncertain. Currently, Amateur Radio applicants for General and higher class licenses have to pass a 5 WPM Morse code test to operate on HF. Today's R&O will eliminate that requirement all around.

"This change eliminates an unnecessary regulatory burden that may discourage current Amateur Radio operators from advancing their skills and participating more fully in the benefits of Amateur Radio," the FCC said. The ARRL had asked the FCC to retain the 5 WPM for Amateur Extra class applicants only. The FCC proposed earlier to drop the requirement across the board, however, and it held to that decision in today's R&O.

Perhaps more important, the FCC's action in WT Docket 05-235 appears to put all Technician licensees on an equal footing: Once the R&O goes into effect, holders of Technician class licenses will have equivalent HF privileges, whether or not they've passed the 5 WPM Element 1 Morse examination. The FCC said the R&O in the Morse code docket would eliminate a disparity in the operating privileges for the Technician and Technician Plus class licensees -- something the ARRL also has asked the Commission to correct following the release of its July 2005 Notice of Proposed Rule Making (NPRM) in WT Docket 05-235.

"With today's elimination of the Morse code exam requirements, the FCC concluded that the disparity between the operating privileges of Technician class licensees and Technician Plus class licensees should not be retained," the FCC said in its public notice. "Therefore, the FCC, in today's action, afforded Technician and Technician Plus licensees identical operating privileges."

Technician licensees without Element 1 credit (ie, Tech Plus licensees) currently have operating privileges on all amateur frequencies above 30 MHz. Tech Pluses or Technicians with Element 1 credit have limited HF privileges on 80, 40, 15 and 10 meters. Under the Part 97 rules the Commission proposed last year in its NPRM in WT Docket 05-235, current Technicians lacking Morse credit after the new rules went into effect would have had to upgrade to General to earn any HF privileges.

The wholesale elimination of a Morse code requirement for all license classes ends a longstanding national and international regulatory tradition in the requirements to gain access to Amateur Radio frequencies below 30 MHz. The first no-code license in the US was the Technician ticket, instituted in 1991. The question of whether or not to drop the Morse requirement altogether has been the subject of often-heated debate over the past several years, but the handwriting has been on the wall -- especially since the FCC instituted an across-the-board 5 WPM Morse requirement effective April 15, 2000, in the most-recent major Amateur Radio licensing restructuring (WT Docket 98-143).

The FCC said today's R&O in WT Docket 05-235 comports with revisions to the international Radio Regulations resulting from the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) World Radiocommunication Conference 2003 (WRC-03). At that gathering, delegates agreed to authorize each country to determine whether or not to require that applicants demonstrate Morse code proficiency in order to qualify for an Amateur Radio license with privileges on frequencies below 30 MHz.

The list of countries dropping the Morse requirement has been growing steadily since WRC-03. A number of countries, including Canada, the UK and several European nations, now no longer require applicants for an Amateur Radio license to pass a Morse code test to gain HF operating privileges. Following WRC-03, the FCC received several petitions for rule making asking it to eliminate the Morse requirement in the US.

Typically, the effective date of an FCC Order is 30 days after it appears in the Federal Register. If that's the case, the Morse requirement and the revised 80-meter segment for automatically controlled digital stations would likely not go into effect until late January or early February 2007. That's not clear from the public notice, however. The FCC can order its decision effective upon release.

The ARRL will provide any additional information on these important Part 97 rule revisions as it becomes available.

Yeah this was ah brewin for some time now.

Here is a link to US Amateur Radio Frequency Allocations.

http://www.arrl.org/FandES/field/regulations/allocate.html

Well I am getting my 80 thru 10 meter dipole ready to go. It needs a new run of coax. And will feed one of the towers in a shunt feed for 160 meters.

Great!

Hello Steveo:

OH Man, that would be 324 Feet tall, and 130 foot ground plane radials. WOW this is a little out of my league by several neighbor hoods and trailer parks, blocks.

But I am building a 20 meter Interceptor 10K, 5/8 wavelength ground plane antenna. I am needing a few parts and pieces that I need to order. Its way cheaper than driving into the Los Angles area, then having to stop by HRO and drop way too much money. Oh lets not for get the Bodaious Mexican Restaurant, with the High performance Marguerite's that makes you put shit back you didn''t steal!

The nut job (really a great guy!) down the road wants a 40 meter 5/8 wavelength elevated ground plane. At 80 feet high will need to use a 50 foot push up on a insulated tower. And use wire as the ground plane radials. Problem is he has the Doh Ray Me to do it.

Might just be easier to have a remote tuner on the 20 meter vertical and try that first.

Hello Jay

Can you make a 1/16 wave version? <g>

I'm in the middle of painting two bathrooms over here. That friggin honey-do list is never ending man. <wipes brow> This is supposed to be my off season!

TEH WAY OF THE K00K
Never learn from your mistakes.
Always practice your mistakes; you may get them right.
Always pick on those smarter and tougher than you.
Always believe that only you know the TRVTH.
Never allow logic or reason get in the way of a good k00k.
When being overwhelmed by logic and reason: k00ksuit!
If you are going to be wrong, do it at the top of your lungs.
When caught in a lie: LIE!
When in doubt: Order the Crab Won Ton
Plagiarism is your friend. Use it.
Whenever contradicted; morph, start calling people names, and make false accusations. Include the children of your target in your allegations, even if they don't have any.
(06-Jun-05) When nobody else will listen, post to your own fan group.
(06-Jun-05) Obviously, since you have your own fan group, this must mean that you have fans. Post prolifically to your fan group - you wouldn't want to disappoint them!

(10-May-2005)Everyone reads usenet. Approval here means approval everywhere.
Post numerous blank posts, or posts containing only a message id.
Post numerous copy&paste web articles from crackerpot websites.
Never forget to call kookologists "k00ks."
If there are several, call them "sockpuppets" too
When all else fails, accuse various and sundry kookologists of e-mailing viruses to you. This is a sure-fire method of garnering sympathy and ensuring that the General Public will always see things your way. An especially effective sub-strategy here is to accuse them of infecting you with the 'Sasser' worm via e-mail.
Quote notorious scientists or writers - it makes it look as if they approve the drivel you are writing!
(9-Jul-05) Anytime your computer is infected with a virus, bogged down by spyware, attacked over your internet connection, or otherwise suffers from preventable problems, government agencies are responsible and are trying to silence you and are monitoring your computer files.
Ignore all traffic signs and feel free to trespass, you don't have to obey any rules.
Scare your enemies with lawsuits, police escorts and whines.
Always back up your empty (albeit noisy) threats with phony LARTs, false police reports, and harassing letters to the FBI and other gubbermint agencies.
Be vigilant in your redundancy. The more you repeat yourself, the more likely others will believe you!
If you can't find anyone as crazy as yourself to support you in the flamewars you start with the normal population, create sock puppets and use anonymous remailers that shamelessly hang on every word you write.
(17-Mar-05) When dealing with law enforcement, remember that it is they who have the problem, not you. Be sure to inform them of this at every available opportunity, as they will surely appreciate your constructive criticism. Be sure to make them aware that YOU KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! ("The cops like that, when people know their rights. That way they don't have to read them to you on the way to the station." - George Carlin)
The more your fake personalities adulate you, the more respect you'll get!
When confronted with a reality that you don't like: Announce loudly that you are departing, never to return as long as there's an Internet. Come back in three or four days and claim you were drunk, hacked, abducted by alience, or forged. Alternately you can just not even mention your prior departure, and if anyone asks you about it, either ignore them or respond with something along the lines of "YOUR NOT THE BOSS OF ME! PLONK!" People really know you mean business then.
Always remain clueproof.
(20-Mar-05) Anyone who does not believe that you are the reincarnation of [$DEITY_OR_PROPHET] is obviously an infidel lacking in faith whose soul in in peril of everlasting damnation.
When responding to one line challenges, post paragraphs of rants and screed in response.

Incoherency is not a roadblock to poasting.
Neither is illiteracy.
Delusions poasted often enough become fact.
Claim you will destroy <insert newsfroup> for attacking you.
When spnaked, send cmsg for Fanboi newsfroup(s).
Find your Lame, Use your Lame, Be your Lame!
Post Edit when the TRVTH hurts.
Always sneck the offending newsfroups.
Always poast pictures of yourself so you can be admired in all your k00ky glory.
Always accuse others of the very acts you are guilty of.
Post lots of boasts about your high IQ and incredible talents.
(20-Mar-05) If you repeat a lie often enough, it becomes the truth.
Anybody who fails to understand this is engaged in a deliberate campaign of misinformation and character assassination.
Always <plonk> somebody just before replying the plonkee!
The k00k considers itself the most intelligent person in any conversation, possibly on the planet. Other people are benighted and ignorant, and have been waiting their whole lives for the k00k to rescue them from intellectual darkness.
Write a self-published book and claim it a success. Bonus points for comparing it to "Mein Kampf" and/or the Bible.
Declare yourself equal to a deity of your choice.
Claim that you've come from other planets.
Claim thousands of past lives.
Frothing complaints carry far more weight when you send them from "legal@" some domain.
Nothing strikes terror into the hearts of your detractors more than telling them that you're archiving their messages for possible use in the future.
Never forget that everyone else posting to Usenet is a paid disinformation agent looking to discredit you.
Usenet is governed by US law. If a poster in Romania killfiles you, he's obviously violating your 1st Amendment rights and can be sued.
Every news admin in the world hangs out in NANAU, and they're just dying to nuke the account of that meanyhead who just called you "fucknozzle". Drop 'em a line - that's what they're there for, after all.
AUK will be closed down. Just you wait and see.
They've nuked hundreds of accounts in the name of free speech and yours will be next.
The k00k will, without any trace of irony, lie, manipulate, impersonate, censor, and declare themselves powerful in ways ranging from the ability to have an account shut down to being God Herself, in order to convince people that they are not liars, manipulators, censors, or insane.
Abuse women while telling how many hundreds you've loved. Nevermind that you're one ugly motherfucker and that there were 30,000 femininas that thought you were a scumbag with bad teeth.
Remember that your ko0ky klaims are 'facts', and that 'facts' do not require proof.

Do not neglect to poast your responses to forums that the originator doesn't read. This will make the people in that forum very impressed with how you tear him to shreds without him being able to respond. They like it even better if you are off-topic for that forum.
Keep in mind that lack of evidence supporting your konspiracy theory actually _is_ evidence, of how effective the konspiracy is in hiding.

Satan wrote thru his servant Bill Baker:

> Max hates it when you figure out his little game.

Max isn't playing games any more. When he was they were gayo sex and cross-dressing games. I thought you approved of those. He loves Jesus now. Soon he'll be sharing the gospel with you. He speaks in tongues and can elucidate the Aramaic words of Our Lord. I can't wait to hear him blast fornication. That covers ALL forms of homosexuality.

> Sorry, I'd rather support our country instead.

President Bush was fairly elected to serve our country. That's exactly what he's doing...by stomping Arab ass over in Iraq...pardon my French. I hope he starts bombing Iran before they get a hold of the bomb and start using it against the Jews. That would be Armageddon right there.

> ...the latest in a long line of Max's characters.

I'm not one of Max's "characters." Max is one of our church's latest members. You're just mad because he left the Satanic sex church and revoked your membership before he found Jesus.

> We know. He did it the very first day you posted here.

No. He joined only a few weeks ago. Have you been smoking pot again? Are you a big fan of Jay Bakker? His new show is supposed to take up homosexuality next week. Apparently he's all for it. He'll do anything for money. His mother is going to turn on the tears again just for him. There has to be a good reason God afflicted her as much as He has. I think it's because she's so nice to the gayos. SICK!!!

TEH WAY OF THE K00K
Never learn from your mistakes.
Always practice your mistakes; you may get them right.
Always pick on those smarter and tougher than you.
Always believe that only you know the TRVTH.
Never allow logic or reason get in the way of a good k00k.
When being overwhelmed by logic and reason: k00ksuit!
If you are going to be wrong, do it at the top of your lungs.
When caught in a lie: LIE!
When in doubt: Order the Crab Won Ton
Plagiarism is your friend. Use it.
Whenever contradicted; morph, start calling people names, and make false accusations. Include the children of your target in your allegations, even if they don't have any.
(06-Jun-05) When nobody else will listen, post to your own fan group.
(06-Jun-05) Obviously, since you have your own fan group, this must mean that you have fans. Post prolifically to your fan group - you wouldn't want to disappoint them!
(10-May-2005)Everyone reads usenet. Approval here means approval everywhere.
Post numerous blank posts, or posts containing only a message id.
Post numerous copy&paste web articles from crackerpot websites.
Never forget to call kookologists "k00ks."

If there are several, call them "sockpuppets" too
When all else fails, accuse various and sundry kookologists of e-mailing viruses to you. This is a sure-fire method of garnering sympathy and ensuring that the General Public will always see things your way. An especially effective sub-strategy here is to accuse them of infecting you with the 'Sasser' worm via e-mail.
Quote notorious scientists or writers - it makes it look as if they approve the drivel you are writing!
(9-Jul-05) Anytime your computer is infected with a virus, bogged down by spyware, attacked over your internet connection, or otherwise suffers from preventable problems, government agencies are responsible and are trying to silence you and are monitoring your computer files.
Ignore all traffic signs and feel free to trespass, you don't have to obey any rules.
Scare your enemies with lawsuits, police escorts and whines.
Always back up your empty (albeit noisy) threats with phony LARTs, false police reports, and harassing letters to the FBI and other gubbermint agencies.
Be vigilant in your redundancy. The more you repeat yourself, the more likely others will believe you!
If you can't find anyone as crazy as yourself to support you in the flamewars you start with the normal population, create sock puppets and use anonymous remailers that shamelessly hang on every word you write.
(17-Mar-05) When dealing with law enforcement, remember that it is they who have the problem, not you. Be sure to inform them of this at every available opportunity, as they will surely appreciate your constructive criticism. Be sure to make them aware that YOU KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! ("The cops like that, when people know their rights. That way they don't have to read them to you on the way to the station." - George Carlin)
The more your fake personalities adulate you, the more respect you'll get!
When confronted with a reality that you don't like: Announce loudly that you are departing, never to return as long as there's an Internet. Come back in three or four days and claim you were drunk, hacked, abducted by alience, or forged. Alternately you can just not even mention your prior departure, and if anyone asks you about it, either ignore them or respond with something along the lines of "YOUR NOT THE BOSS OF ME! PLONK!" People really know you mean business then.
Always remain clueproof.
(20-Mar-05) Anyone who does not believe that you are the reincarnation of [$DEITY_OR_PROPHET] is obviously an infidel lacking in faith whose soul in in peril of everlasting damnation.
When responding to one line challenges, post paragraphs of rants and screed in response.
Incoherency is not a roadblock to poasting.
Neither is illiteracy.
Delusions poasted often enough become fact.
Claim you will destroy <insert newsfroup> for attacking you.
When spnaked, send cmsg for Fanboi newsfroup(s).
Find your Lame, Use your Lame, Be your Lame!

Post Edit when the TRVTH hurts.
Always sneck the offending newsfroups.
Always poast pictures of yourself so you can be admired in all your k00ky glory.
Always accuse others of the very acts you are guilty of.
Post lots of boasts about your high IQ and incredible talents.
(20-Mar-05) If you repeat a lie often enough, it becomes the truth.
Anybody who fails to understand this is engaged in a deliberate campaign of misinformation and character assassination.
Always <plonk> somebody just before replying the plonkee!
The k00k considers itself the most intelligent person in any conversation, possibly on the planet. Other people are benighted and ignorant, and have been waiting their whole lives for the k00k to rescue them from intellectual darkness.
Write a self-published book and claim it a success. Bonus points for comparing it to "Mein Kampf" and/or the Bible.
Declare yourself equal to a deity of your choice.
Claim that you've come from other planets.
Claim thousands of past lives.
Frothing complaints carry far more weight when you send them from "legal@" some domain.
Nothing strikes terror into the hearts of your detractors more than telling them that you're archiving their messages for possible use in the future.
Never forget that everyone else posting to Usenet is a paid disinformation agent looking to discredit you.
Usenet is governed by US law. If a poster in Romania killfiles you, he's obviously violating your 1st Amendment rights and can be sued.
Every news admin in the world hangs out in NANAU, and they're just dying to nuke the account of that meanyhead who just called you "fucknozzle". Drop 'em a line - that's what they're there for, after all.
AUK will be closed down. Just you wait and see.
They've nuked hundreds of accounts in the name of free speech and yours will be next.
The k00k will, without any trace of irony, lie, manipulate, impersonate, censor, and declare themselves powerful in ways ranging from the ability to have an account shut down to being God Herself, in order to convince people that they are not liars, manipulators, censors, or insane.
Abuse women while telling how many hundreds you've loved. Nevermind that you're one ugly motherfucker and that there were 30,000 femininas that thought you were a scumbag with bad teeth.
Remember that your ko0ky klaims are 'facts', and that 'facts' do not require proof.
Do not neglect to poast your responses to forums that the originator doesn't read. This will make the people in that forum very impressed with how you tear him to shreds without him being able to respond. They like it even better if you are off-topic for that forum.
Keep in mind that lack of evidence supporting your konspiracy theory actually _is_ evidence, of how effective the konspiracy is in hiding.

Really? Then how come they keep killing our soldiers with no end in

I say let them have their armageddon. If we develop our own let them kill each other.

104 posts, today, basicaly calling me a fraud becuase steve typoed badly and published a claim that I have eaten his shit of another mans genitals it is incredable that he keeps one digging in deeper and deepr

on this subject

I have never met Robeson there fore unles he is contending that some male lover of his got the shit and flew here for oral sex without ever bathing it is quite impoosible for Robeson mistaken claims which he also insists are true, as inists despite evedence that I am convicted sex offender tax cheat cheat welfare fraud and rapist

indeed I am becoming concerned that he may indeed snap and I reffering anyone reading my blog as part of investagating my possible death I refer you esp to RRAP and to this older entry in my blog http://kb9rqz.blogspot.com/2006/05/in-unlikely-event-of-my-death.html

Hello UKW:

No It didn't happen during the recent meteor shower.

I have seen some of the real nut cakes in the SUV's all loaded down with yagi beam antennas, trying to shoot some VHF & UHF DX off the rocket launches from Vandanburg. Man these SUV's are loaded with radio equipment, antennas, and I counted 7 external speakers. And many mic cords hanging down. And they where all on and loud!. Gives me a headache.

Jay in the Mojave

Its best to leave out Coockies and Milk on Christmas Eve.

Only past winners of Kook of the Month are eligible for KOTY, unfortunately. So far, no such individual as you mention has ever won KOTM, and in fact, I don't think any RRCB/RRAP regs have yet displayed a sufficiently entertaining (or frothy) degree of k00kiness as to come close to winning that award.

Never allow logic or reason get in the way of a good k00k.
When being overwhelmed by logic and reason: k00ksuit!
If you are going to be wrong, do it at the top of your lungs.
When caught in a lie: LIE!
When in doubt: Order the Crab Won Ton
Plagiarism is your friend. Use it.
Whenever contradicted; morph, start calling people names, and make false accusations. Include the children of your target in your allegations, even if they don't have any.
(06-Jun-05) When nobody else will listen, post to your own fan group.
(06-Jun-05) Obviously, since you have your own fan group, this must mean that you have fans. Post prolifically to your fan group - you wouldn't want to disappoint them!
(10-May-2005)Everyone reads usenet. Approval here means approval everywhere.
Post numerous blank posts, or posts containing only a message id.

Post numerous copy&paste web articles from crackerpot websites.
Never forget to call kookologists "k00ks."
If there are several, call them "sockpuppets" too
When all else fails, accuse various and sundry kookologists of e-mailing viruses to you. This is a sure-fire method of garnering sympathy and ensuring that the General Public will always see things your way. An especially effective sub-strategy here is to accuse them of infecting you with the 'Sasser' worm via e-mail.
Quote notorious scientists or writers - it makes it look as if they approve the drivel you are writing!
(9-Jul-05) Anytime your computer is infected with a virus, bogged down by spyware, attacked over your internet connection, or otherwise suffers from preventable problems, government agencies are responsible and are trying to silence you and are monitoring your computer files.
Ignore all traffic signs and feel free to trespass, you don't have to obey any rules.
Scare your enemies with lawsuits, police escorts and whines.
Always back up your empty (albeit noisy) threats with phony LARTs, false police reports, and harassing letters to the FBI and other gubbermint agencies.
Be vigilant in your redundancy. The more you repeat yourself, the more likely others will believe you!
If you can't find anyone as crazy as yourself to support you in the flamewars you start with the normal population, create sock puppets and use anonymous remailers that shamelessly hang on every word you write.
(17-Mar-05) When dealing with law enforcement, remember that it is they who have the problem, not you. Be sure to inform them of this at every available opportunity, as they will surely appreciate your constructive criticism. Be sure to make them aware that YOU KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! ("The cops like that, when people know their rights. That way they don't have to read them to you on the way to the station." - George Carlin)
The more your fake personalities adulate you, the more respect you'll get!
When confronted with a reality that you don't like: Announce loudly that you are departing, never to return as long as there's an Internet. Come back in three or four days and claim you were drunk, hacked, abducted by alience, or forged. Alternately you can just not even mention your prior departure, and if anyone asks you about it, either ignore them or respond with something along the lines of "YOUR NOT THE BOSS OF ME! PLONK!" People really know you mean business then.
Always remain clueproof.
(20-Mar-05) Anyone who does not believe that you are the reincarnation of [$DEITY_OR_PROPHET] is obviously an infidel lacking in faith whose soul in in peril of everlasting damnation.
When responding to one line challenges, post paragraphs of rants and screed in response.
Incoherency is not a roadblock to poasting.
Neither is illiteracy.
Delusions poasted often enough become fact.
Claim you will destroy <insert newsfroup> for attacking you.

When spnaked, send cmsg for Fanboi newsfroup(s).
Find your Lame, Use your Lame, Be your Lame!
Post Edit when the TRVTH hurts.
Always sneck the offending newsfroups.
Always poast pictures of yourself so you can be admired in all your k00ky glory.
Always accuse others of the very acts you are guilty of.
Post lots of boasts about your high IQ and incredible talents.
(20-Mar-05) If you repeat a lie often enough, it becomes the truth. Anybody who fails to understand this is engaged in a deliberate campaign of misinformation and character assassination.
Always <plonk> somebody just before replying the plonkee!
The k00k considers itself the most intelligent person in any conversation, possibly on the planet. Other people are benighted and ignorant, and have been waiting their whole lives for the k00k to rescue them from intellectual darkness.
Write a self-published book and claim it a success. Bonus points for comparing it to "Mein Kampf" and/or the Bible.
Declare yourself equal to a deity of your choice.
Claim that you've come from other planets.
Claim thousands of past lives.
Frothing complaints carry far more weight when you send them from "legal@" some domain.
Nothing strikes terror into the hearts of your detractors more than telling them that you're archiving their messages for possible use in the future.
Never forget that everyone else posting to Usenet is a paid disinformation agent looking to discredit you.
Usenet is governed by US law. If a poster in Romania killfiles you, he's obviously violating your 1st Amendment rights and can be sued.
Every news admin in the world hangs out in NANAU, and they're just dying to nuke the account of that meanyhead who just called you "fucknozzle". Drop 'em a line - that's what they're there for, after all.
AUK will be closed down. Just you wait and see.
They've nuked hundreds of accounts in the name of free speech and yours will be next.
The k00k will, without any trace of irony, lie, manipulate, impersonate, censor, and declare themselves powerful in ways ranging from the ability to have an account shut down to being God Herself, in order to convince people that they are not liars, manipulators, censors, or insane.
Abuse women while telling how many hundreds you've loved. Nevermind that you're one ugly motherfucker and that there were 30,000 femininas that thought you were a scumbag with bad teeth.
Remember that your ko0ky klaims are 'facts', and that 'facts' do not require proof.
Do not neglect to poast your responses to forums that the originator doesn't read. This will make the people in that forum very impressed with how you tear him to shreds without him being able to respond. They like it even better if you are off-topic for that forum.
Keep in mind that lack of evidence supporting your konspiracy theory actually _is_ evidence, of how effective the konspiracy is in hiding.

(06-Oct-05) When spanked, always retreat to the safety of the Ad Hominem.
(04-Aug-2005) When spanked mercilessly for days on end, proving with each poast just what an illiterate and ignorant fool you are, ALWAYS claim ownership of [person(s),froup(s)]. This works on so many levels. It inspires dread in your opponents that they will no longer be able to poast in their home froup and that they will eventually have to pay rent, to name just two.
Any problems with your poasts are the fault of the konspirators, who are trying to stop you from preventing the extinction of humanity.
Konspiracies that are able to subvert whole governments are always unable to silence konspiracy ko0ks.
The entire United States government is willing to spend millions of dollars for the sole purpose of harassing you.
Hollywood is making movies based on your personal life.
Do not consult psychiatrists or other mental health professionals. They are part of the konspiracy, and will sedate you and lock you away and keep you drugged if you tell them the truth.
Numerology and Astrology are respectable sciences and are useful for proving your case.
Everyone is Tim Hill, or David Green, or...
There is a fine line between trolling and kookery. Find that line and cross it repeatedly. When you are killfiled and/or LARTed for net.abuse as a result, claim victory. If you lose multiple accounts, this merely proves that you are indeed a world-class troll, with a black-belt in manipulation.
If you respond to every post someone else makes, they're obsessed. If they respond to less than 1% of your posts, they're even more obsessed.
Publishing people's real names, addresses, and phone numbers when there's no other way for you to come out of a flamewar with any dignity is cool, and proves that you are a master of secret internet information stores, and absolutely not to be fucked with.
Everyone is out to get you. You can put a stop to this by telling everyone that they're out to get you at every available opportunity.
You are the only sane one.
Those that give you a hard time about morally bankrupt things you yourself admit to are just persecutioners of the new inquisition.
Yelling in all caps and cursing at your detractors is debate. Your detractors laughing at you with sarcastic remarks is obvious anger and jealousy.
If doing something results in the loss of your account, legal hassles, or blunt trauma injury, do it again. It always works better the second time.
Asterisks, lots and lots of Asterisks.
Poking holes in kookscreed is stalking, and is a felony.
K00ks LOVE to "connect the dots". They are, of course, dots that only the k00k can see.
"They laughed at Einstein, too!"

And further retelling of same is yet another lie.

> stop this whining and face facts you are the one that is sick with What's an "obesstion"?

If you meant OBSESSION, then you're talking to yourself since YOU keep requoting it over and over and using that word blatantly.

> the ruth is you are truly MAD robeson get help

The 'ruth" is...?!?!

I don't know anyone named Ruth in my family.

You mean your BENEFIT...?!?!

I keep hoping that you'll wake up and realize what a fool you're making of yourself one day. One can always hope.

What is "cyvervandalism"...?!?!

The only thing you ever serviced in the military was a drunk soldier through a knothole in the latrine.

How many of your high powered linears are already ready for the 10-12-15-17-20+ meter bands?

Think there will be a big influx of truckers to the ham bands, or will they stay put? According to some hams, there is so much hero worship of them, you chicken banders are just watering at the mouth to get on amateur HF's. What do you say?

well i consider him an idoit but occasionaly a useful but to adress your orginal question I doubt many Cber will move to ham HF a few may expand their operationes to Ham HF but moost of those will be like me in the snse that they already have Tech licenses some few of those cber runing their now May decide to go legit but I suspect that would take the fun out of operating there for most of

Yeah, when I was a kid, I got a kick out of playing pirates. Cops and robbers was another fun game. King of the hill, yet another. Cowboys and indians wasn't bad either. Perhaps my favorite was knights saving damsels in distress, perhaps the truckers just play a grown up version ...

You are the one who claimed to enjoy being raped, Marqueer.

BTW, what happened to your statement that if they drop the code you were out of here for good? Looks like you lied again!

Whew!

Finally, the code requirement is going away.

Now we can start working towards only one license class. One that doesn't separate those who know more and those who know less. After all, look how it hurts the self esteem of those technician class licensees.

And then, when we have only one license class that permits all privileges, then we can work towards removing the written testing requirement, given the state of store bought equipment these days.

And then, finally, getting a ham license will be merely filling out a form, writing a check, and then mailing it in.

And then, finally, the true end state, no license requirement at all.

Breaker breaker 14.230, there, good buddy! You got yer ears on?

ah yes more tech bashing

although I agree a one class license would be ideal not sure if it a pratical

marqueer says he will no longer post on usenet when "it" can sign "AE" after "it's" call.

lets see.....what would that mean?

no more fucking with yz and insulting his family.

no more fucking with roger.

no more fucking with the cb group.

no more fucking with the shortwave group.

etc.etc.etc.etc.etc.etc.

i doubt the faggot will be leaving anytime soon........that little wormy queer is addicted to to his faggotry.

Why yes, yes I do chat with them. And, in the central valley, ch 17 is in vogue, stupid-ass.

And, although I have chatted with them on their modified 10m ham equip.
many DO USE FROM THEIR HOMES OR DISPATCHERS USE, I most often chat 'em on the road to pass the time. Chat up a lot of hookers too!

If it's in such vogue, why would they want to go on the ham bands? Better yet, why would they spend the couple hundred dollars on a HF rig? Duh.

Bullshit. Most of them are done with CB at the end of the day. I drive about 50,000 miles per year in my car, and speak to them quite often. I am not park on the couch during the day, like you are. Your a fucking liar.

I am a software engineer, my couch is my keyboard idiot, unlike you--I have a job I love and am paid well.

And, I don't think you drive 50,000 miles in a car, I think you rack up tons of mileage though--in your garbage truck which provides such an ignorant slob as you employment. Your a fucking-idiot!

face it not everyone thinks you did not type a claim that I eat your shit (or words to that effect

when you claimed every body you added another lie

you add lie on top of lie steve just you lied lied and claimed my wife is male you lied in claimed I was a rapist, that my father was rapist,that I am child molestor, welfare fraud tax cheat high school dropp

a new today that BB lied about his understanding of your words

BTW stev I can cut and paste too I will thank you for helping me kill the time till the densit sees me sending you forgeries does not help robeson btw the more you refuse the more new threads

no steve I am justing trying to help you the error of your ways

5002. Returning to the 11 meter hobby :)

I am interested in returning to this hobby after many years out.

In this time I have tried to get interested in taking the ham ticket but too many of the attitudes are stuffy and I find the contacts I used to make on SSB on 11 meters a lot more enjoyable.

I might add that some of the 11 meter dxer operators could teach a thing or two to the hams about operating and general friendliness and basic politeness.

I am off restricted space for aerials and I am thinking of a loft dipole.

Are there any other aerials, loft mounted new on the market that give good performance on 11 meter SSB , I am not aware of.

I was last on the air at the end of 1986 on 11 meters and wish to rejoin.

I have been disillusioned with wanting to become a radio amateur due to attitudes amongst the stuffed shirts !!!

There are never any decent QSO's as I had back in the day.

As stated I am returning to the hobby.

I wonder if there are any pitfalls to a converted 10 meter radio operating on 11 meters?

(wooooshhhhhhh the hams come out and make cheap jokes no doubt lol)

I have heard pronlems about the new cobra 2000 and wandering frequency

Is this true, and whats people opinions on the Superstar 3900 Multimode?

Well... that primarily depends on the feed for the TVs in question. If they have a good strong signal (such as cable) then the internal AGC gain will be low in the TV... reducing the chance for outside interference. The worst case is a TV with a snowy picture to start with. In this the condition the internal AGC is max'd out... and it'll puull in everything!

Well, you know there bubba, let me give you a little dose of reality.

I've never made a DIME off that site, at all, as of yet.

That site, nor my Ministry has NEVER EVER been about money, at all, ever, end of discussion.

Only reason I added that link was because of the Churches that are listed there.

I only added that link because someone expressed desire to support me.
and after I went through all the trouble to put that Paypal link on there, they never sent a dime.

So, next time you spew from your pothole, make sure you know what it is you are talking about, first.

Yes, I am a Christian, Yes, I am a Baptist, Yes, I am a Fundamentalist, and Yes, I am Studying to be a Minister of the Gospel and I'm proud of it.

Likewise, Yes, I know, I've made some serious mistakes in my life. One major one was backsliding away from the Lord Jesus and getting involved in all the crap I was involved in, in the early 1990's.

I've read some of my old posts in here, when I'd come in here drunk off my tail and rant and rave and act like an idiot fool. and I just shake my head and go, "yup, that was me."

Another one of the biggest mistakes I ever made was getting into the business of radios and such. I'm no salesman. In fact, I was ABSOLUTE IDIOT for thinking I could get rich or do will, money-wise, in this business.

I've come a long way since then. and that's why I hardly ever post in here.

So, I'll just tell you guys this.... You all hardly even know me. only thing you know about me, is what you've seen in here. try contacting me sometime. and you'll see what I mean. Better yet, contact John Sheets, N8QGC in Georgia. and ask him what kind of person I am.

So, to you judgemental types, I will be praying for you.

God Bless and Thanks for reading:

Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. (Matthew 5:13-16 KJV)

Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust. For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same? And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so? Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect. (Matthew 5:43-48 KJV)

But I say unto you which hear, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you, Bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you. And unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other; and him that taketh away thy cloke forbid not to take thy coat also. Give to every man that asketh of thee; and of him that taketh away thy goods ask them not again. And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. For if ye love them which love you, what thank have ye? for sinners also love those that love them. And if ye do good to them which do good to you, what thank have ye? for sinners also do even the same. And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners, to receive as much again. But love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be the children of the Highest: for he is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil.

(Luke 6:27-35 KJV)

Hello. I'm Bill Crowell, W6WBJ, and I've been a ham for 47 years now. I'm a good operator, and I'm here to tell you that Riley Hollingsworth is full of shit. He HAS NOT designated my renewal application for a hearing; he just wanted to defame my by trying to make everyone THINK he had done so. If you carefully read the warning notice which he sent me, you'll note that it says, in pertinent part:

"the issue of renewal of your license has been referred for designation of a hearing"

What this means is:

(1) it hasn't been designated for a hearing yet. It's merely been "referred" for such a designation. No hearing date has been set, nor is it clear that one will EVER be set.

(2) "referred for designation" simply means that Riley the bullshit artist has asked his superiors for permission to take my case to a hearing. It is by no means clear that they will grant his request. Hearings are expensive, and there is no reason to take me to a hearing because I've done nothing wrong. Indeed, judging by the passage of time since he sent me my warning notice, with no hearing deisgnation order yet issued, it looks increasingly unlikely that such permission has been granted.

What we have here, gentlemen, is another example of Riley Hollywood pulling the wool over your eyse by trying to make it appear that he is taking me to a hearing, when in fact he has not done so. You have been used. Abused. When are you going to wake up to what a dirty son of a bitch old Riley is?

Nobody would be jealous of you chukkee...we'll just make sure to trot out your filthy and threatening posts so your religious pals can see them, Just like when you were getting all Jesus'd up on the newsgroups.

We know you need to belong to something, so why not go back to that Hopeless Chumps school your mom paid for? Maybe they would let you into the music ministry, if you got on your knees again! LOL!!!!

Since I dont pray to God but rather talk to him on a continuing basis I'll put a good word in for you considering mental health issues are one of his concerns. LOL...

Wow, what amazing insights from a code writing wench. Let me guess, Linux or maybe C++ or god forbid a real basic proffesional.

"You never asked someone who goes into areas of the internet that are

I guess lots of people just don't watch dateline or read stories much.
Why don;t you go to pervertedjustice,com and see what they do. They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they lied to membners of the public.

They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they posed as an underage person and agreed to do all sorts of sex acts wioth adult males, and they are adults posing as teenager themselves. They make themsleves into liars by falsely impersonating underage persons and by not fuilfilling the words they tell the victims online in their chats. Why don't you read it where they tell these victims of their deceit about how they have been with grown men and such? Why don't you read it where they say, "That would be cool." after someone makes an advance towards an adult who is posing as a teenager? And, where they agree to meet the person, etc.
Lost control, didn't you?
Is that why you feel as if you need to lie so much now? I see where lots of these false impersonation games are not sticking. They feel as if they can lie and then order the victims to get counseling in the gayblade, governmental, pro-choice tax leech counseling centers. They are doing nothing more than usury and fraud in many cases." -- Wentzky almost comes out of the closet as a pedo/ephebophile in MID: <H%%Eg.28916$Uq1.22411@bignews6.bellsouth.net>

The FCC has affirmed a $21,000 Forfeiture Order to Wesley Noe, doing business as GI Joe's Radio Electronics and GI Joe's CB Radio. This, for willfully and repeatedly violating the Commission's Rules by offering for sale non-certified Citizens Band transceivers and external RF power amplifiers.

On April 19, 2006, the Detroit Office issued a Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture to Noe after finding these items for sale on the company's website. In his reply, the Richmond, Kentucky, supplier did not dispute the findings, but requested a cancellation or reduction based on an inability to pay. In support of the request, the company submitted its federal income tax returns as required by the regulatory agency.

After reviewing this claim and supporting documentation, the FCC found that a cancellation or reduction of the forfeiture based on an inability to pay is not warranted. Noe was given the usual 30 days from the December 11th release of the order to pay or to file a further appeal. (FCC)

Looking at an Icom Band limits chart, you can essentially operate CW anywhere (if you are an extra) from 14 MHz to 14.350 MHz. There are SSB/SSTV/Fax limitations, but it would seem that CW may be used anywhere

Spend less time whining in on usenet and more time studying to pass a license exam, and you'll be able to DX all you want. Shoving a microphone in your face isn't a right. It's a privledge. Get off your keyboard and go earn it.

And please stop crossposting this crap to the DX newsgroup.

-Amateurs can not be tested for discipline or work ethic
-or motivation. If thats the remaining rational for CW
-testing, then the government has no basis for keeping
-it as a requirement.

Amateurs CAN NOT or SHOULD NOT? Certainly they CAN be tested.
Why doesn't the government have any basis for keeping the requirement if it is only for testing discipline? Please give a real, rational answer.

->Yes I know that there are lots of
->Extra Class hams who blow it, just read QST.
-Exactly.

Yes, and last year nine people received NALs here in my area. Of those nine Amateurs six were Tech, one was Tech+, one was General and one was Advanced. Five of them were licensed less than a year and one had been a ham FIFTEEN years (the General). Most were for malicious interference on a repeater. Two of the Techs and the General were caught using their ham gear on frequencies outside the amateur bands. I think the Advanced was NALed for not identifying and interfering with an HF net.

I think

we also had a Novice NALed for using excessive power but he was just "slapped"
and nothing else came of it. So the CW test won't prevent one from being an idiot on the air but look at the ratio of no-code tested to code tested NALs.

<snip>

->No a dislike of CW doesn't make one lazy but wanting to have the same privileges
->of one who has taken the CW test without taking it is laziness and/or

->gimme something for nothing.
-Based on that logic, we should still be testing for vacuum
-tube theory as part of the theory testing.

I see no problem with a few questions on tube theory. There are many applications
where solid state is not yet practical or still extremely expensive.
Have you seen the price on a 1.5KW solid state amp vs. the price on a tube one? Have you even seen a 1.5KW solid state amp? One of our local radio stations' auxillary transmitter is a 2KW solid state LF amp. It ran in the neighborhood of $9K, but it is a "commercial" amp which tripples the price anyway. As long as tubes have a place in Amateur Radio operations their theory should be tested.

-><retesting agreements snipped>
->-...that there are deficiencies in the written tests does NOT justify

written
->tests need to be changed AND the code tests need to stay. I think it should
->be back to unpublished tests and one minute solid copy.
-Of what benefit would one minute solid copy testing
-gain anyone?

I'll answer your question with a question -- what is the harm? Most anyone with minimal copying skills can copy enough CW to pass a 10 question test but you have to really master CW to be able to pass a minute or so perfectly.

Do we want minimally qualified individuals or well qualified individuals?
This applies to anything, not just CW testing. If the written "tests" were not published I know that those passing the tests would be much more qualified to be Amateur Radio
operators than those who are passing them today.
But then who's the government to tell us who is qualified and who isn't? :-/

->-> -> At least CW requires some work and effort to do well.
->-> -

->-> So tell me Carl what's wrong with a little "work ethic?" There are lots
->-> of privileges that require work to access. Most of which ARE imposed by
->-> the government at various levels.
-Such as?

See below. -- plumber, electrician....

->-Name one ... the government requires licensing for many trade/professions
->-but in most cases they just require you to pass a test of knowledge in the
->-area ... they don't care if you worked years or speed-read the

->-the way in the door or if you never read it ... as long as you pass the test,
->-you get the license. So it's not a question of demanding work ...
it's a ->-question of demonstrating a specified level of technical knowledge by passing
->-the test ... period.
->I'll name several --

->Plumber requires several years apprenticeship before licensing
->Electrician same as plumber
-Actually, these trades vary greatly from state to state. Many -states require only the license as demonstrated by passing a test,
-no apprenticeship needed. In any case... passing a CW test
-is not at all similar to an apprenticeship.

I never said it was. The original question from Carl (above) was about government imposing "work" on those who want to be in a trade as a condition of licensing. I provided several, and yes they have nothing to do with ham radio but my point was made. Government DOES post

"work ethic" type situations as a condition of licensing.

->Doctor several years residency before licensing
->Dentist same as doctor
->Vet same as doctor
-Any comparison to the art of medicine with -an amateur radio license is certainly a far fetched
-analogy.

There was no comparison to Amateur Radio, you are reading things into my answers to make them non sequitur. The answers, as I explained above, were in response to Carl's assertion that the government doesn't pose "work ethic" situations as a condition of licensing -- it does.

->Some have called it indentured servitude but it is necessary to insure
->qualified persons in practice. Please don't bring up the argument ->that CW testing means nothing towards technical competence. I agree that
->it doesn't but it is part of the rules that the government chooses to

-And the rules can be changed, have been changed and -will change again. Do you dispute the right of those that -wish to foster such change to make their case, spread the -message, etc?

I agree that the rules have been changed and will change and we have the right to change them. But change for the sake of change is rarely good. Relaxing the rules is rarely a good change.

->-> The first autombile in Wilson county (my county) was in 1902. The

->No the basic principles haven't changed only the methods of transmission
->and reception. The basic principles of the internal combustion engine
->haven't changed only the method of fuel delivery, mixture and burning.
-Any comparison to the internal combustion engine is -also bogus. Today the internal combustion engine is still
-the mass mover of people, that can't be said for CW
-as being anything but a minor communication mode.
-THAT is why the testing is no longer relavent.

There you go again. The internal combustion engine has nothing to do with Amateur Radio. The analogy was, again, to show Carl that just because something has been around for a very long time doesn't make it "out of date." You are very good at reading into things.

->-> So since the FCC Part 97 requires that an amateur operator be technically ->-> competent it can't require that he be proficient in CW also? Why
one
->-> and not the other? (Real answer Carl)
->-Because one is relevant in today's world and the other isn't. In the
->-absence of a compelling reason to require Morse (which ceased to exist
->-decades ago) the "requirement" should be dropped.
->It's only irrelevant if you choose to make it so. Thousands, if not ->hundreds of thousands, of radio amateurs around the world use it regularly.
->It still saves lives Carl.
-When was the last time it saved a life?

It saved my life and the life of a young girl named Shelly. I won't give all the details again because I have already explained it to Carl. We were stranded

in the middle of a flooded river while I was in the midst of a rescue of a group of high-school kids at a flooded campsite. We were washed into the river
by a large swell and swept several hundred yards down stream which destroyed the speaker and microphone on my HT. I had to use CW to give our location using the touch-tone pad. A few minutes after we were rescued the tree on which were stranded broke apart and was swept down stream.

-The fact that thousands
-use CW isn't a reason to mandate that everyone who wants to -be a ham must be able to use that mode. Thousands of hams -use Spanish yet we don't require an ability to know Spanish (or -any other language).

More hams use English than any other language too. Many countries require English to be taught in school but that's beside the point. But then why should we do what other countries are doing? Other countries are dropping the use of CW so why don't we? Is that a contradiction or what?

->-Because your arguments make no sense. Your "justifications" for keeping

"blow

-it" on the air than someone who knows Morse code?

Who is this person you keep throwing into your arguments?
I know a lot of fools who have PhDs in something or other, not to say that Dr. Williamson is a fool. Just having PhD after you name doesn't tell me that he is responsible and wouldn't blow it on the air. One of the hams in my area who received an NAL last year was a Tech with a PhD in physics. I'll agree that the CW test is not a perfect LID filter,

it's more like a sieve. Of course as you stated in other posts you have VEs where he could buy a license. Why don't you just have him do that?

Last year nine hams received NALs here in my area. Of those nine hams

-But Kevin, the people you listed could be dangerous to life and property
-if they are not properly trained in their fields. Can a doctor get a -waiver for his residency? The fact that there exists a code waiver is -proof positive that Morse code is not a requirement to be an HF ham.

You can't, to my knowledge, get a waver for CW if you want HF access.
If you are profoundly disabled the VE will come to you and you may be exempted from the CW test but you will only receive a Tech license.

-> it doesn't but it is part of the rules that the government chooses
to
-> post upon us if we wish to become Amateur Radio operators.
-Then I assume you have no objections to changing the rules which is all

-we are trying to accomplish.

But you want to change to make it easier, why does it need to be easier to become a ham?

-> It (CW) still saves lives Carl.
-Please provide some documented proof.

I have in other posts, read them. I won't waist bandwidth, in fact I'll
send the details directly to you.

-Would crash helmets for automobiles save lots more lives than Morse code?

It depends on where you live. In Queen Creek, AZ you probably don't need one. In Los Angeles, well....

-Do you wear one?

On my bike or on a horse, yes I do.

-Do you advocate mandatory laws for the wearing thereof?

On a bike (motorized or otherwise), yes.
-73, Cecil, W6RCA

Having a crash helmet law has nothing to do with having CW required for HF access. As you stated above in your ridicule of my analogy not requiring CW doesn't make ham radio more dangerous. Aren't we being a bit hypocritical Cecil?

Hans, he was making an implied point, all right. It is-- All hams who aren't into the chase to find the "most optimal mode" with the highest dB advantage over the last entrant are just not 'with' it and 'don't get' it. They believe we need a new "'tor-du-jour" for each and every "jour". Gary and crew won't rest easy until they have found the way to 'round-the-world maximum-throughput full-duplex zero-loss infinite-bandpass multi-modulation digital communications using an RF output of 0 dBm.

Heaven only knows what their challenge will be then.

Hey, I'm glad there are guys like that-the whole world benefits, but they needn't expect us all to be driven by their internal fires.

Meanwhile back in Hamradioland, most hams are still communicating and having large success, while having loads of fun at it......

Well maybee code should only be allowed with 1500 watt or higher powered transmitters on the 11 meter band!

Yes, one could say that, but it wouldn't make it true ...

Agreed ... different problem ... Morse testing is NOT the solution ...

It has no place in government regulations relative to access to public resources when the "work" require is irrelevant to the privileges granted. Even if the privilege were related to Morse testing, it wouldn't justify the government requiring "work" ... only knowledge would be a valid requirement, even if space aliens beamed it into your brain at night with no effort on your part, as long as you possessed the requisite, relevant knowledge, you should qualify for a license.

What is typical of the pro-code side is a bunch of ridiculous dogma that can't stand up to logic ... it is so ridiculous as to invite, even demand insult, just to show how ridiculous and absurd it truly
is ...

> No real intellectual argument so you have to insult me/us.

I and many others have given plenty of intelligent, intellectual arguments ... that you and your cronies are too dense to understand/see the validity of any of them or too narrow-minded to accept reality is YOUR problem, not mine ...

Was you CW test such an emotionally scarring ordeal that you remember it as a hazing ritual? It was only 5 words per minute Carl! That's a letter about every 2.5 seconds. Poor little Carl.

are -far and away more prevalent with the coded, even the "elite extra class"
-hams than the lowly no-coders ...

What I mean by "blow it" is a violation of the rules causing one to get caught.
Yes it happens all the time and yes extras are caught too. Last year we had about 15 people caught and MOST were no-code techs caught for malicious interference to a repeater. I think two were caught for using their ham

equipment out of band (cb). I can't remember what the extra was NALed

-> <retesting agreements snipped>
-Why? Does the idea of being retested with a decent theory test scare
-the hell out of you?

No it was because I agree with you Carl. Why are you so quick to attack?
I think that retesting periodically is a great idea but I can't think of a good implementation. I can't see retesting 70k+ hams every year. If every ham must be retested at each renewal that's what would happen.

What's your idea on this?

-> -...that there are deficiencies in the written tests does NOT

-Neither of those is likely to occur ... but that doesn't mean that the

-broken parts can't be fixed.

I agree. The whining will continue and the FCC will cave. The same thing happens with every other government agency. They always cave to the very vocal minority just to shut them up. It has happened with every other minority up to date and ham radio no-code is just one of the latest. I think that the only thing that will "save" CW testing is the fact that the FCC and congress have better things to do right now.

-> -I have even advocated retesting for continued technical competency
and
-"keeping
-> -up with the times" at renewal time. That seems to scare the hell out of -most
-> -rabid beepers.
->
-> I think that retesting is a wonderful idea but the implementation is
the
-major
-> problem. Can you imagine retesting 720K+ hams every 10 years? 70K+ each
-year?
-> While I'm all for it I can't think of a good implementation.
-It's really simple ... if you want to keep your ticket, you take the test.
-The VEs could even be allowed to increase their fees ... and it would be -REALLY great if we could get Congress to pass a law establishing a $100/year
-license fee, IF the funds were earmarked SOLELY for enforcement of ham rules
-and regulations in the ham bands.

Now there's a way to keep only the "elite" in ham radio. Who cares about technical competence, if you have the cash you can have the ticket.
Real good Carl.

-You want "commitment" to ham radio? Put your money where your mouth is!
-If you say you "can't afford" $100/year, you can't afford to be a ham.

I easily spend that (on average) each year just on equipment or parts to build equipment. There's that "if you got the cash you can be a ham" mentality. You sound like Cecil with his "buy the VE" mentality. I got into ham radio for less than $100 TOTAL, rigs, coax and antennas. I built my stuff (and still do for the most part). Besides, one good commercial rig will satisfy that $100/year for 20 years!

-> -> So tell me Carl what's wrong with a little "work ethic?" There are lots
-> -> of privileges that require work to access. Most of which ARE imposed by
-> -> the government at various levels.
->
-> -Name one ... the government requires licensing for many trade/professions
-> -but in most cases they just require you to pass a test of knowledge
in the
-> -area ... they don't care if you worked years or speed-read the manual on
the

-> -you get the license. So it's not a question of demanding work ...
it's a
-> -question of demonstrating a specified level of technical knowledge by

-> -the test ... period.
->
-> I'll name several --
-> Plumber requires several years apprenticeship before licensing
-> Electrician same as plumber
-> Doctor several years residency before licensing
-> Dentist same as doctor
-> Vet same as doctor
-All of those have some direct and profound impact on public safety
-and/or health ... to compare them to ham radio licensing is absurd
-in the extreme and you are intelligent enough to know that (though -not intellectually honest enough to admit it, apparently ...)

You sound like Cecil again. I NEVER said that plumbers and the like
have anything to do with ham radio. The analogy was in response to the statement that the government doesn't require a "work ethic" to get a license, I just named five. Then you and Cecil say that they have nothing to do with ham radio just to divert to another topic and invalidate my response.

I agree that they have nothing to do with ham radio but they have everything to do with the government requiring work and testing for licensing in many cases. Try to get a manicure license without training and testing, now there's one that has lots to do with "public safety."

-> Some have called it indentured servitude but it is necessary to insure
-> qualified persons in practice. Please don't bring up the argument -> that CW testing means nothing towards technical competence. I agree
that
-> it doesn't but it is part of the rules that the government chooses
to
-> post upon us if we wish to become Amateur Radio operators.

-And we have the absolute right to seek to have those rules changed.

Just because YOU don't want to do the work that the rules require.
Dumb
down the standard so that anyone (with the bucks) can qualify.

-> -Morse is still just beeping a carrier on and off and suffers from all of the -> -same disadvantages that it suffered from in the 1930's.
->
-> And to use your analogy -- we now have DSP filters for reception.
We now
-have
-> Direct Digital Synthsesis for transmission and reception. We now have
-digital
-> readouts on our transceivers. We use silicon/aluminum/arsenic alloys instead
-> of zinc/cerium/tungsten in a glass-vacuum envelope.
-Right ... it's a LOT like trying to shoehorn a couple of hundred horses
-under the hood of a car ... a fancy exterior and a few bells and whistles,
-but the foundation is still a straw-burner that produces lots of crap
and
-uses resources quite inefficiently.

But gets the job done. Try to drive that '69 Dodge Charger or that '98

Lexus up the side of a mountain.

-> Our local PBS-TV station (a non-profit organization)

-Right ... the constantly begging for money to advance all sorts
-of liberal welfare-state causes crowd ... reminds me of the -ARRL ... self-serving bureaucrats hiding behind a facade of -"good works" so they can beg for tax-free money instead of
-getting real jobs and doing something productive and worthwhile.

I wouldn't call four times a year for a week "constant." I do agree that many of their social issues are quite liberal but nowhere else can you find the educational value of PBS. Our local PBS affiliate offers 28 hours a week of National Geographic, NOVA, Nature and the

No, Kev ... and if you check, you will find that I have supported proposals that would, as a compromise, maintain a 5 wpm test for full HF access, at least until such time as the ITU treaty requirement for (some) demonstration of Morse proficiency is eliminated.

Why not?

It's time to renew, you go to a VE session, and take the renewal test.
If you pass, your license is renewed, if you fail you go back to square

one and see what you can qualify for ... what's wrong with that? I have a problem with folks who are "extras" but haven't a clue about how anything not built with tubes works. Stagnation is not something that should be tolerated, since our charter exhorts us to experiment, self-educate,

and
expand the SOTA.

That's NOT what I said ... I said you would have to pass the test to renew.
As a separate issue, I said the VEs could increase fees if necessary
and that I'd like to see an annual license fee with the funds dedicated to FCC enforcement of the rules. Why do you try to cast that in some "sinister"
light?

My point is that cheapskates who would whine about an annual license fee that would support better enforcement are not as "dedicated" to ham radio as they would have everyone think ...

The above 3 are not in the same league as the others because of the following paragraph:

Not really ... the government doesn't "require work" in order to prove one's willingness to submit to a "work ethic" standard, it demands a demonstration of the requisite knowledge/skill that is reasonably required for licensing in areas that have direct and profound impact on the public safety/health.

I find on PBS ...

Actually, Kev, it's the Communications Act of 1934, not 1935, and it's current status is "as amended" ... which means all of the changes that have been incorporated since them ...

It's available from the GPO ...

Yeah, like combining the CW and theory elements so that if you still passed an average of so much you pass? You could effectively guess at the CW portion and still pass. That's not testing Carl. You might as well eliminate it now, your proposal would be a waist of time for the VE to even grade the CW test.

There are an average of 3000 new hams tested each year. Can you imagine the workload increase if that were increased to 70000 hams? Get real Carl!

I quote "...and it would be REALLY great if we could get Congress to pass a law establishing a $100/year license fee...You want "commitment" to ham radio? Put your money where your mouth is! I you say you 'can't afford'
$100/year, you can't afford to be a ham."

So ham radio is for those who could afford to spend the $100 per year fee.
I don't think I spent $100 for the first TWO years I was a ham. I build my stuff from scratch. I was given my first rig (non working) and fixed it myself. I got on the air for maybe $20 including antennas. That can still be done today so there is NO justification for saying that if one cannot afford the $100 per year he has no business being a ham. You can't backpedal on this one Carl, here it is in black and white in your own words.

I have always thought that the FCC needs to be able to recover their costs of licensing but Congress feels otherwise. That's why we have the VE program, because the FCC can no longer afford to administer the tests themselves. I would have no problem with a testing fee that allowed the FCC to recover their costs.
I think that $10-$20 would be just fine but $1000 is ridiculous.

You're twisting the original question/answer again (still) Carl. But since you are so bent, let's just drop this part.

Sanitation has little to do with getting a manicurist's license. Yes
it is taught but it has more to do with "getting it right." It has lots
to do with the physiology of the nails as to not damage the nail structure

during the grooming process. My neighbor runs such a school.

Sure frogs don't remember when they had the tails!
CW was there first and CW is allowed anywhere on Ham bands not the other way around. I can live with no-coders in peace as a die hard CW op. but why from time to time this kind of stupid provocative comment appears here and there?

I never bother with anyone who does not like code. Just leave me alone and let me enjoy one aspect of our hobby of many.
If you have nothing else to do other than making this kind of comment, go try to learn code(for a change which will never happen, hi) or do/learn something useful for your life/career. If still nothing else, go to sleep or eat something and keep the mouth shut.

You gotta be joking. SSB big gunner's splatter is 1000% worse than key clicks. You can technically prove it. Are you guys using A0 mode over there? Or what kind of RX are you using? Ancient 0-V-2?
I always self monitor my signal thru my back up RX.

That's NOT what I said ... the 5 wpm CW test would still be separate.
Bill

I agree that it's a waste, 'cause there's no justification for it, but I was
and still am willing to compromise at 5 wpm for full HF access.

There are also upgrade tests, too, not just brand-new hams ... let the VEs
charge a slightly higher fee to "make it worth their while" ... why not?

No backpedaling necessary ... you want a "demonstration of commitment" via your Protestant Work Ethic Crap ("be a nice Stepford Ham and learn your code") I'm suggesting that we'd ALL be better off with a moderately stiff license fee ... IF the money went to equally stiff enforcement.

I said $100 per year ... not $1000 ... in other words about what you'd pay for dinner for two and a couple of drinks at a nice restaurant ... if ham
radio is not "worth" that to you, you're not very dedicated. If you can't afford that, your financial situation is such that you ought to be spending your time on a second job, or schooling/training to get a better one, rather than wasting time and spectrum calling CQ DX or CQ Contest.

Damned few people could legitimately not afford $100 per year for a ham license ... like I said above, if you're that poor, you really should be concentrating on improving your lot in life, not playing games on the radio ...

Dunno, John

All I know is that when I had a problem in the 60s with a high powered am guy that jumped on my qso, I changed to cw. We contined our chat for a good 45 minutes and couldn't even hear that kilowatt station. Nothing like a small bandwidth and filters to go along with it. That doesn't mean that the high power stations can't communicate; it means that they are very unlikely to bother a couple of cw stations, regardless of power. And the voice is not spread evenly. You can give a 50 to 1 power advantage away very easily. Even more, if the cw stations have the proper filtering.

At 40 - 50 words per minute, we weren't giving away much in terms of communications either LOL

Interesting thing is that cw is legal anywhere in the ham bands .... :D

Jim
ps -75 watts buried the guy with the kilowatt plus rig.
Go figure. 200 Hz bandwidth vs 3 KHz. He lost more than a 10 to 1 advantage. Old Mike (W2OY) sure was upset LOL

Hello Jay,

Just string up as much 10-12 gauge wire as you can. You'd be surprised what a couple of hundred feet of wire fed against ground can do.

I did this as a kid. Several hundred feet of 8 gauge wire fed against 5 eight foot ground rods and the house heating system (radiator ground). I was good for farther than I could receive in the daytime (a station in Washington, DC, had to relay to me through Buffalo, NY, that I was banging in well over S-9 at 1:00 PM!). In the evening, I was good for the lower 48.

Good to see you around in the newsgroup :D

Whether you are impressed or not is no concern of mine. Trash CB'ers?
Naaa mate! My amateur equip covers the cb band quite nicely, don't mind

Hello Mopar,

I agree with you; a good antenna helps on both ends of the circuit.

Heck, if you're ever in the Rochester area, give a call. I'll give you the phone number off-group and we can have a couple of cool 807s LOL :D

80 watts peak can do wonders when you use a good antenna. I know that for a fact; I used to run 25 watts am on 160 meters and was good for most of the lower 48 at night. The fools tried a lot of high power on 80 meters and didn't have the comms that I did with low power and a good antenna on 160.

And I was running AM for the most part ;)

Hello Jim:

Yes good to see a few of the good guys out there to. Hope all is well with you and your family.

What type od wire antenna where you using? A long wire.

I used a 300 foot long wire to a Collins ART13 on the Broadcast Band where I was a kid and didn't know better.

Jay in the Mojave

Merry Christmas.

Years ago I used to do 1750. Just before I gave away my equipment I took it out and loaded up an old AM broadcast antenna that was off the air. That was fun until the mall security came by and asked what I was doing..

It is true, plenty of worship from shamed hams (forced into internet anonymity) toward proud cb'ers who are also hams. Lids always lose.

As the Christmas season draws closer, many of us who have watched the war in Iraq have wondered how we could help or "make a difference" to the lives of some of our Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Marines who have been wounded in combat.

Although there are several military hospitals that take in the wounded, most find their way into Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Please take a minute to fill out a Christmas card and address it as follows:

A Recovering American Service Member
c/o Walter Reed Army Medical Center 6900 Georgia Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Perhaps a personal note of thanks and gratitude for the sacrifice they've made would be appropriate.

So much for YOUR claim that you don't go off-topic on "legitimate" posts.

And considering you keep insisting you're a "legitimate" Veteran, I would have thought that the topic of this ONE thread would have been immune to your babblings.

Silly me.

Reet but trying to impress this group with ones software knowledge isn't going to fly on this board knowing there are some real sharp op's here.

If you are asking if more op's will utilize the amateur freq's now that the code requirement has been abolished, well maybe, though not in numbers that will resurrect the hobby. Personally, I couldn't be arsed with anything other than 11 meters.

Regards, Jim.

Sad that you are too fucking stupid to know otherwise. I don't have anything against anyone's religion. I asked a question. As far as I can tell the word does not exist in your context.

Now, now, Wabbit. Frogging and harassing Mark for daring to be an out bisexual while posting to your favourite ham radio group is rather lame and imbecilic, don't you think? OTOH, how is Mark forging and harassing anyone? The only real k00kiness which he's displayed, AFAIK, is spamming his "gte hlep" messages last summer. You, however, _are_ a k00k. You're insanely obsessed with Mark because he came out instead of giving in to blackmail, and you're just as obsessed with Lloyd Davies and others for various other reasons.

"Consider that language a moment. 'Purposefully and materially supported hostilities against the United States' is in the eye of the beholder, and this administration has proven itself to be astonishingly impatient with criticism of any kind. The broad powers given to Bush by this legislation allow him to capture, indefinitely detain, and refuse a hearing to any American citizen who speaks out against Iraq or any other part of the so-called 'War on Terror.'

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. If you organize or join a public demonstration against Iraq, or against the administration, the same designation could befall you. One dark-comedy aspect of the legislation is that senators or House members who publicly disagree with Bush, criticize him, or organize investigations into his dealings could be placed under the same designation. In effect, Congress just gave Bush the power to lock them up." -- William Rivers Pitt

"It has become clear in recent months that a critical mass of the American people have seen through the lies of the Bush administration; with the president's polls at an historic low, growing resistance to the war Iraq, and the Democrats likely to take back the Congress in mid-term elections, the Bush administration is on the ropes. And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

An Anti-Semitic remark would have a derogatory nature to it. Mine didn't, Moron. I've met many Jews I like. You just love to be a victim, pussy.

Aw jeez, you aren't going to try 11m Class E, are you? You haven't even mastered the basic concept of linearity! I can see it now.....
Class E turned broadband by substituting the high-Q filter for a ferrite balun resulting in harmonics all the way up to UHF. Can you say "finger stock"?

Why would you put any energy into an audio speech processor?
You yourself have even discounted the usefulness of audio speech processing when commenting in the past about Lou Franklins model.
Are you trying to tell us that you can re-invent a more useful wheel?

You are absolutely right... I don't like Lou's design. His design clips the hell out of the audio signal... and then attempts to filter his way to sucess. Nice idea, but doesn't work well. However, I never said that other types of processing didn't work.. or weren't effective. Reinvent the wheel... no... Analog Devices has already taken care of that... I'm just using their IC chip in my design. The audio distortion is very low with this chip.

The stuffed shirts are few and far between, probably just as many in CB,just scan this newsgroup and tell me how fun they are. Great time to get into ham radio, the morse code requirements have been totally dropped.

They are not mutually exclusive, I do both and a lot of other things too.

I had a rat shack radio that worked very well, cant remember the model but it fit in the ash tray. Used it with a power mike and it sounded great.
Stay away from the mods and modders, that a good way to ruin a radio.

I see from the archives that this is an old and common theme (wish I'd seen it earlier), but last week I bought a Northpoint CBS1000 from Copper.

Long story short-- This is the first and LAST time I will ever deal with these unethical people. The radio is defective right out of the box (low audio, SSB off frequency, crummy insensitive receiver, and some other things), and they flatly refuse to exchange the radio. I don't care what their policy is-- it's not fair to the buyer to sell them something that doesn't work, and then just keep the money and make the poor consumer hash it out with the manufacturer.

I have a "policy" of my own, and so does my credit card company. This isn't over, Copper.

STAY AWAY FROM THESE PEOPLE AND THE MISINFORMATION FOUND ON THEIR FORUM.

If you purchased it with your credit card and havent paid the bill yet there isa a very good change you can force them to take it back. Most states have law pertaining to the merchanability of an object. This means it must at least operate out of the box or the seller has to take it back.

The distortion specs for the chip are given so the designer can decide whether the chip is good enough for the studio or stage; for CB radio it's overkill. Regardless, you missed the point once again: audio compression -IS- distortion. IOW, hook it up to a distortion meter, crank it up to 15:1, start talking and that needle will bounce all over the place. The chip also has some other issues that you really need to research first.

Want a decent compression circuit? Start with a bucket-brigade chip like the old SAD-1024. That way the control signal can be adjusted for a peak -before- it slams into the VCA. This eliminates the need for frequency compensation, which is a common problem with real-time and feedback types of compression circuits, including the SSM2166. It also allows you to get higher compression with no distortion from spurious harmonics that would otherwise need filtering. And the circuit has a couple other benefits: it reduces feedback which is great when some dope modifies his radio for talkback, and you can use the chip to make some really cool sound effects such as echo and reverb.

But I suppose it's easier to hack someone else's design than learn things for yourself, isn't it, Brian?

Hola companeros,

Soy Miguel de Valencia (Espaï¿½a). Es la primera vez que posteo aqui. Les cuento mi caso. Tengo una emisora de 27 Mghz y he comprado una antena de balcon (una Sirio).

La tengo bien regulada con lo que creo que no interfiero a ninguno de mis vecinos.

Hablando con otros aficionados me han dicho que las antenas de balcon no son legales. No tengo posibilidad de comprar una antena para ponerla en el tejado puesto que mis vecinos son un poco especiales y no me dejarian instalarla y he tenido que comprar esta antena de balcon. Mi pregunta es ï¿½son legales este tipo de antenas?. Les pregunto porque unos me dicen que SI, otros NO y sinceramente ya no se a quien hacer caso.

Si no saben o no quieren contestarme ... saben de alguna pagina donde pueda encontrar algun tipo de reglamentacion ?

Un saludo a todos. MIguel.

Muchas gracias.

A CBS 1000 stock radio with no power mic has low audio. Put a power mic on it, problem solved. The radio has a frequency display, not a frequency counter. Open the clarifier, problem solved. The radio can be fun with the proper mods, but a dog otherwise.

Hello Mopar,

The 30L1 is a nice amp. Had one on Guam for RTTY, the Henry 2-K for the more serious stuff on CW and SSB, and, of course, that infamous RCA on a rhombic with perhaps a good million watts erp for when the XO wanted a phone patch and props were terrible. He got his phone patch; all the big stateside stations were S-2, S-3 and we were punching through from 20 to 40 over 9 LOL. Dang, what a measly 50,000 output into a rhombic running probably 14 dB or more forward gain can do :))

I'm not George either, but:

I have a D104, D104M6, and DM452 I used with a 5 pin adapter, still low audio, SSB avg 2-3W on a Bird 43 into a dummy load. SSB xmit roughly 1500 Hz low on both USB and LSB. Signals that are S7-9 on a 30 year old stock Sears 23 channel and an old Cobra are S3-4 on the Northpoint, using same antenna (2 el quad), coax, and jumpers. Weaker signals that are S2-3 on the other radios do not move the S meter at all on the Northpoint, and are sometimes barely audible.

When a $15 Ebay special that has probably been in someone's garage for 25 years outperforms a new radio out of the box, that new radio has some problems. Mods should not be necessary to get a radio in line with factory specs, no matter who makes it.

There are a few issues here. Cherokee originally made the CBS 1000. Not sure if the name change to Northpoint came with many design changes. The Cherokee needed several mods just to bring it up to par. The Tomahawk was the knockoff or second version of the original Cherokee. The only difference between the two is the Cherokee has the weather band and the Tomahawk has FM.

>Mods should not be necessary to get a radio >in line with factory specs, no matter who

Nevertheless, this radio was manufactured with mods intended. A simple jumper mod will open up the radio's frequency capability giving you ten "bands" of coverage.
Consider what that Ebay special cost new back in the day and compare it to the cost of the Northpoint. The Northpoint costs less today than what most base radios did in the seventies. You get what you pay for.

Hello Jim

Dang, my lowly 30L1 would barely make being a driver on your strappin' Guam station! I'd have to hope my beam would bounce mother nature around and mud duck me up to compete with that!!

No argument there, on any point.

The Northpoint tech I spoke with was very nice and if I lose this I'll end up sending it to them to make it right.

My main beef is with Copper, if there are problems right out of the chute they should stand behind what they sell. The absolutely refused to do that, and were very snide about it. I'm glad I didn't buy anything any more expensive from them, I'd have been better off buying a Galaxy or something from the local Petro truck stop, at least they'd exchange it if there were a problem.

Copper will never see another dime of my money, and they won't keep what they have from me now if I can help it.

Now Frank... how could they allow a chip for studio or stage (as you put it) that had audible distortion. The answer... they couldn't. I'm talking harmonic distortion... not compression distortion... which you can't hear anyway. As far as your frequency compensation... I have no idea what you're talking about... but that's not surprising with all your techno-babble.

The answer... the chip is most often used for gates and CVAs, not compressors. Didn't I tell you to do your research?

> I'm >talking harmonic distortion... not compression distortion...

Like I tried to tell you before, harmonic distortion is a consequent of compression and doesn't go away with a magic chip.

> which you >can't hear anyway.

You most certainly -can- hear compression distortion. It saps the dynamics of the sound. How much dynamics is lost depends on the amount of compression.

> As far as your frequency compensation... I have no >idea what you're talking about...

Imagine my suprise.

> but that's not surprising with all >your techno-babble.

Well, here's some more techno-babble:

Real-time or feedback type compressors such as the SMM2166 use a comparator to create the control signal and results in a "knee" in the response curve. But any curve that has a knee is non-linear and results in harmonic distortion (same as "compression distortion" in your RF amps). Because the harmonics extend beyond the limit of your audio bandwidth you must therefore limit that distortion with filters. Since filters are non-linear with respect to frequency, and since audio is an extremely wideband application, some part of the loop (usually the preamp) must compensate for the diminishing high frequency response (yes, even when the audio is limited to 3kHz). That's called "frequency compensation" and is something that must be included in the design of any compression circuit (or amplifier). You can try to soften the knee by slowing the response time of the control signal, but that results in spikes at the output because some of the signal sneaks through during the time delay. So no matter what you do, distortion is just an inescapable limitation of these circuits. If you want to learn more on the subject, get an education.

And just to confuse you even more, there is another type of real-time compression that works -=MUCH=- better than anything else. The audio is modulated to RF, clipped, filtered, and then down-converted back to audio. The result is hard clipping with no harmonic distortion. Pretty slick, huh?

Dang, hello Mopar

Yep, I had intended to say that I wasn't familiar with radio regulations over there LOL.

The advice about looking for a Spanish site was on target, however LOL.

Gawd, and I was sober too :))

Perhaps I should send another response just to him. Maybe he got a chuckle out of that.

This stupid keyboard makes the same mistakes my other keyboards did. :D

Hello Jim

Haha, I've spewed more than a few ounces of coffee and brewski on my keyboards just from the jokes you've sent me over the last couple of years, Jim. You owe me at least one!

Rock on buddy.

I have noticed that most DJ's don't know squat about sound. Mixer dudes for bands are a different breed.

>Do you have a SSB 11 meter station anymore, Frank?

Absolutely. Right now I'm using that TRC-449 I got from Lance (where'd he go these days?). It's probably not as much fun as your rig but then I don't do DX on the CB. It just doesn't come in here very well.
Speaking of which, I took a trip to North Dakota a couple months ago.
As soon as I crossed the Rockies I heard the noise..... good god, it's crappier on every channel than the single worst case I can remember from Jacksonville, which was pretty noisy at times. How can anybody talk over there -without- power?

AN ACTUAL POST FROM CHUKKEE ON A CHRISTIAN GROUP!

Hi Freinds,

Yes, I am single, male, 33 years old, never married. and no kids.. and I know for a fact that God has called me to the ministry. (full time, no less...)

and the Big problem is...

I'm SINGLE!

One of the main problems is, when you feel God has called you to full-time ministry. and women hear this.... they usually run in the other direction! Most women want a man, that's got a GOOD PAYING full-time job! and most pastor's don't make that great of money. (Some do, but I'll leave the comment for a later date...) I want to do the Lord's will, But also, if God does send me a mate, I wanna be able to care for her too. Ya know? I dunno... it looks hopeless for me anyhow...

also, I dunno if I'm called to be a "pastor" of a Church, maybe someone who's a evangelist, traveling around spreading the Gospel to various places. being confined to one place, kinda isn't what I think I'm called to do.

and also, I really don't want any children, I waited too long for that, I don't wanna be 63 years old with a 18 year old kid... not my idea of a party, if you know what I mean...

I really don't know what to do. I wanna be married, But I want someone that is of "like-mindness"...

FYI... I am a KJV, Independent, Fundamental, Baptist. (of a northern tradition)

Thanks for reading...

Not very often. Sometimes catch the extreme east, but very rarely anything between the Rockies and the Mississippi. It's gotta be the mountains scattering the signal on a bounce or something like that, but I've never done the math so I'm just guessing.

> (good radio btw)

Generally yes, but after fixing a few I noticed it does have it's issues. Like that ribbon cable for the display that often goes bad and needs to be jumped. I'm just glad I could bring this one back from the brink, it was in pretty rough shape. Are you running anything else besides that furnace?

Bill, I respectfully disagree. Your strategy works with normal people.
Robesin isn't normal, and he'll only go away when his ISP is shut off.
He's the originator of the infamous "MARS >>>IS<<< Amareur Radio" himself wrapped up in the flag, so he's untouchable even if off-topic.

Bill...Welcome to the "logic" of Brian P Burke, N0IMD, hiding behind one of his "anonymous" screen names as "hot--ham-and-cheese"

Brian has participated, along with Leonard H Anderson (unlicensed) and Mark Morgan (KB9RQZ) in an anti-Amateur Radio tirades and has fallen flat on his face in one prognostication about Amateur Radio after another. He doesn't like it that I've been right.

One of Brain's favorite tactics is to take comments out-of-context and then try to represent them as the entire "gist" of the comments.

My "MARS >>>IS<<< AMATEUR RADIO" comment refered to the fact that the MARS program was staffed almost entirely by Amateur Radio licensees
and was in the very spirit of what it means to be an Amateur Radio licensee...He doesn't want to repeat THAT part since it wouldn't serve his purposes. (to try and embarrass me)

He also claims that I am repsonsible for the "excrement eating" thread. That's a blatant lie. His "friend", Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ, is SOLELY RESPONSIBLE for the authorship of those subject lines and use of profanity. You won't see my subject lines repeating it..

Brain, of course, has NEVER owned up to any one of his own misrepresentatiuons of Amateur Radio. He has made ludicrous claims that have failed to meet any statndard of proof or substance, including any one of several claims of having been a DX station, misrepresentations about MARS, RACES, ARES, and other poorly conceptualized opinions that have fallen by the wayside as failing the test of evidence.

Everyone's entitled to their opinions. Brain's opinions of me are obviously low as he, despite having allegedly been a veteran himself, are anti-veteran and anti-volunteer. I've rubbed his nose in one failed opinion after another.

So...There's my $0.02. Do with it as you will, but I'd take a BIG grain of salt with any traffic coming from "hot-ham-and-cheese", as you are welcome to do with mine.

You're right... your response is nothing but techno babble. You need to read the complete data sheet for the SSM2166 (http://www.analog.com/UploadedFiles/Data_Sheets/SSM2166.pdf). It faithfully reproduces an audio sinewave... but has an AGC. The harmonic dostortion is less than 1% according to the spec. So far, my new design is working well... and has constant audio punch level... no matter if you whisper or yell into the mic Exactly what is needed! With the fast attack/release of the noise gate feature.. this chip is fantastic at blocking ambient background noise!

Northpoint tech? Are you talking about Northpoint radios in Syracuse or what? I'm pretty sure that company has nothing to do with your radio.

The time to read a company's return policy is before making the purchase. Really, from what you described, it sounds like the typical shit stock CBS 1000.

It sounds like nothing is wrong with this radio. Maybe each time the cheap labor is done in a different country the name of the radio changes. Perhaps the radio has a manufacturer's warranty. If so, it absolves the seller in this instance. I'm curious as to who this tech is and what he said he would do for you.

I've had it in my files since the chip first came out. Studied it several times. Even used the chip in a couple designs.

Any linear amplifier will "reproduce" a sinewave. If it has AGC then how "faithfully" that sinewave is reproduced depends on the time constant of the AGC loop.

That's for a 1kHz sinewave with 1:1 (no) compression. That's pretty crappy even for a CB, and proves that -you- didn't read the complete datasheet. For comparison, look at the specs of the CA3080.

If that's the case then you set the feedback time constant too slow and built yourself a CVA, not a compressor. Look at the scope and you will see spikes.

Yes, it works very well at blocking signals. So does a switch. The problems start when it begins -passing- signals. Didn't I tell you to do your research?

We're getting rain here today also, and it's around 60 degrees. So much for a white Christmas. Oh well, I'm digging it, and my natural gas bill and firewood pile.

The band over here has been on the quiet side since that last solar storm

Nah.... Santa's cool! He's the personification of the highest moral value, to give without expectation of reward (well, except for maybe some milk and cookies). He may not be real, but I certainly believe in the ideals he represents. And don't EVEN get me started on the Great Hope the fooker doesn't take note.

Didn't know about J. Jones and the ham radio aspect. I'll google/wikipedia or whatever that. Thanks Frank.

I did read up on their policies on the website before ordering, and they DO have a return/exchange policy. This is not a warranty repair where say, the LEDs go out after a month or SSB suddenly stops working-- this is bad right out of the box.

Nothing wrong with the radio, you say? I'll disagree with that, I do radio for a living, and there's plenty wrong with a brand new radio that behaves like this one. I also disagree the seller is absolved, as does my credit card company.

Northpoint guy's name was Stan. He said they'd either align the radio or replace it.

Bill, this is the first Robesin reply in years where he did not forge the attributes to read "snot-scam-and sleaze..." Robesin is trying to win you over by playing nice this time. Unfortunately, the rest of us know his game.

Robesin is right? When???

Robesin attacks when I reposted an article taken directly from the ARRL web site quoting an ARRL Vice President >in its entirety< stating that amateurs have an overblown sense of self-importance.

> One of Brain's favorite tactics is to take comments out-of-context
> and then try to represent them as the entire "gist" of the comments.

One of Robesin's favorite tactics is to make homosexual inuendo or claims of pedophilia when he encounters someone who disagrees with him.

> My "MARS >>>IS<<< AMATEUR RADIO" comment refered to the fact that > the MARS program was staffed almost entirely by Amateur Radio licensees

> and was in the very spirit of what it means to be an Amateur Radio > licensee...

I pointed out that MARS absolutely has non-amateur leadership, non-amateur participants, and an entirely non-amateur mission. Hell, Robesin claims to have been chopped to an NMC MARS slot on Okinawa - as an active duty, non-amateur participant. Yet he continues with his "Sorry Hans, MARS >>>IS<<< Amateur Radio" nonsense. Didn't even know what the MOD was. He tried pulling this stunt before he realized that I had MARS experience.

> He doesn't want to repeat THAT part since it wouldn't serve
> his purposes. (to try and embarrass me)

Except that I was an actual MARS affiliate and knew what I was talking about. You didn't. Still don't.

> He also claims that I am repsonsible for the "excrement eating"
> thread. That's a blatant lie. His "friend", Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ, is > SOLELY RESPONSIBLE for the authorship of those subject lines and use of > profanity. You won't see my subject lines repeating it..

Sorry Robesin, but you are the one who posted the "excrement eating" filth, and keep reposting your quote. Unbelievable, but Google provides.

> Brain, of course, has NEVER owned up to any one of his own > misrepresentatiuons of Amateur Radio.

I have opinions but Robesin doesn't allow dissenting opinions. Opinions that differ from his are "LIES."

> He has made ludicrous claims > that have failed to meet any statndard of proof or substance, including > any one of several claims of having been a DX station,

David Heil/K8MN has me confirmed at least twice. Robesin knows this, therefore Robesin lies.

> misrepresentations about MARS, RACES, ARES, and other poorly > conceptualized opinions that have fallen by the wayside as failing the > test of evidence.

After it was obvious from one regular on RRAP that his ARES group was unable to fully support an upcoming American Red Cross exercise, Robesin was asked to write a duty schedule for the exercise. The stated requirements were three 3 operators on duty per shift. He shorted the 1st eight hours of the exercise by all three personnel. He claims it was covered, but the supported agency was not supported at all. The subsequent shifts were shorted from one to two operators per shift. Robesin claims that ARES can support all agency needs even when they lack enough volunteers. Amateur Operators can perform Super-Human feats, OR the ARC is just an 8AM - 5PM agency.

> Everyone's entitled to their opinions.

Not true. Hot-ham is not entitled to an opinion, if Robesin has anything to say about it.

> Brain's opinions of me are > obviously low as he, despite having allegedly been a veteran himself, > are anti-veteran and anti-volunteer.

My opinions of Robesin are spot on.

In addition to slinging accusations of homosexual and pedophilia at those who disagree with him, I am now a veteran-hater and a volunteer-hater. Nevermind that I am a veteran and a volunteer.

Robesin has claimed that he can have me picked up on his say so as an LPN with a simple phone call from Tennessee. To another poster on RRAP, he claimed that "People who shoot off their mouths can have their tires slashed, rocks thrown through windows, and wives terrorized," but later clarified that all those bad things would be at someone else's hands.

A well known Amateur Radio store advertising in QST, whose ham daughter was featured in the ad photo, was said to be "selling something" but not amateur equipment.

Robesin, whose father was a Sailor Army Recruiter (I swear thats not a typo), lays claim to seven hostile actions in the USMC, but who's only overseas assignment was Okinawa.

There's more, much more, but if I went on and on and on you'd probably think I was making it up. I'm not. Google provides.

> I've rubbed his nose in one > failed opinion after another.

Yet it is your excrement on another man's genitals, according to your own original claims and subsequent quotes. Google provides, and you've requoted yourself numerous times.

Of course let us not leave Mark out of the insanity. Mark will continue to crap upon as many posts as he can, whether he is asked to join or not.

Mark is far from "normal", too. Billy Smith already knows that....

I'm also returning to the 11 meter hobby after years of absence. I've always been interested in all kinds of radio ever since I was little. I was hoping to get my ham liscense, but the hams here (who know morse code) turned me off of ham radio when they deliberately marked answers I had correct as wrong, just because they only want the people who are already in their little clique to be the only ones in it and prevent anyone else from getting in.

As I found out the hard way, despite what the hams tell you, if you want to get your ham liscense, it's not what you know, it's who you know.

I now think that they should bring back having the FCC officials as your test examiners instead of letting the hams theirselves be your test examiners.

Also, another difference between hams and this cb'er is

If someone is playing music over the cb, the ham will automatically assume it's illegal and report it to the authorities. (Stuffy.)

While I'll just sit there and listen to it if it's music I like. For several different reasons, but mainly because you don't necessarilly know what the situation is.

Then hams will say that I'm promoting and condoning illegal activities by not reporting those illegal transmissions that are going out over the cb airwaves, because it's illegal for anyone to be playing music over the cb channels.

well, none of those stuffy hams ever bothered to think that just maybe that music going out over the cb is from some kid a number of houses away using an old 100 milliwatt cb channel 14 kids walkie talkie handed down to him by his grandfather.

And it's perfectly legal to play music on that channel on that type of walkie talkie.

So the hams would be falsely reporting perfectly legal transmissions as illegal transmissions.

Making false accusations like that could land you in jail or get you fined.

The way I understand it is those 100 milliwatt kids walkie talkies from the 60's and early 70's are allowed to transmit on any cb channel with anything they want to, although I only remember ever seeing ones that operated on cb channel 14. Probably because that's what the model I had operated on.

Other models might have operated on different cb channels.

And as I remember, they did transmit up to several houses away.

So no, I'm not condoning illegal activities by not reporting what might be perfectly legal transmissions just because you hams think it's illegal transmissions so you can feel important by getting someone busted.

Good. I still won't be able to get my ham liscense. I took the "test" back in the early to mid 1980's. When all the hams were required to know morse code, and these were hams that knew morse code and passed the morse code requirement.

Besides the questions in the book, there were also some questions on the test that weren't in the ham books I studied.

One of these was "What does ATV stand for as relating to hams?"

I wrote: ""Amateur TV, also known as Ham TV."

After the test was over, the ham VEC's marked it wrong, told me I got it wrong, then told me that the correct answer to that question is "ATV as relating to hams stands for All-Terrain Vehicles equipped with a ham radio. There isn't any such thing as amateur tv or ham tv".

That wasn't the only question like that that they pulled.

Those hams are still on the air today.

As long as I'm in this area, I won't be able to get my ham liscense except if the FCC changes the way things are done one way or the other.

And I probably won't be moving out of this area since all of my family and friends are here.

I now hope that the FCC either 1. Brings back the FCC officials as the test examiners and don't allow the ham VEC's as test examiners at all. Or 2. Deregulate ham radio completely.

Actually, after my experiences, I hope the FCC deregulates ham radio completely and lets the general public in.

I never did get my fifty dollars back the hams made me pay to take that phony "ham test".they gave.

They only want only their own little clique that's already in there to be the only ones ever in there.

All the stuff they say to the public and authorities about getting new members in is just smoke and mirrors so that the authorities won't catch on to what they're really doing.

Currently, to get your ham liscense here, it's not what you know, it's who you know.

Some of the hams could take lessons from some of the cb'ers. This cb'er uses only the least amount of power necessary for communications that my equipment will allow.

That already happened when they let in hams who passed the morse code test who don't want anyone else in there except for their oiwn little clique, and make up phony ham tests andd phony answers for anyone else wanting to become a ham and flunk them so they can't pass the test whether or not they got the answers correct.

I now think the dropping of the morse code requirement will bring more civility to the ham bands. And even if it doesn't, then good. They (the hams) deserve it to happen. Since they're the ones who are so uncivil.

With more people joining it, then maybe the uncivil hams won't be able to prevent knowledgable operators from joining it just because they don't want them in their little clique or just because they think "his face is too ugly" or "I don't like the color of his hair:" , or "I don't like the color of his skin" or whatever other such reasoning for keeping knowledgable operaters who answered questions correctly out by marking the correct answers as wrong and telling them they flunked.

Not true, Brain...Not true. However you go right on ahead with your tale of woe.

> Robesin is trying to > win you over by playing nice this time. Unfortunately, the rest of us

Robeson DOES "play nice"...Unless you blatantly lie to me or get caught lying about something that you should know better than to lie about.

For example: Brian P Burke promising to keep certain information
"private" via e-mail, but then running right on back to the NG and divulging that which he promised to not divulge.

Hence the complete lack of respect for Brian P Burke.

Let's start off with YOUR assertions that ARES.RACES, etc couldn't / wouldn't respond to any major disaster in any meaningful numbrs or for a sustained period.

I said you were wrong.

You said several nasty things about "uniforms", "patriotic bunting", "ARRL sockpuppet", etc [words, by the way, straight out of the Leonard H Anderson playbook].

Then came a series of hurricaines and tornaos to the south and southwest. All of them supported at length by ARES and RACES (among others, of course)

Then came September 11th...Then came Hurricane Katrina...Then came Hurricaine Rita...Again, all agencies YOU claimed couldn't / wouldn't respond did exactly that.

We can then dig up your "unlicensed devices" rants, among others.

> Robesin attacks when I reposted an article taken directly from the ARRL
> web site quoting an ARRL Vice President >in its entirety< stating that > amateurs have an overblown sense of self-importance.

And it wasn't true then, it's not true now.

The ARRL vice president's sentiments are NOT shared by the Department of Homeleand Security, the Department of Defense, Salvation Army, The American Red Cross, the Department of State and other agencies.

Only true when there is such evidence of that sort of behaviour, Brain.

So far it's hit the mark (pradon the pun) with Mark and Toiddie.
The jury's out on you, but you cleaned up your act.

Yes, Brain, I know what the MOD is. You've allowed yourself to be hypontized by Lennie's incessant repeating of that claim.

It was wrong then. It's wrong now.

Brian P Burke uttering yet again more mistruthful statements in a public forum.

Sorry, brain, but one again YOU are lying.

The "excrement eating" posts belong to your "buddy", KB9RQZ. And the recent onslaught of re-tasked subject lines with exactly those words are HIS doings...Not mine.

Stop lying, Mr Burke.

himself.

Sure. Have an opinion.

But when you express it as "fact" and the "facts" don't bear up under the scrutiny of 3rd party reports to the contrary, don't get upset when you get "called" for your errors, Brain.

Brain.

You hated them before, Brain...I am sure I am only the focus of your disdain in THIS forum.

You've not had a single constructive, complimentary thing to say about ANY volunteer group save your Scouting troop.

Bigger sigh.

More of Brian P Burke's misquoting. I cited a news item some years ago where exactly that thing occcured.

Now for having mentioned it, Brain insists that I have made thinly veiled threats of a same nature.

An act of cowardice.

Brain...WHY do you lie so readily?

"Sailor Army Recruiter"...?!?!?

No Brain...let's get the FACTS right. My father served on Active Duty in the Untied States Navy during the Korean Conflict.

He was later an Active Duty recuriter for the US Army Reserve.
Yes, Brain, SOME people DO serve in more than one branch of the Armed Forces than one...

And no, Brain, Okinawa was NOT my "only overseas assignment".

But mostly quoted out of context.

nonsense.

Robesin has six other hostile actions. He says.

I don't use the phrase "sock puppet" or "ARRL sock puppet." I don't think I've ever used the phrase "patriotic bunting," either. I do use the word "uniforms" as in Robesin will do anything to get into a uniform since his USMC career was cut short by some unmentionable mystery.

Perhaps why Robesin claims that my statements are straight out of the Anderson playbook is because Robesin is unable to distinguish a Hot-Ham posting from an Anderson posting. His stupidity is not my problem, but he tries to make it so.

> Then came a series of hurricaines and tornaos to the south and

Do all amateurs have super-human abilities in Robesin-world?

ARES is a volunteer organization. It suffers from shortages of manpower and equipment just as do non-volunteer response organizations during an emergency.

> Then came September 11th...Then came Hurricane Katrina...Then came > Hurricaine Rita...Again, all agencies YOU claimed couldn't / wouldn't

Only Amateur Radio responded with exactly enough of everything?

Lots of agencies responded. Lots of News Reports about too little, too late. Lots of Government Officials claiming too little, too late. Lots of Citizen Victims claiming too little, too late. I don't know how Robesin missed it, unless he was busy with that 1,000 yard stare.

> We can then dig up your "unlicensed devices" rants, among others.

No rant. Unlicensed devices and cell phones handle most day to day emergencies.

There is no jury. There's only Robesin and he is subject to the laws of our nation.

Had Robesin said, "Sorry Hans, Amateur Radio >>>IS<<< Amateur Radio" there would be no disagreement. But that's not what he said.

Let's keep the focus on MARS, shall we?

Gee, you sure hate it when someone out-assholes you using your own sick tactics.

You originated the excrement eating posting, and you have since requoted yourself for the sake of clarity, however, what you said was far from clear. If you'd like to restate what it was that you said, hopefully in a clearer way...

No, nevermind. It was sick enough the first time it came around.

You post in absolutes..., for example, "Sorry Hans, MARS >>>IS<<< Amateur Radio."

I pointed out that the Chief of Air Force MARS, at the time, was not an amateur radio operator.

That single fact sunk your whole position on MARS as an amateur organization, unless you want to argue the definition of "is."

Nope. You bring disdain upon yourself in your behavio[u]r toward others.

> You've not had a single constructive, complimentary thing to say

My comments were about people who are volunteers of multiple volunteer agencies, and when a crisis occurs, have to support one agency and not all. For example, you are a "professional" volunteer, committing to the Tennessee State Militia, the Civil Air Patrol, ARES, MARS, and who knows what else. And your professional position as an ER LPN should be a high priority in your community. So when the claxon goes off, which way do you run? Which volunteer organization(s) are left holding the bag because Robesin overcommitted himself and really isn't super-human?

Yeh. Big, big sigh. Maybe if you just quit posting such nonsense....

Here's a hint, next time you cite a news item, present it as a cited news item and not as a threat. It's called "clarity," and you lack it.

I perceived a threat. In Robesin's own words, one has only to perceive a threat for there to be a threat.

What scares me most isn't that you made a mistake in your grammar when posting that sick nonsense, it's that you posted the sick nonsense at all.

It is grossly off topic and has no place in an amateur radio discussion newsgroup.

I certainly hope that Paul Schleck agrees.

Yes, they do.... UNLESS its covered under a manafacturers warranty then you deal directly with the manufacturer,,this is not the only company that has this policy. Lowes and Home Depot also have this policy for many of their products, such as appliances, water heaters, etc.

>This is not a warranty repair where say, the

>LEDs go out after a month or SSB suddenly >stops working-- this is bad right out of the box.

Correct, this is -not- a warranty problem as you just stated. Everything works, it just doesn't -perform- or work to your expectations.

> Nothing wrong with the radio, you say? I'll >disagree with that, I do radio for a living,

Really? Then why the hell do you have to send it off to a place you're having problems citing? FIf you "did radio for a living" you wouldn't have to send it anywhere.

>and there's plenty wrong with a brand new >radio that behaves like this one.

Like I said, ALL the stock CBS 1000 are pretty much useless until modded.

>I also disagree the seller is absolved, as does >my credit card company.

Your credit card company can only follow the law, it has no latitude in agreeing or disagreeing with you. Once a company demonstrates its policies were posted in a conspicuous place and the customer is aware of said policies, as long as the company complies with consumer laws, you're out of luck especially if the product is not defective.

> Northpoint guy's name was Stan.

Where is this Northpoint and what is their contact number?

>He said

>they'd either align the radio or replace it.

You "do" radio for a living and are unable to align your own radio ? Let me guess...you're a tech without the tools. Actually, methinks you're full of shit. This radio is probably the easiest radio in the world to adjust and mod,,it was manufactured so the layman can tweak it with little chance of screwing it up.

Y'know, I'll agree with you, Wabbit. Mark's kooky for not attempting to improve his spelling to the point where he's comprehensible more often than not (or at least, he was until lately, anyway, as I've seen a few posts from him which seemed to have slightly better spelling) -- a bit kooky. You, OTOH, are not just a bit kooky. Dean Humphries, Robert Wolfe, and Ernie Primeau _combined_ are still not quite as kooky as you.

that only applies to Robeson not his victums

Icertinaly precieved a threat when in 1998 he finished a long about guns and marksmenship with "one shot one Kill even in illiopolis" where I lived at the time. and ofcourse my father picking up the phone and hearing someone say I am going to kil you mark" roudn the same was in way threatening and calls to local postal office and police station asking where I lived wasn't threatening

you were lucky steve that Illiopis was so poorly served by the Phone service that you calls could only be traced to AC

Quit dribbling squirrel poop and go do it chump. It only costs 39 cents to write to Riley...do it, boy.
As for knowing where I live, whoopie...so do a lot of other entities who qualify as human beings, unlike your mutant moron self. Somebody should punish the test tube that spawned you....of course they may already have, since it probably got broken in other experiments. Can't get on the air cuz the 950 died, ay? Funny. Very funny. Maybe if you go to the Petro toilets you can get enough green to fix it. Ask mopathetic...he will show you the ropes.

It must really suck to be so sad inside. Can't even drive a semi without bashing it...Can't act Christian cuz somebody keeps posting the filthy threats and rants you have made elsewhere on the Christian sites, exposing your falsity. LOL!

You admitted that you went there to try to convince N8 of your gay love for him...don't try to distort the meaning, queenie. You been pretty quiet since you were identified and located....whats the matter, can't get any guts up when you know we know where yer at? Or is it just that the Petro toilet has been keeping you busy? Maybe a bit of both.

Chukkeesukkee meweled piteously:

Oh gee, chukkee...maybe you and mopey should meet...he can bring the trojans and you the lube. Since you say you are broke, he can bring a quarter to see who pitches first.

He also meweled:

We know what you mean...yeppers...it means you dont like "partying" with those older kids at all! LOL! As for being 63...if you get off the drugs and stay away from Petro toilets you might move that IQ up to at least 70

And finally, he also slobbered as he wrote:

Yes, ladies...watch out. Keep your kids in the house if you see the worm in those pics. But, dont be like chukkeesukkee's mom...she has kept her kid in the basement for 33 years. LOL!

To learn the technical TRUTH about CB Radio without all the hype from people who are just plain ignorant, check out the following books from CBC International. They're selling right now at a big discounts on our EBAY & AMAZON stores too.

Check it out!

To see exactly what these books look like, plus all the specific, chapter-by-chapter details, see our Web at:

www.cbcintl.com

Some of the books included are:

BOOK #1: THE "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE To Peaking Out & Repairing CB Radios. List $25. The most popular "big dummy's" guide ever published on do-it-yourself CB repairs & modifications. Covers peaking of receivers, transmitters, modulation, mike problems, antenna & SWR problems, detailed frequency modifications for both crystal & PLL radios. Loaded with charts, illustrations, and specific instructions for most brands including the new export models. This latest edition also covers slider and broadbanding tricks, FM conversions, and much more!

BOOK #2: THE CB PLL DATA BOOK. List $20. The only complete reference source on CB PLL synthesizer circuits ever published! Detailed PLL theory explained in layman's terms. How they work, and how to modify them for many more channels. Includes specific PLL block mixing diagrams, truth charts, & IC pin function diagrams for nearly every PLL chip ever used. Covers all the most popular U.S. & export chassis, with specific listings of all models using the chip.

BOOK #3: UNDERSTANDING & REPAIRING CB RADIOS. List $42. Giant 370-page technical book for the professional repairman. Picks up where the "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE leaves off. Includes circuit descriptions & troubleshooting guide for 23- & 40-Ch., crystal & PLL, solid-state & tube, AM, FM, SSB, CW, American & export models. Covers test equipment (& where to find it), transistor basics, synthesizers, receivers, transmitters, power supplies, T/R switching, antennas, interference, parts & accessory sources. Over 350 illustrations including schematics, charts, and photos. Huge subject index also lets you look up repairs by symptoms. This is "must" reading for any serious CB technician!

That's OK Happy Happy and Merry Merry to you and all the old time normal regulars out there.
Also to the normal new folks I've missed because of AKC BS. This message of happiness does _NOT_ apply to AKC members. I don't wish any bad to them, just no good.

As an aside, Thanks go out to the Great Uncle! I'm chomping at the bit to use my 10 meter radio legally! :) I'm going to take elements 3 and 4 on the 8th. I should be a general and maybe, I'll pass the extra this time. That's a hard test to take cold. The general test is much easier and the tech test even easier!

I've used MURS and 11 meters as well as 2 and 440 in the past week. People are still people no matter what band you find them on. When one is not happening, try another. You'll find folks that stay on one band and you'll never find them if you stay in one place. It's like staying on 19 all your life. Turn the dial and LISTEN. Sandbagging can be quite amusing.

a Babel Fish "translooseration":
http://babelfish.altavista.com/

Hello companeros, I am Miguel of Valencia (Spain). It is the first time that posteo aqui. Them story my case. I have a transmitter of 27 Mghz and have bought a balcony antenna (a Syrian). I have it well regulated with which I believe that I do not interfere to any of my neighbors. Speaking with other fans they have said to me that the balcony antennas are not legal. I do not have possibility of buying an antenna to put it in the tile roof since my neighbors are a little special and they do not dejarian to me to install it and I have had to buy this antenna of balcony. My legal question is are east type of antennas. I ask to them because they say to me that IF, others NOT and sincerely no longer to who to make case. If they do not know or they do not want to answer... know to me of some pagina where can find algun type of regulation? A greeting to all. Miguel. Thank you very much.

Hello, Miguel Unfortunately, I am not familiarized with the law of the radio in Spain. This site is mainly radio operators of the U.S.A.. Perhaps you look for for Spanish sites. I wish good luck him in his search.

Everyone has issues, but there's no need for Robesin to scour the internet and bring stuff back to RRAP that has no place on RRAP. But Maybe. Maybe not. But I'm definitely smarter than you. I understand how the chip works and its intended purpose, which is not the same as the objective of your hacked design -- to increase the talk-power of a CB radio.

Why don't you spend some time and effort to learn about this stuff so you can build something good instead of hacking other people's designs and hoping they sell?

I had a mini-23. There was a couple of emitter resistors in the audio section you could put caps across and this gave it great audio.

the modern question pool is multible choice to prevent just such abuses

I know. Unfortunately, it didn't work and didn't prevent the types of abuse it was intended to prevent.

That's why I'm now in favor of reinstating the rule that only FCC officials are allowed to be the test examiners and graders.

I know not all ham radio operators are like that.

But what went on in my area and does go on in my area is proof that the current system of allowing the ham radio operators theirselves to be the test examiners is flawed.

The only ways I can think of to actually prevent this kind of abuse of the system is to either

1. Reinstate the rule that only FCC officials are allowed to be the examiners, so that the ham radio operators don't have any control over who does and doesn't get onto ham frequen cies or

2. Deregulate ham radio entirely, so that the ham radio operators theirselves don't have any control over who does and doesn't get onto ham frequencies.

As it curently stands, they're able to get their friends in by passing them even if they don't know anything about ham radio or morse code at all, and preventing knowledgable people from getting in even if they got every answer correct on the written test and passed the morse code test.

I never expected to pass the morse code test anyways, even though I studied it and tried to. But after what went on with the written test and other things, I now suspect that I might have actually passed the morse code test also even though they told me I got everything completely wrong on all of the tests, written and morse.

As long as the FCC allows the ham radio operators theirselves to be the test examiners, the abuses can and will go on.

The difference is the hams I know of will immediately report any music they hear on the cb as illegal transmissions without checking out the situation first,

while I would try and check out the situation first too see if it's really someone illegally playing music over a four watt cb on cb channel 14, or if it's someone legally playing music on an old one hundred milliwatt kids toy walkie talkie on cb channel 14.

The one hundred milliwatt walkie talkies operate under part 15 rules, not under part 95 rules even though they use the same channels/frequencies.

Trying to say otherwise is like saying my part 15 videosenders and wireless security cameras have to operate under ham rules because they use the same frequencies as ham tv.

My videosender was made specifically to broadcast tv shows and music over the ham frequencies, something that ham radio and tv isn't allowed to do.

So no, I'm not breaking any laws by broadcasting tv shows and music over ham frequencies even though any nearby hams would receive it on their equipment and try to report me for "illegally broadcasting tv shows and music 2.4 ghz".

It was a ham shop that sold me the equipment for that.

Although I got my security cameras elsewhere.

My, my,

Such strong words to be so ignorant of the person you're addressing.

First of all, I'm an engineer, I don't have access to scopes, RF generators, etc., as I did in years past, though I do still use a spec ani from time to time when I have to go hunt down an interference problem. But how did this discussion get to be about me personally anyway?

I don't have time to chase down problems on a simple transceiver that I bought new, this should work. I don't have the number handy that I called, actually, Copper gave it to me after I insisted, it's on my desk at work, but it's the same number in the manual for the radio (which is boxed up) if that's important to you. I find it odd that I'm being questioned on that. I have several projects that are waiting for a day when I have time for them-- recapping an Johnson Ranger for one.

But I did borrow a signal generator from one of my techs and peaked the receiver per the alignment notes that Northpoint referred me to-- not hard to do. You couldn't make this receiver work any better yourself, Looks like the front end is bad, and I'm not going to waste any more time trying to do anything with it myself. This is not a matter of simple tweaking, why are you so eager to defend this radio you've never seen?

What amazing powers you must have to be able to diagnose a problem with mere words on a screen. Who's full of what?

I'm pretty accurate with whom I'm addressing. For example, only one point these type thing out.

> First of all, I'm an engineer, I don't have Right. You do "radio for a living" but you're claiming no access to the

It's nto about you, it's about your claim. Stop taking everything so personal. Besides, failing to address one of the first questions posed you invokes shadows of doubt concerning your claim.

> I don't have time to chase down problems on

So you're conveying that you "do radio for a living", have no access to the tools of the trade and don't have time to do your job. I think I get it.. You're claiming to be one of those pros who can fix everyones elses back yard, er, radio, except your own for whatever reason you have conjured.....kind of like the plumber whose sink is always leaky, mechanic whose car is a piece of junk, etc.

You find it odd you're being asked about a previously uninvoked CB manufacturer -you- mention in a CB forum? How odd you find it odd..

>I have several projects that are waiting for a

The CBS takes less than five minutes and the mods easily obtained.

Accusing me of defending the radio right after I get done telling you its basically a piece of shit in its stock form is odd.

Those powers called observation and its all based on your own claims. Now, about this company you claim you can send the radio to.....

> Who's full of what?

Depends on how creative an excuse you can give for not being able to provide an address for this company you claim is going to repair your radio.

Only because it illustrates your hypocrisy regarding making a post personal in nature. I questioned your claims of which you are fumbling to provide an answer and you would rather discuss off topic themes of a personal nature, such as my internet access. You're quite odd.

No excuses,

The company is Northpoint, they have a NY phone # and address, I'm not about to go unpack the thing just to provide you with them. The name I have is "Stan", and I don't care whether you believe it, it's not your radio, not your money, and you are not the one who was dealt with very rudely by Copper.

I can fix my own radios just fine, have been doing that for nearly 35 years, and equipment much more complex than a CB transceiver. I'm just not going to spend much time on something that's brand new that's not up to par. Strange to me that you consider the CBS1000 a POS, but can't believe that one is bad out of the box.

This is a foolish exchange with you, and one I will not continue. You have no idea of the demands on my time, or any notion of what my work involves, so leave me alone.

My points are:

1. Copper does not deal in good faith with buyers. I doubt this is the first time this has been said.
2. This particular CBS1000 IS a bad one, and no amount of mods or simple alignment is going to correct its problems.

The intention of my original post was to warn those who may be considering buying one of these from Copper Electronics. By participating in and continuing this thread, you've assisted me in that, so I suppose some sort of thanks is in order for that.

Now go away.

One thing I forgot to mention--

Petro is the name of a chain of truck stops/travel stores. It's a proper noun, and should be capitalized in that usage. I don't know what you were attempting to point out.

Sure, fine by me. I have no problem with you making claims you can't back..happens all the time in this group, usually by nocodes and a few extras.
The burden of proof is on the claimant, don't take it personal. Really.

Sounds like your issues are multiple, but your claim that the radio is not working properly has yet to be determined. All we have is the opinion of one unable to provide for his claims.

Except of course, for that little problem you cited of not having access to the tools of the trade. But then you claim you have a scope and that you had time to scope it, but not to align it.

Never said anything of the sort. I'm claiming operator error with this radio. I'll say it again, it's one of the easiest radios in the world to mod and tweak.

I don't give a damn about your work or time or how it's spent. I just asked you to provide for your claims and you began falling apart.

Because you claim the receiver is out of align, the radio is therefore bad? Bullshit!!! All the mods and tweaks for that radio are simple, even the alignment (R-1, R-2, R-3 and R-4)..some radio tech.

Gee, since you curiously believe a first-time anonymous poster unable to provide for his very first claim carries credibility, then..hey, you're quite welcome.

Tell ya' what, you go play radio tech with someone who believes that self-styled tiitle lends you credibility, and I'll go away.

It's against my better judgement to even open this topic, but here you go, Not George:

Let's say you have this situation:

Cell Site A is 6 miles from Cell Site B. To make this easy, let's say this is an iDEN system since it would be old technology. Won't even consider Cellular or PCS, just old, Plain Jane SMR. Cell Site B has a concentric cell, two 800 MHZ radios, and 4 900 MHz.

Mobile units have no problem making dispatch and packet data calls on Site A, but when in range of Site B, these same calls do not work.

Answer me THAT, and we''ll talk.

Ok, I may be a little slow to adopt the latest advances in modern communication technology, but when did CB radio go cellular?

Last week Frank, did you miss it?

Nah, has nothing to do with CB, but neither do insults.

Besides, this is SMR, which is not cellular anyway- But let's make RSSI of site A -95 dBm at handover, and the mobile is close enough to site B that RSSI is say, -69 dBm, C/I of 32. Overlay of Site B is all 800 MHz, interconnect calls still work, but no dispatch.

It's all greek to me, but then I'm just a broadcast engineer.

You seem to be a reasonable and intelligent person, am I right? So why didn't you google the company before you made the purchase? If you did you would have seen that they have a dubious reputation. In fact, there are hundreds of posts on usenet, many on this group, about Copper's shady business practices. And not just Copper.... heck, I don't buy anything big from -any- company online until I've dealt with them first with a couple small purchases. That's just common sense.
And it's especially important to ascertain credibility when you deal with a company that operates on the fringes of the law since you may have no legal recourse after a bad deal. On that note, did you check your credit card company to see if the purchase could even be insured?
If you are like most people, you didn't. But I would suggest you keep checking your credit report for the next couple years.

Looks to me like you learned a lesson the hard way. Take your lumps and move on.

Yeah, I never did figure out that one. Maybe people thought it would make their car look like it didn't have a CB, but thieves are more likely to bust into a car to rip off a cell phone. Or maybe they don't like people thinking they are a CBer. Funny, since I've had lots of people ask me if the antenna on my truck was for a cell phone. The mystery continues.....

Yeah I had guys show up for snow plowing duty with those silly things as communication at the mall parking lots I used to snow plow. They liked them because they transmit right through the glass, no hole required.....

If I couldn't see them I couldn't hear them most times. That's pretty bad in a flat parking lot.

I drill holes in them all the time weather they're paid for or not, mostly for things beside an antenna. I don't lease my work trucks but I do lease my wifes car.

I suppose that's an issue for most people since the title is usually held by a bank or loan agency. I own all my vehicles free and clear. I don't fear punching a hole in the roof or anywhere else. In fact, last week I drilled a couple on the bumper for fog lights (some uninsured

Kinda defeats the purpose. Maybe they just want to -claim- they have a CB in the car, whether it works or not?

Fair enough Frank,

And thanks for the civil comments. I'm used to dealing with amateur radio dealers, who on the whole are much more ethical and will make good on defective equipment.

My whole purpose in the scenario I layed out was to illustrate that there's a lot more to RF than just simple transmitters and receivers, and while I haven't been a bench tech or field engineer for several years now, I haven't become ignorant during that time. Not George probably doesn't have the faintest idea what I'm talking about, but that's what RF Engineering is today, aside from broadcast (where I cut my teeth in the 70s, got my 1st Class Phone when I was 16). Guys working under me do that stuff now, and while I miss those days, I'm not sorry I went back to school and took the opportunity to move up when it became available.

Maybe I should have asked what the problem is when the plate current comes up very slowly on a pair of 833As when voltage is applied rather than being instantly on in an AM transmitter. He may have come closer to getting that one, and that's one I like to throw out in interviews when I think a prospective tech or engineer may have some understanding of Old School radio.

Anyway, I'm out of this one now. Maybe someone will read this thread down the road and stay away from Copper, and that's what I was after.

I still dream sometimes that I walk in the door and have a room full of Sparta turntables and cart machines to fix...

Hi,

I'm after a couple handheld CB-radios with the longest possible range/distance.
Any suggestions please?

Cheers

I am not a ham.

Most people in this group are fully aware of that fact (and please don't bring up the topic of coax length!).

Actually, he knows more about radio than you might think. Not many people can rightfully claim to have covered most of the US and half the globe with a stock SSB CB.

But you came into the group out of nowhere and started complaining, like so many others, about how you got screwed by Copper, but failed to mention the sticker on the box that says, "guaranteed not to turn pink in the can". I can understand his reaction. Myself, I just passed right over the earlier posts in the thread -- it's old news.

Your name has been added to the bottom of a very long list.

Lots of stations still use carts, or at least keep them operational for backup, after the stations learned that the old stuff is much more reliable than sound-spot software running under MicroHack.

5332. hams wanting to report businessees for using frs

Interesting. The hams are just like I said. I was listening to the ham radio operators on my scanner tonight. They were complaining about businesses using family service radios and frequencies. They said that it's against the law and against fcc rules for businesses to operate on fr frequencies with family service radios. The hams want to report the businesses to the FCC for illegally operating their businesses on family radio service frequencies with family service radios instead of using business band frequencies and business band radios.

Now everyone, correct me if I'm wrong in this sentence, but I thought that the FCC rules say that it's perfectly legal for businesses to ooperate their businesses on family radio service frequencies with family service radios.

I don't operate or own a business at all. I use mine for family communications. Just in case any of the hams try and say that I have an ulterior motive by and from owning my own business.

It's reasons like this plus what I posted in the past few days, how hams turned me off of ham radio completely..

I was interested in all kinds of radio ever since I was little, There was even a time when I was looking forwards to getting my ham liscense. But all of you hams turned me off of ham radio completely.

I'm glad I'm finally getting back into cb now. I'd much rather be a cb'er than a ham radio operator.

The cb'ers are a much higher class of people than you hams who want to report people operating legally as operating illegally.

And the people you're wanting to report aren't even operating on any of your ham bands at all!!!

They're operating on the family radio service frequencies. And operating legally.

As for being a cb'er and getting back into cb. Yeeeeeehawwwwwww.

to be honest I don't if you can use FRS or MURS for that matter for bussness or if you need gmrs licnse techicaly

OTOH it seem unlikely the ham in question are likely to be able to affect much

many ham are having a realy bad time of it right now with the End of

Or MURS. A bit more expensive, but better range, generally.

5337. Scientists Predict Big Solar Cycle

Hello All:

Here's a neat blurb on the next solar cycle that was e-mailed to me.
That I will share.

So you may want to get your amateur liscense and run up and down the bands talking to a lot of Long Distance (DX) Stations, here in a short time.

Merry Christmas to all.

Jay in the Mojave

Scientists Predict Big Solar Cycle

Evidence is mounting: the next solar cycle is going to be a big one.
Solar cycle 24, due to peak in 2010 or 2011 "looks like its going to be one of the most intense cycles since record-keeping began almost 400 years ago," says solar physicist David Hathaway of the Marshall Space Flight Center. He and colleague Robert Wilson presented this conclusion last week at the American Geophysical Union meeting in San Francisco.

Their forecast is based on historical records of geomagnetic storms.

Hathaway explains: "When a gust of solar wind hits Earth's magnetic field, the impact causes the magnetic field to shake. If it shakes hard enough, we call it a geomagnetic storm." In the extreme, these storms cause power outages and make compass needles swing in the wrong direction. Auroras are a beautiful side-effect.

Hathaway and Wilson looked at records of geomagnetic activity stretching back almost 150 years and noticed something useful:. "The amount of geomagnetic activity now tells us what the solar cycle is going to be like 6 to 8 years in the future," says Hathaway. A picture is worth a thousand words:

Yep Steveo I did...well actually added one as RR has too many issues with theirs. Sometimes it works, lots of times it doesn't, and I got tired of it.
I suppose you get what you pay for. :-)

Anyway, at the risk of being non-PC, Merry Christmas to you and all who read this. For those who object to Merry Christmas, bite me! :-)

Hello Scott:

Yeah I'll bet there will be a lot of guys wanting to convert there 11 meter antennas to 10 meters.

I use a Alpha Delta 80 thru 10 Meter fan type dipole. Its not the cats meow but it works. I get to listen in on the local 40 meter rag chew-net-qso-free 4 all.

Merry Christmas

I hate to say this, but you are the one that made this personal for him, not the other way around.

also, he is right, mere words on a screen at some remote location does not cannote good radio troubleshooting knowledge.

I have had a chance to listen to one of those rigs sold by copper. guess that they are now into the used/refurbished sales these days as the radio couldn't even hear what my old FRG-7 sitting next to it could ON THE SAME FREQUENCY!

so, while you "troubleshoot" (and get slammed for it because you failed to do it right) others do the real work and inevitably prove you wrong.

so... give it a rest....

Right. Let's start with your earlier design, a 2-pill, push-pull "linear" hacked from a Communications Concepts kit, which itself is a hack from a Motorola datasheet; then when under pressure for a decent bias circuit you hack a design from a ham's webpage on and refuse to disclose the schematic. You start -this- thread by openly admitting how you are hacking a "compressor" circuit from another ham. Yet you maintain that none of your designs are hacked. I'm now convinced that you have redefined the term "hacked" to suit your purposes, just like you did with the word "linear", and will likely do with "compression".
Congratulations, you just graduated from the Presidential Academy of Semantics.

>your designs are nonexistant... LOL

And once again you're back to the "sour grapes" excuse..... you should have stopped with the 'lying president' emulation.

I just picked up a pair of Realistric TRC-222. They are fairly small (as compared to older Walkie Talkies. They are 40 channels. They have the extra long center loaded antenna. They also have an external antenna jack. They run 2.5 watts on hit power, and 1 watt on low power. And they are cheap on ebay.

I would suggest these, because most of the newer radios you have, put out 4 watts, which drains batteries far faster. And the difference btween 4 watts and 1 or 2.5 watts in insignificant. Also, the newer radios offer crap antennas.

I wonder how a screwdriver antenna would work on 27 MHz? I'm set to take my general test on 01-07-07.
I'll need a 706 or an Alinco DX-70.

That doesn't have anything to do with it. It has happened way before that also. This has been and is an ongoing things. The hams like reporting people as committing illegal activities without even bothering to check either the facts or situation first. In my book, that's irresponsible.

The hams also seemed almost completely ignorant of the family radio service.

The hams said that the frs radios go way farther than the manufacturers' claims because they can hear it way farther away than that on their scanners.

The hams were also complaining about the family radio service opeators who complain that the frs radios don't go anywhere near as far as the manufacturers' claims.

The hams said those frs operators are just too stupid to realize that they simply have to go through the frs repeaters that are on the frs frequencies to get that kind of range.

Now everyone, correct me if I'm wrong in this sentence, but I thought that the FCC rules say that it's against the law and against FCC rules to have repeaters on frs frequencies.

So the hams are actually promoting illegal activities as legal, while trying to report legal operators as operating illegally.

Now since you hams say that hams are supposed to know everything about all radio, including ones not their own, to get their liscense, how did these hams ever get their liscense? Are they really THAT ignorant?

Or are they purposely promoting illegal activities while purposely trying to get legal operators off the band by reporting legal operators as illegal operators?

My guess is they really are that ignorant. and got their ham liscenses by their ham friends getting them in.

By the way, all of these hams were ones who know CW/ morse code.

I think most cb operators are more intelligent than those hams even though most of them probably don't know cw/ morse code.

I've listened to cb around here. The cb bands seem more intelligent to me.

I don't usually hear the types of transmissions over the cb channels that the hams claim they hear.all of the time on cb.

Don't crap on me! :)

I turned on my CB to catch some of the Christmas CBers, but it was raining and there were none. I did make a few random FRS contacts. I was trying to make it so they could actually make a contact on their first try so they stick with it and not box it back up. Once they've been on a radio for a month or so, I could point them to more frequencies on HAM. I still find a radio operator to be a radio operator whether licensed by rule or by test. To sit behind a mike and talk to strangers takes a certain kind of person and not all stay with it. Once they get a taste of radio, they may want to learn and do more. CB is a good place to find more radio operators. People are people and the Part they use doesn't matter and you don't have to give up one for the other.

It's amazing how many hams I run into on CB and how many hams used CB before becoming hams.

BTW, I'll have 28.3 to 28.5 no matter what in about two months. I'm ready. My 2950 still works.

<<Actually, he knows more about radio than you might think. Not many people can rightfully claim to have covered most of the US and half
the globe with a stock SSB CB. >>

No big deal there, that's what 27 MHz does. Anyone with the time could do the same with a decent antenna and any modicum of operating knowledge. I've done the same on every HF band with low power, using homebrew equipment much of the time. Try that on 7 Mhz with 3 watts, much more difficult. As the cycle picks back up over the next few years, many people will be doing that on 11M- doesn't prove any knowledge of radio, they'll just be taking advantage of what happens naturally.

What I don't understand is the personal attack for no reason, bizarre.
And wrong on all counts, to boot.

Well enjoy your playground here boys, I have better things to do.

No smallmouth bass in Florida except in a few spots up near the top of the state, but the record largemouths make up for it. In fact, the pros are predicting the next world-record to come from Fl, Tx or Ca., but the Ca. largemouth bass are all southern bass. Largemouth bass aren't native to Ca. at all.

When you're talking gamefish, I like to go after the sails, but Barracuda, Tarpon and Shark are always fun, too.

All good, you forgot Wahoo, now that a fun one to catch.

LMAO!!!! I was there for 5 days for the Bronco 40th anniversary. I'll tell you what Jim, it's probably changed (but still not for the better). All you had to do was drive for less than an hour and fish Big Bear, lot's of Trout there.

Marlins are ok to catch, but not good eating. I hate spending an hour to land a fish and you can't even eat it.

Screwdriver should work fine. You are talking about mobile, right?

I did use a screwdriver antenna (they weren't yet called that then, this was 1988) on the balcony of my apartment at the time, ran a single radial for 10, 15, and 20 meters each. Worked the world with 50W RTTY.
Didn't work all that great on the lower bands, about comparable to an HF mobile signal. I could be heard on the nets on 40 and 75 if stations were listening for mobiles.

Good luck on the General.

Oh, come on now. I have never ever ever seen a consumer level frs/gmrs combination radio that includes the GMRS repeater input channels.

None of them do.

And the hams specifically mentioned family radio service repeaters on the family radio service repeaters. They never mentioned GMRS repeaters or GMRS frequencies in that conversation. You would think that hams would be smart enough to know that those are GMRS repeaters and not frs repeaters and as such that none of the consumer level bubble pack frs eadios they were talking about contain any GMRS repeater input frequencies where the frs operators can access gmrs repeaters.

Once again, how did such ignorant hams ever get their ham radio liscense if they're supposed to know everything about all radio services a nd frequencies to get their ham liscense as some of the hams claim?

And none of the frs-only radios contain any of those channels either.
The hams specifically mentioned only frs and frs repeaters.

I'm glad the code requirement is going away. With more people in there, maybe we'll finally get some intelligent civil people on the ham bands.

People who won't report other people as committing illegal activities until they actually check out both the facts and the situation first to determine if it really is an ilegal transmission or a legal transmission.

With more people in there, more people will be watching and hopefully prevent the current code-knowledgable hams ffom abusing the system like they are by them passing their close friends who don't know anything at all about ham radio and flunking people who know about ham radio because they aren't their close friends.

Frank, you evidently think that once an IC or transistor is used in a design... that if someone else uses that same transistor or IC... that the new design has hacked the existing one.

Hello Scott:

Yeah a Screwdriver Antenna will work. I haven't used one but a good friend has one. I can't remember the manufactures name or model. But its a larger one made and designed for the lower bands, like 40 and 80 meters. He has a ball with this antenna. Has a switch that adjusts the antennas coil while watching the SWR on a meter.

You will have to have a significant mounting bracket tho, we used a piece of 6061-T6 Aluminum Plate, 3/8" thick by approx 4 x 12 inches, and bolted it to the body, and reinforced the body.

He uses a Icom 706 and talks all over with it in his Jeep. We where Quail hunting and he talked many stations on 20 and 40 meters. I am not sure how it will work on 10 or 11 meters. But if the sun spot cycle will be as strong as the Scientists say it will be, then I am sure it will work.

There is no designation as to whom can or can not use FRS, with the exception that you must be citizen of the USA.

It's against my better judgement to even open this topic, but here you go, Not George:
  Let's say you have this situation:
  Cell Site A is 6 miles from Cell Site B. To make this easy, let's say this is an iDEN system since it would be old technology. Won't even consider Cellular or PCS, just old, Plain Jane SMR. Cell Site B has a concentric cell, two 800 MHZ radios, and 4 900 MHz.
    Mobile units have no problem making dispatch and packet data calls on Site A, but when in range of Site B, these same calls do not work.
  Answer me THAT, and we''ll talk.
(chuckle)
You made unsubstantiated claims and were asked to provide for it. Unable to do so, you beg for a subject change and begin crying that I'm getting "personal" with you despite the fact that -you- decided to invoke these "personal" claims, IE: you "do radio for a living", are a tech without tools. etc.
News flash: You're no tech if you are unable to align what is practically the most user-friendly radio ever produced (tricks and mod-wise). As you were told in so many words, trying to deflect that fact with unrelated topics impresses only yourself. Bottom line, you're definitely no radio tech, not even close because someone that has no radio background whatsoever can remove the cover to this radio, find the right screw and turn it a quarter or half turn. The freq mods are but a single jumper.
You're tripping all over yourself with excuses of why you're unable to provide either a contact number or address for this place you claim is going to fix your radio pro bono based on nothing more than -your- diagnose. Again, I say it's bullshit but of course, you can always prove me wrong and merely provide for your claim, but you prefer to blame me and offer all kinds of "personal" excuses of why you can't provide the info for your claim. The internet is full of sods like yourself.

Last week Frank, did you miss it?
  Nah, has nothing to do with CB, but neither do insults.
  Besides, this is SMR, which is not cellular anyway- But let's make RSSI of site A -95 dBm at handover, and the mobile is close enough to site B that RSSI is say, -69 dBm, C/I of 32. Overlay of Site B is all 800 MHz, interconnect calls still work, but no dispatch.

Telling one they are full of shit when he/she is unable to provide for a claim is no insult, it's merely observing and stating the obvious facts of your situation. Of course, you are free to follow any alternate reality that works for you but demanding others subscribe to your belief system will serve only to confuse you further.

Right,

You will need a substantial mounting bracket, and may need to guy the whip. The antenna I mentioned ("Texas Bugcatcher") was originally used on my work truck for about a year before I put it on the balcony at the apartment. Didn't have any trouble at all matching it on any band, but the bandwidth was very narrow on 75, as you might expect.

Ha, I was probably the only person on earth in the late 80s running an HW-101 mobile! Talk about a glutton for punishment!

Eric, the only reason you hate to say anything to me is because you're always demonstrated wrong and made to sulk away with your tail between your legs. You're another clown that likes to make off-the-wall accusations based on nothing more than your emotions, so I see where you and this poster have plenty in common and it's understandable you feel a connection to him as you both make unsubstantiated claims, become upset when such are questioned or illustrated, cry about someone getting "personal" with you when your claims are debunked, and as a last resort attempt to change the topic, but neither of you provide for your original claims. Now, be a good, angry little man and try not to jam your foot in your mouth this time out.

You never disappoint, Eric.
The dude claims to be a tech but claims the radio is defective because
A) he is unable to align it B) even though he claims to have scoped it and C) claims he has no access to a screwdriver, the "tool" needed to adjust the receiver's alignment. Taken at face value, MOST intelligent people would arrive at the conclusion he is full of shit. Of course, there are a small group of hams not unlike yourself who are of the fringe brigade and prefer alternate realities because it provides something they lack.

Perhaps if he/you knew just a bit about the radio prior to purchasing, y'all wouldn't "cannote" (SIC) the facts I'm providing you as radio troubleshooting.

>I have had a chance

(snip)

Nothing you says is worth much, Eric. You lie too damn much and when your lies are illustrated, you run away like the little boy who was just disciplined by a stranger. When you can successfully separate talk of the radio in question and the personal feelings you harbor for me for correcting you in the past, let's try this topic again.

And this, ladies and gentlemen, is the classic text book example of why amateur radio's black-eye will never heal. We have rank-and-file "wannabe" snobs slamming and attempting to put others down for not sharing their enthusiasm of subjects unrelated to CB. According to your exhibited philosophy Eric, you're a "no-nothing wannabe" put in his place on numerous occasion. No argument from anyone there. Well, that's how things operate outside your alternate reality. In the real world, when one makes a claim and cannot provide for it when requested, it usually invalidates the claim, end of story. The real world really isn't that bizarre. Step out into the light and try it some time.

> And wrong on all counts, to boot.

You made a claim, I asked you to provide, you declined, then told me I'm wrong for doubting you. That's one heck of an alternate reality you have going there, but again, in the real world, your beliefs are irrelevant to the facts at hand of which you have failed to provide.

> Well enjoy your playground here boys, I have >better things to do.

I'm sure you do, like telling the group you found a company (but are unable to provide an address or phone number for this company) who is going to repair (pro bono) a radio you purchased somewhere else, based on nothing more than the "scoped" diagnose of one who called them out of the blue.

What's the application? 11-meter CB by rule gets pretty terrible

Gah... if that's your excuse for using one of those stupid through-the-glass antennas, then what you really need is a Mini Wil and someone help you hide cable and tuck it into the door in a way that's not going to throw your SWR too far out of wack. Crude, and you end up with a couple feet of cable on the roof, but at least you'll be able to get out and have some receive...

Hey Kreskin, in your case it does because you don't have enough understanding of the theory to design and assemble anything from scratch.

>No wonder you never designed anything... LOL

You claim to be an engineer. So what happens when you design something for your employer? Who owns the design?

Please be advised, the above is not Mark Morgan (who never calls himself "Morky"), but an impostor, a frogger (as opposed to an outright "forger", though the difference in his case is slight) I have dubbed "Wabbit". Mark may or may not be dyslexic, but Wabbit is a genuine homo/biphobic and racist anal pineapple.

TEH WAY OF THE K00K
Never learn from your mistakes.
Always practice your mistakes; you may get them right.
Always pick on those smarter and tougher than you.
Always believe that only you know the TRVTH.
Never allow logic or reason get in the way of a good k00k.
When being overwhelmed by logic and reason: k00ksuit!
If you are going to be wrong, do it at the top of your lungs.
When caught in a lie: LIE!
When in doubt: Order the Crab Won Ton
Plagiarism is your friend. Use it.
Whenever contradicted; morph, start calling people names, and make false accusations. Include the children of your target in your allegations, even if they don't have any.
(06-Jun-05) When nobody else will listen, post to your own fan group.
(06-Jun-05) Obviously, since you have your own fan group, this must mean that you have fans. Post prolifically to your fan group - you wouldn't want to disappoint them!

(10-May-2005)Everyone reads usenet. Approval here means approval everywhere.
Post numerous blank posts, or posts containing only a message id.
Post numerous copy&paste web articles from crackerpot websites.
Never forget to call kookologists "k00ks."
If there are several, call them "sockpuppets" too
When all else fails, accuse various and sundry kookologists of e-mailing viruses to you. This is a sure-fire method of garnering sympathy and ensuring that the General Public will always see things your way. An especially effective sub-strategy here is to accuse them of infecting you with the 'Sasser' worm via e-mail.
Quote notorious scientists or writers - it makes it look as if they approve the drivel you are writing!
(9-Jul-05) Anytime your computer is infected with a virus, bogged down by spyware, attacked over your internet connection, or otherwise suffers from preventable problems, government agencies are responsible and are trying to silence you and are monitoring your computer files.
Ignore all traffic signs and feel free to trespass, you don't have to obey any rules.
Scare your enemies with lawsuits, police escorts and whines.
Always back up your empty (albeit noisy) threats with phony LARTs, false police reports, and harassing letters to the FBI and other gubbermint agencies.
Be vigilant in your redundancy. The more you repeat yourself, the more likely others will believe you!
If you can't find anyone as crazy as yourself to support you in the flamewars you start with the normal population, create sock puppets and use anonymous remailers that shamelessly hang on every word you write.
(17-Mar-05) When dealing with law enforcement, remember that it is they who have the problem, not you. Be sure to inform them of this at every available opportunity, as they will surely appreciate your constructive criticism. Be sure to make them aware that YOU KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! ("The cops like that, when people know their rights. That way they don't have to read them to you on the way to the station." - George Carlin)
The more your fake personalities adulate you, the more respect you'll get!
When confronted with a reality that you don't like: Announce loudly that you are departing, never to return as long as there's an Internet. Come back in three or four days and claim you were drunk, hacked, abducted by alience, or forged. Alternately you can just not even mention your prior departure, and if anyone asks you about it, either ignore them or respond with something along the lines of "YOUR NOT THE BOSS OF ME! PLONK!" People really know you mean business then.
Always remain clueproof.
(20-Mar-05) Anyone who does not believe that you are the reincarnation of [$DEITY_OR_PROPHET] is obviously an infidel lacking in faith whose soul in in peril of everlasting damnation.
When responding to one line challenges, post paragraphs of rants and screed in response.
Incoherency is not a roadblock to poasting.

Neither is illiteracy.
Delusions poasted often enough become fact.
Claim you will destroy <insert newsfroup> for attacking you.
When spnaked, send cmsg for Fanboi newsfroup(s).
Find your Lame, Use your Lame, Be your Lame!
Post Edit when the TRVTH hurts.
Always sneck the offending newsfroups.
Always poast pictures of yourself so you can be admired in all your k00ky glory.
Always accuse others of the very acts you are guilty of.
Post lots of boasts about your high IQ and incredible talents.
(20-Mar-05) If you repeat a lie often enough, it becomes the truth.
Anybody who fails to understand this is engaged in a deliberate campaign of misinformation and character assassination.
Always <plonk> somebody just before replying the plonkee!
The k00k considers itself the most intelligent person in any conversation, possibly on the planet. Other people are benighted and ignorant, and have been waiting their whole lives for the k00k to rescue them from intellectual darkness.
Write a self-published book and claim it a success. Bonus points for comparing it to "Mein Kampf" and/or the Bible.
Declare yourself equal to a deity of your choice.
Claim that you've come from other planets.
Claim thousands of past lives.
Frothing complaints carry far more weight when you send them from "legal@" some domain.
Nothing strikes terror into the hearts of your detractors more than telling them that you're archiving their messages for possible use in the future.
Never forget that everyone else posting to Usenet is a paid disinformation agent looking to discredit you.
Usenet is governed by US law. If a poster in Romania killfiles you, he's obviously violating your 1st Amendment rights and can be sued.
Every news admin in the world hangs out in NANAU, and they're just dying to nuke the account of that meanyhead who just called you "fucknozzle". Drop 'em a line - that's what they're there for, after all.
AUK will be closed down. Just you wait and see.
They've nuked hundreds of accounts in the name of free speech and yours will be next.
The k00k will, without any trace of irony, lie, manipulate, impersonate, censor, and declare themselves powerful in ways ranging from the ability to have an account shut down to being God Herself, in order to convince people that they are not liars, manipulators, censors, or insane.
Abuse women while telling how many hundreds you've loved. Nevermind that you're one ugly motherfucker and that there were 30,000 femininas that thought you were a scumbag with bad teeth.
Remember that your ko0ky klaims are 'facts', and that 'facts' do not require proof.
Do not neglect to poast your responses to forums that the originator doesn't read. This will make the people in that forum very impressed with how you tear him to shreds without him being able to respond. They like it even better if you are off-topic for that forum.

Keep in mind that lack of evidence supporting your konspiracy theory actually _is_ evidence, of how effective the konspiracy is in hiding.
(06-Oct-05) When spanked, always retreat to the safety of the Ad Hominem.
(04-Aug-2005) When spanked mercilessly for days on end, proving with each poast just what an illiterate and ignorant fool you are, ALWAYS claim ownership of [person(s),froup(s)]. This works on so many levels. It inspires dread in your opponents that they will no longer be able to poast in their home froup and that they will eventually have to pay rent, to name just two.
Any problems with your poasts are the fault of the konspirators, who are trying to stop you from preventing the extinction of humanity.
Konspiracies that are able to subvert whole governments are always unable to silence konspiracy ko0ks.
The entire United States government is willing to spend millions of dollars for the sole purpose of harassing you.
Hollywood is making movies based on your personal life.
Do not consult psychiatrists or other mental health professionals. They are part of the konspiracy, and will sedate you and lock you away and keep you drugged if you tell them the truth.
Numerology and Astrology are respectable sciences and are useful for proving your case.
Everyone is Tim Hill, or David Green, or...
There is a fine line between trolling and kookery. Find that line and cross it repeatedly. When you are killfiled and/or LARTed for net.abuse as a result, claim victory. If you lose multiple accounts, this merely proves that you are indeed a world-class troll, with a black-belt in manipulation.
If you respond to every post someone else makes, they're obsessed. If they respond to less than 1% of your posts, they're even more obsessed.
Publishing people's real names, addresses, and phone numbers when there's no other way for you to come out of a flamewar with any dignity is cool, and proves that you are a master of secret internet information stores, and absolutely not to be fucked with.
Everyone is out to get you. You can put a stop to this by telling everyone that they're out to get you at every available opportunity.
You are the only sane one.
Those that give you a hard time about morally bankrupt things you yourself admit to are just persecutioners of the new inquisition.
Yelling in all caps and cursing at your detractors is debate. Your detractors laughing at you with sarcastic remarks is obvious anger and jealousy.
If doing something results in the loss of your account, legal hassles, or blunt trauma injury, do it again. It always works better the second time.
Asterisks, lots and lots of Asterisks.
Poking holes in kookscreed is stalking, and is a felony.
K00ks LOVE to "connect the dots". They are, of course, dots that only the k00k can see.

"They laughed at Einstein, too!"

Markie, (PROV) means "provisional" If you hadn't gotten kicked out during basic for Sodomy, you'd know that. You keep changing your unit "Fantasy" = "admission that it's true"? You have an interesting view of truth.

TEH WAY OF THE K00K
Never learn from your mistakes.
Always practice your mistakes; you may get them right.
Always pick on those smarter and tougher than you.
Always believe that only you know the TRVTH.
Never allow logic or reason get in the way of a good k00k.
When being overwhelmed by logic and reason: k00ksuit!
If you are going to be wrong, do it at the top of your lungs.
When caught in a lie: LIE!
When in doubt: Order the Crab Won Ton
Plagiarism is your friend. Use it.
Whenever contradicted; morph, start calling people names, and make false accusations. Include the children of your target in your allegations, even if they don't have any.
(06-Jun-05) When nobody else will listen, post to your own fan group.
(06-Jun-05) Obviously, since you have your own fan group, this must mean that you have fans. Post prolifically to your fan group - you wouldn't want to disappoint them!
(10-May-2005)Everyone reads usenet. Approval here means approval everywhere.
Post numerous blank posts, or posts containing only a message id.
Post numerous copy&paste web articles from crackerpot websites.
Never forget to call kookologists "k00ks."
If there are several, call them "sockpuppets" too
When all else fails, accuse various and sundry kookologists of e-mailing viruses to you. This is a sure-fire method of garnering sympathy and ensuring that the General Public will always see things your way. An especially effective sub-strategy here is to accuse them of infecting you with the 'Sasser' worm via e-mail.
Quote notorious scientists or writers - it makes it look as if they approve the drivel you are writing!
(9-Jul-05) Anytime your computer is infected with a virus, bogged down by spyware, attacked over your internet connection, or otherwise suffers from preventable problems, government agencies are responsible and are trying to silence you and are monitoring your computer files.
Ignore all traffic signs and feel free to trespass, you don't have to obey any rules.
Scare your enemies with lawsuits, police escorts and whines.
Always back up your empty (albeit noisy) threats with phony LARTs, false police reports, and harassing letters to the FBI and other gubbermint agencies.
Be vigilant in your redundancy. The more you repeat yourself, the more likely others will believe you!
If you can't find anyone as crazy as yourself to support you in the flamewars you start with the normal population, create sock puppets and use anonymous remailers that shamelessly hang on every word you write.
(17-Mar-05) When dealing with law enforcement, remember that it is they who have the problem, not you. Be sure to inform them of this at every available opportunity, as they will surely appreciate your constructive criticism. Be sure to make them aware that YOU KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! ("The cops like that, when people know their rights. That way they don't have to read them to you on the way to the station." - George Carlin)

The more your fake personalities adulate you, the more respect you'll get!
When confronted with a reality that you don't like: Announce loudly that you are departing, never to return as long as there's an Internet. Come back in three or four days and claim you were drunk, hacked, abducted by alience, or forged. Alternately you can just not even mention your prior departure, and if anyone asks you about it, either ignore them or respond with something along the lines of "YOUR NOT THE BOSS OF ME! PLONK!" People really know you mean business then.
Always remain clueproof.
(20-Mar-05) Anyone who does not believe that you are the reincarnation of [$DEITY_OR_PROPHET] is obviously an infidel lacking in faith whose soul in in peril of everlasting damnation.
When responding to one line challenges, post paragraphs of rants and screed in response.
Incoherency is not a roadblock to poasting.
Neither is illiteracy.
Delusions poasted often enough become fact.
Claim you will destroy <insert newsfroup> for attacking you.
When spnaked, send cmsg for Fanboi newsfroup(s).
Find your Lame, Use your Lame, Be your Lame!
Post Edit when the TRVTH hurts.
Always sneck the offending newsfroups.
Always poast pictures of yourself so you can be admired in all your k00ky glory.
Always accuse others of the very acts you are guilty of.
Post lots of boasts about your high IQ and incredible talents.
(20-Mar-05) If you repeat a lie often enough, it becomes the truth. Anybody who fails to understand this is engaged in a deliberate campaign of misinformation and character assassination.
Always <plonk> somebody just before replying the plonkee!
The k00k considers itself the most intelligent person in any conversation, possibly on the planet. Other people are benighted and ignorant, and have been waiting their whole lives for the k00k to rescue them from intellectual darkness.
Write a self-published book and claim it a success. Bonus points for comparing it to "Mein Kampf" and/or the Bible.
Declare yourself equal to a deity of your choice.
Claim that you've come from other planets.
Claim thousands of past lives.
Frothing complaints carry far more weight when you send them from "legal@" some domain.
Nothing strikes terror into the hearts of your detractors more than telling them that you're archiving their messages for possible use in the future.
Never forget that everyone else posting to Usenet is a paid disinformation agent looking to discredit you.

Usenet is governed by US law. If a poster in Romania killfiles you, he's obviously violating your 1st Amendment rights and can be sued.
Every news admin in the world hangs out in NANAU, and they're just dying to nuke the account of that meanyhead who just called you "fucknozzle". Drop 'em a line - that's what they're there for, after all.
AUK will be closed down. Just you wait and see.
They've nuked hundreds of accounts in the name of free speech and yours will be next.
The k00k will, without any trace of irony, lie, manipulate, impersonate, censor, and declare themselves powerful in ways ranging from the ability to have an account shut down to being God Herself, in order to convince people that they are not liars, manipulators, censors, or insane.
Abuse women while telling how many hundreds you've loved. Nevermind that you're one ugly motherfucker and that there were 30,000 femininas that thought you were a scumbag with bad teeth.
Remember that your ko0ky klaims are 'facts', and that 'facts' do not require proof.
Do not neglect to poast your responses to forums that the originator doesn't read. This will make the people in that forum very impressed with how you tear him to shreds without him being able to respond. They like it even better if you are off-topic for that forum.
Keep in mind that lack of evidence supporting your konspiracy theory actually _is_ evidence, of how effective the konspiracy is in hiding.
(06-Oct-05) When spanked, always retreat to the safety of the Ad Hominem.
(04-Aug-2005) When spanked mercilessly for days on end, proving with each poast just what an illiterate and ignorant fool you are, ALWAYS claim ownership of [person(s),froup(s)]. This works on so many levels. It inspires dread in your opponents that they will no longer be able to poast in their home froup and that they will eventually have to pay rent, to name just two.
Any problems with your poasts are the fault of the konspirators, who are trying to stop you from preventing the extinction of humanity.
Konspiracies that are able to subvert whole governments are always unable to silence konspiracy ko0ks.
The entire United States government is willing to spend millions of dollars for the sole purpose of harassing you.
Hollywood is making movies based on your personal life.
Do not consult psychiatrists or other mental health professionals. They are part of the konspiracy, and will sedate you and lock you away and keep you drugged if you tell them the truth.
Numerology and Astrology are respectable sciences and are useful for proving your case.
Everyone is Tim Hill, or David Green, or...
There is a fine line between trolling and kookery. Find that line and cross it repeatedly. When you are killfiled and/or LARTed for net.abuse as a result, claim victory. If you lose multiple accounts, this merely proves that you are indeed a world-class troll, with a black-belt in manipulation.

If you respond to every post someone else makes, they're obsessed. If they respond to less than 1% of your posts, they're even more obsessed.
Publishing people's real names, addresses, and phone numbers when there's no other way for you to come out of a flamewar with any dignity is cool, and proves that you are a master of secret internet information stores, and absolutely not to be fucked with.
Everyone is out to get you. You can put a stop to this by telling everyone that they're out to get you at every available opportunity.
You are the only sane one.
Those that give you a hard time about morally bankrupt things you yourself admit to are just persecutioners of the new inquisition.
Yelling in all caps and cursing at your detractors is debate. Your detractors laughing at you with sarcastic remarks is obvious anger and jealousy.
If doing something results in the loss of your account, legal hassles, or blunt trauma injury, do it again. It always works better the second time.
Asterisks, lots and lots of Asterisks.
Poking holes in kookscreed is stalking, and is a felony.
K00ks LOVE to "connect the dots". They are, of course, dots that only the k00k can see.
"They laughed at Einstein, too!"

Eeh, some of us have weather and parking garages to contend with. Not all of us are willing to live in largely garageless parking lot-sprawl, weatherless locations like California just for the sake of an antenna.

The employer owns the design. I have no right or control over any design made under the direction of any of my previous employers. That means I can't use them, I can't re-use them, I can't sell them and I can't publically disclose them. The only reason I'm mentioning this is because it was pointed out to me that a lot of people don't know this.
But it really doesn't matter to you since you were never an engineer and are now back to your pouting routine. Works for me.

Residential garages tend to have more clearance than commercial ones, for some reason.

> Which state is your apartment in?

I don't live in an apartment. The garages I'm referring to are in downtown Portland. The vast majority of cheap, all-day parking is in garages of limited clearance. The lowest garage I can fit in is 6'10" with the antenna on, 6'0" with the antenna off (I could probably go 5'8" with no antenna but I'd rather not chance the last four inches). The garage I usually park in is 6'11", the tallest garage I ever park in is 7'4". I think the lowest garage I've cleared without hitting the antenna on is well over 10 feet eyeballing it ("MAX HEADROOM 4m" is what the sign said, I was in Canada when I turned into that garage). I try not to hit anything less than 7 foot (give or take an inch) if there's a lot of traffic, since fucking around in traffic queues when there's no way around and you have room to move forward is seriously Californian-style driving a great way to get yourself mugged in Oregon (and it takes a few seconds to get out, pop the magnet off, slide it all under the luggage carrier and get back in, by which time traffic's really piling up).

My saving grace is that in most of these garages, the ceiling is usually higher than it's lowest point and I only have to worry about major flexing going under low objects like ductwork, lighting and pipes. The sound of the antenna hitting every ceiling-mounted object is usually enough to keep pedestrians well-aware of my presence in the garage is a nice side-benefit, though.

God damn newbie...not on Google we don't

These guys are just playing off each other. Nobody's actually being harmed EXCEPT THE REST OF US. They have the bizzarre idea that because "Mark/Morkie/whomever" supposedly came out as a bisexual amateur (not even a pro) that not only should this person be persecuted (a losing effort maybe) but ba.broadcast should be involved simply because they have a lot of gays there.

If anything, I always blame the legendary Usenet terrorist "Brian McCarty" who seems to be full of multi-personality harrassment schemes. He's a good scapegoat if ever one was needed.

If this thing were any more flimsy and transparent, privates could be seen.

SEARCH = /MARQUEER/>>>>>>>>RESULTS::::::::::::::::::::

1. Someone who sucks a man's penis.
2. A very stupid person.

1. Because I saw Marqueer suck DrDeath's penis I knew that Marqueer is a cocksucker.
2. That fucking DrDeath cocksucker gave Marqueer money for a head job.

MARQUEER is predictably unreliable and will fuck up whatever he is attempting to do--especially while doing something for another person.

That cocksucker Marqueer couldn't drive five miles without getting lost.

MARQUEER is in this order:

1:A person that makes your life as hard as possible.
2:A person that will stand in your way, and mess anything up you do.
3:A person that only cares for them self, and no one else!
4:A person that is looking to give one trouble.

Marqueer is a real Cocksucker.

Marqueer performs or has performed fellatio on dogs.

Marqueer was a cocksucker.

Hey Marqueer,Fuck off you worthless cocksucker!

Marqueer gives head.
Marqueer enjoys Giving blowjobs to niggers.

MARQUEER; Also see homo- fag- faggot- shiteating- cocksucking- queen

Ex: 1, Dude I saw Marqueer suck DrDeath's cock.
2, FUCK YOU YOU MARQUEER COCKSUCKER

1.MARQUEER performs fellatio on DrDeath.

2. MARQUEER licked and sucked DrDeath's cock until DrDeath nearly fainted with pleasure.

Oh man underground garages...years ago my buddy had just bought a new full size conversion van and we were downtown for a concert event, well he made a quick left turn into one of those garages with low clearance and before he knew it he had stuck the truck between the floor and ceiling. We had to let half the air out of the tires to get it out of there. It didn't do the paint on his roof any favors. hehe

Thanks everybody.
I should have mentioned I'm in Downunder and requiring the radios when riding the dirt bikes in the bush (in the middle of nowhere with no repeaters etc).

I just bought 2 of them:

You claim to be part of the "Northface" family. Who are they and what do they have to do with www.northpointradios?
You just "happen" upon this group by sheer coincidence when Northpoint was being discussed? How do you have personal knowledge of the repair jobs completed by www.northpointradios.com?
Do you do repair, work for, or are you connected to Northpoint Radios in any manner whatsoever?

This group was told Northpoint radios agreed to repair a radio free of charge based on nothing more than the purchaser's diagnose. How long has Northpoint Radios been telling customers over the phone their radio will be repaired for free based on nothing more than the purchaser's diagnose?

My Midland can also pick up the Weather Channels but they come in too weak to hear. Is there an antenna that can be used for both CB and the WX channels? If yes, where can I buy one? Thanks.

Any antenna will pick up VHF. However, 27 MHz and 162 MHz are not harmonically related, and to have an antenna favor 162 would hurt 27. Why not pick up an older handheld or mobile scanner. With rebanding, many older trunktrackers will become available on the used market.

Are you even near a NWS transmitter?
http://www.weather.gov/nwr/
More then 10 or 15 miles can be noisy without a antenna up high.

It does make me wonder how any coiled antenna (which is 1/4 wave uncoiled) could be better then a full size quarter wave. The slight inductance at the bottom can't help. Inductive reactance increases with frequency for a given inductance. Why would you want a resistor in series with your radiating element before the peak voltage is developed at the tip?

Pretty much any standard steel whip can handle WX just fine. My Wilson Mini Wil works fine for the job. Try moving closer to the WX transmitter.

I wonder how many of the old standard base station antennas are still around in use or for sale? Such great antennas as the Avanti PDL Quad or Avanti's Astro Plane, or Shakespeare's "Big Stick" which was so prone to catching Lightning, or the original "Starduster"? I know that now, these days the Starduster and the Astro Plane are built by the same European business that purchased the rights to build each but for this post I'm not talking about the newer Astro Planes or Stardusters but rather the original models. The Big Stick I think has just faded away but I know there are still some out there.

Last does anyone have or remember the old "Signal Kicker" mobile antennas either in magnetic mount or trunk lip mount with spring base? One of the best, quietest mobile antennas I've ever had, wish I could find another. Liked it better than the Wilson's or K40's but then I wasn't running any power though it either.

You're absolutely right... that loaded (coiled) antenna can't possibly have the same performance. But people are easily fooled... and impressed with big loops of aluminum and wild claims... LOL

Wrong, Markie, as usual. But you are just a beginner training wheel no code tech.

That's what ended your time in Basic, Markie. Sodomy, not the 2 pounds overweight you claimed, anyways the only two pounds extra you carried is when the guy was in the act of sodomizing you.

Nope, Roger has an Honorable Discharge, Markie, something you couldn't get.

Not according to the Army, retard. You were caught in a lie, just admit it.

Hello Steveo:

Ok good deal, I called the dude at the Mojave Airport Control Tower. He really wasn't all that friendly. Especially after I asked him to turn up the skip level in the sky. And what type of big ol linear he gots.

I am sure there is some obscure government agency that can turn up the skip, but I am not seeing em here in the directory!

OK, fine business Jay.

I hope you complemented him for the pretty colors he makes in the sky when he opens the faucet too.

It's almost the same color tones as the corona that comes off your long wire when you have access to the 220 plug.

Happy New Year.

5552. Ham Radio Operators & CB'ers

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb

From: Gary KW4Z <kw4z@charter.net>
Message-ID: <C1BB3DFC.169DF%kw4z@charter.net>

Many times these are on in the same. It's not a secret that some Amateur Radio operators (HAMs) have been critical of CB'ers, in the past, and most times unjustifiably. Sometimes correctly however a great many Ham Operators not only came from CB but are currently still operating CB'ers.

Here though is the point of my post. With the FCC dropping the Morse Code requirement many that would have never before thought about becoming a HAM might give it a thought. Being a Ham, and CB'er (former KBD5746, yeah I actually had a CB License and still remember it) I know that HAM radio thrives because of the influx of new blood. That new blood is usually from the CB ranks. I can't say that you'll find better operators, you will in places and you won't on some bands, but it does open up additional avenues to experiment with areas of communications and the type equipment you would use (computers, satellite, FM etc) and also provides a lot more legal band space from which to work skip, or other stations all over the world. For truck drivers it is analogous to getting XM or Sirus Radio verses local radio channels. FM Repeaters can keep you in contact for Hundreds of miles apart and if you enjoy working challenging stations on low power then it is there also. Are there still "old Hams" that snarl at the thought of a CB operator? Sure there are just as there are CB operators that criticize and malign Ham Radio Operators. Many CB operators have Ham equipment that they are using now (Yaesu FT101s' and Kenwood TS520s or better). Ham Equipment is also affordable to the entry level operators that don't have a fortune to invest. It's not uncommon to find Yaesu's and Kenwood's going from $200 - $350.00 on eBay these days). Most Ham's make their own antenna out of copper wire and spend a minimal getting on the air.

Without the code now the only barrier to obtaining that Ham License is taking a test of Electrical Theory (most interesting to know anyway), Operating Procedures, and Rules and Regulations. I for one think that the more activity we can keep going the better it is for all of us therefore the post I made today.

All CB handhelds suck for range, even then, if skip is in forget it. MURS is much better.

I turned on my CB to catch Christmas CBer and to make that all important first contact. It was pouring Monday so no one came out to try their CB. I did make a few random FRS contacts. Nice to have an FRS that scans.

I expect the test sessions to be quite packed with all the fuss I've been hearing on my Parts 95 and 97.

I haven't given up my CB just because I've got a ticket. The SSB net is now mostly hams. It wasn't that way five years ago.

To learn the technical TRUTH about CB Radio without all the hype from people who are just plain ignorant, check out the following books from CBC International. They're selling right now at a big discounts on our EBAY & AMAZON stores too.

Check it out!

To see exactly what these books look like, plus all the specific, chapter-by-chapter details, see our Web at:

www.cbcintl.com

Some of the books included are:

BOOK #1: THE "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE To Peaking Out & Repairing CB Radios. List $25. The most popular "big dummy's" guide ever published on do-it-yourself CB repairs & modifications. Covers peaking of receivers, transmitters, modulation, mike problems, antenna & SWR problems, detailed frequency modifications for both crystal & PLL radios. Loaded with charts, illustrations, and specific instructions for most brands including the new export models. This latest edition also covers slider and broadbanding tricks, FM conversions, and much more!

BOOK #2: THE CB PLL DATA BOOK. List $20. The only complete reference source on CB PLL synthesizer circuits ever published! Detailed PLL theory explained in layman's terms. How they work, and how to modify them for many more channels. Includes specific PLL block mixing diagrams, truth charts, & IC pin function diagrams for nearly every PLL chip ever used. Covers all the most popular U.S. & export chassis, with specific listings of all models using the chip.

BOOK #3: UNDERSTANDING & REPAIRING CB RADIOS. List $42. Giant 370-page technical book for the professional repairman. Picks up where the "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE leaves off. Includes circuit descriptions & troubleshooting guide for 23- & 40-Ch., crystal & PLL, solid-state & tube, AM, FM, SSB, CW, American & export models. Covers test equipment (& where to find it), transistor basics, synthesizers, receivers, transmitters, power supplies, T/R switching, antennas, interference, parts & accessory sources. Over 350 illustrations including schematics, charts, and photos. Huge subject index also lets you look up repairs by symptoms. This is "must" reading for any serious CB technician!

Yet he had nothing to do with 911, the reason Bush said we were there in the first place.
Bush made a conscious decision to lie to the American public in order to carry out his personal vendetta against the man who tried to waste his father. Bush was/is willing to trade x amount of American lives to achieve his wants, not for the safety or security of this country, but for his own
He should be tried for war crimes alongside Rumsfeld, which Germany recently indicted and since he stepped aside, is no longer afforded the protection top officials receive.

Hussein had to swing, otherwise, history would have been even more unkind (if that's even possible) to Bush after Iraq re-elected him as president, because that's probably what would have happened after Bush pulls out of Iraq (and declares a false and hollow victory). That country is every bit as divided as ours was the last few years, smack dab right down the middle.
I find it amusing the Bush regime aided in expediting the trial to the extent it did and agreed with the sentence but found it too macabre to air.

The world looks at Bush as more of a threat to world peace than Iraq, Iran or any other country dubbed "hostile" by dubya and they are right. Clinton got a blowjob but Bush is screwing the country. But of course, you will be hard pressed these days to find anyone supporting the US occupation in Iraq except for armchair generals and chickenhawks who have no relatives in combat.

He said that after the 100 prior reasons didn't materialize. Including WOD, Liberation from Saddam, to have free elections. Did I miss any?

The sad part about what you wrote, is that about 70% of AMericans polled around the time of his re-election, believed him. Despite there being overwhelming evidence to the contrary. The Dems fucked up, too. They didn't seize upon this, and were soft in their attacks on Bush during the election. I don't want to get into this again. But all this negativity the people see now, I saw before we went in. He had 2 natural enemies over there in Iraq and Iran. Theu checked each other. He now has created 2 Irans. Fucking brilliant. What pisses me off most, is I have to deal with people like my brother-in-law, that think he has these big balls, and says when the Democrats win the White House, we'll be attacked by terrorists every day. But he doesn't want to hear it when I tell him that Republicans were in charge the last time we were attacked.

I posted only to rec.radio.amateur.policy not to all the groups that have been listed. Why have you changed that just to issue an insult? However, the killfile is useful in cases like this.

Yup, you're right! When he couldn't get public support for the invasion, the reason for invasion changed several times.

Yea. It sucks that people put such blind faith into the status quo leadership of this country.

Agreed. They should have hammered this point repeatedly.

>I don't want to get into this again. But all this >negativity the people see now, I saw before >we went in.

Thinking back, most of us on this group were against it at the time and were arguing against attacking Iraq for all the reasons which came to fruition. There were two or three in here who decided to support Bush at all cost including attacking Iraq, but as time went by and it became clear we were quagmired in Iraq (with no clear objective ever defined and adhered), those folks disappeared.

Ain't that a bitch? That's akin to "If we don't fight them there we'll fight them here." There wasn't anything else Bush could do to make certain that prophecy was any more self-fulfilling.

>But he doesn't want to hear it when I tell him >that Republicans were in charge the last time

>we were attacked.

>Vinnie S.

Or that the Dems in office at the time who voted for the Iraq invasion did so at the word of the Repubs which was since found to be nothing but lies based on forged intel, documents and deliberate disinformation.
What really galls me with Bush is he said the invasion was necessary to "stop the proliferation or transfer" of WMDS. Meanwhile, for more than a year, 'lil Kim in N. Korea was not only mocking the US by informiing us of its nuke progress every step of the way, it actually threatened us on several occasion while Bush sat back and played whack-a-mole with Hussein.
I said this before, but if Bush was really a Christian like he claims, how in the hell can he disagree with the Bible that claims no peace in the mideast until days of Revelation and Antichrist? He's either a false Christian, bonafide lunatic or both. That the majority of "Christians" don't even bother to question this position of his is also troubling.

North Korea knows the US won't attack because it would bankrupt half the western hemisphere just for the humanitarian aid that would be needed after an attack, let alone reconstruction costs (and associated Halliburton kickbacks). But they do need to worry about Japan. The US won't attack Iran either because it would cause a firestorm of hate in the ME, effectively starting WW3.

For starters, I don't think our autistic leader has enough brains to be running the country. Most likely it's Cheney and Rumsfeld pulling the strings from behind the curtain -- the Bible's got nothing to do with it. It's clear now that Iraq was about oil. Saddam was unloading huge amounts of cheap crude on the market despite the UN sanctions (and, in many cases, right through the UN). The result was lower crude prices and lower profits for US-aligned oil companies. Now that the war has killed oil production in Iraq, the crude prices are up and so are profits -- at record levels. Between OPEC, Chavez, and the US/UK consortium, there's no such thing as a free-market economy when it comes to energy. It's all a sham, just like the "reasons" for invading Iraq. The Dems have their dirty little fingers in it, too; just look at how much oil money was spent on Dems in the last election.

And I'm sure Bush was happy with the swift execution of Saddam. Now that Rumsfeld has been charged with war crimes, he may be tried in absentia where Saddam could have been called as a witness. That would have been bad for a whole lot of Republican operatives going all the way back to the Reagan administration.

But then again, maybe Bush & company are a bunch of kooks that are actually -trying- to initiate the apocolypse..... ever watch that TV series "Millenium"? Anyway, the majority of Bush-loving "Christians" are hypocrites like N3CVJ. Whatever happened to that idiot?

ah yes.....the wisdom of a kc2 hammy....LOL!.....and yet you are too much the coward to let the cb'ers see your most well thought reply!

well hope this helps! now get back to feeding on the medical waste of the lard assed whore you so worship.
